

Shoplifting by Juveniles Here Soars

An explosive increase in juvenile shoplifters has created an emergency in Long Beach, police and business officials said Saturday.

A special task force of private detectives has been mustered to combat the problem which has reached epidemic proportions.

Prime target of many of the shoplifters is airplane glue, officials said, which delinquents sniff for thrills. In many stores the glue has been removed from public display.

Glue-sniffing, Dr. Jacob Sokol said, virtually guarantees permanent damage to children's blood, liver, kidneys, upper respiratory tracts and can result in permanent brain damage. Dr. Sokol is chief physician for Juvenile Hall in Los Angeles.

Officials said glue-sniffing and shoplifting by children from 9 to 15 years old has grown alarmingly in the past year.

Long Beach police and Downtown Long Beach Associates have combined efforts to reduce the problem.

"Shop thievery, as we call it, amounts to a $1-million-a-year loss in Long Beach, and involves people of all ages, of which teen-agers represent a sizable percentage," said Charles Charleton, chairman of the DLBA committee on shop thievery.

"The fad of glue-sniffing has prompted an alarming rise in the theft of airplane glue," Charleton said. "In many stores the glue has been removed from display, and is sold only on request."

Capt. Paul Landsdowne, head of the Long Beach Juvenile Division, said that 100 children in Long Beach will be arrested this year because of glue-sniffing. An additional 2,000 will be discovered throughout the county.

"The problem is not unique to Southern California. Every city in the country is experiencing its hazardous results."

Police Chief William Mooney said that unless the problem is realized by parents as being extremely serious, more and more young people will be trapped in the habit.

"We need a strong public-education program stressing the dangers of glue-sniffing combined with a real awareness by parents that their children could be engaged in the glue-sniffing habit," Chief Mooney said.

To combat teen-age and preteen shop thievery, the DLBA has hired a number of private detectives and shoplifting specialists who will work with specially trained juvenile officers to patrol stores frequently hit by sticky-fingered children.

DLBA Executive Director Vito Romans said his group intends to stamp out shop thievery in Long Beach, and will prosecute anyone caught stealing.

"All stores have instructed their employees how to detect shoplifters quickly, and what to do to assist in their arrest," Romans said.

"We are tired of losses, and of dealing with those people who are arrested, released, and return to shoplift again. The city's judges are behind this program, and promise to enforce sentences, to the letter of the law, against anyone convicted of shop thievery."

Chief Mooney said parents can help combat shoplifting if they are more suspicious when a son or daughter comes home with an item claimed to be borrowed from a friend. Frequent checks of dresser drawers also deter a child's desire to steal, he said.

"The problem is big, but if everyone gets behind it I am confident the problem can be licked," Chief Mooney said.

Exile Describes Raid on Havana by Two Launches

MIAMI (UPI)—The Student Revolutionary Directorate said Saturday that two launches manned by Cuban exiles took part in the shelling of two buildings on the Havana waterfront.

It said that one of the targets, a theater, was attacked while a meeting of "technicians," presumably presided over by Prime Minister Fidel Castro, was in progress.

Juan Manuel Salvat, a member of the directorate and coordinator of the attack, later gave an eyewitness account of the shelling in an interview. He said the United States "had nothing to do with our mission."

Probing of Venus Delayed

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—Eleventh-hour technical troubles forced U.S. scientists to postpone a planned attempt to shoot a payload of instruments 181 million miles early today to probe the secrets of the planet Venus.

The difficulties cropped up during the last part of the all-day-Saturday countdown. The delay will be for at least 24 hours.

The problems were centered in the 10-story Atlas-Agena space rocket which carries the gold-and-silver-painted, he the gold-and-silver-painted instrument package—an electronic explorer named Mariner-2.

EARLY indications were the problems were not serious, and that the shot possibly could be rescheduled for early Monday morning.

As planned, the 447-pound payload would arrive in the vicinity of Venus Dec. 14 and then perhaps answer one of the oldest and deepest mysteries of the universe: is there atmosphere surrounding Venus that would sustain life.

In Washington the State Department denounced the whole operation as a "spur of the moment raid" which it said could not really weaken the Communist apparatus in Cuba.

At the same time, the justice department announced it is investigating whether the U.S. Neutrality Act was violated in the strafing episode.

"While we appreciate the strong feeling of this free student group and their hospitality to this most oppressive regime," State Department Press Officer Robert J. McCloskey told newsmen, "We cannot approve of the use of U.S. territory as a base for such action."

Salvat said the attack was carried out under the nose of the Cuban coast guard boats. Both launches escaped, he said, and made their way to Florida where crewmembers were disbanded.

SALVAT said that a fast launch, which he was aboard, did the actual shooting, while the other stood on guard off the coast.

"The fast attack boat moved in to 220 yards from the shore and opened fire with its 20 millimeter cannon," Salvat said. "At both points of the small harbor of Miramar were Cuban coast boats."

AVALON AMOUR Boy Jumps Ship for Sake of Love

By SHERM WILLIAMS

A massive sea, air and land search for a missing Downey boy, Donald Heller, 15, ended happily for everyone but Donald Saturday evening when an officer found him walking down an Avalon street. Donald had been missing since 12:30 a.m. Saturday when the SS Catalina sailed from Avalon for San Pedro. When found, Donald had a strange light in his eyes.

It is an impossibly long way from Downey to San Diego if you are a 15-year-old boy whose special girl lives there.

Especially if you aren't sure she is your girl friend.

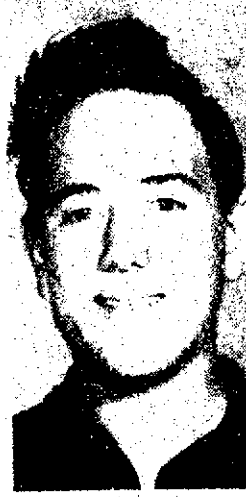

And it is just a jump from the deck of the SS Catalina to the dock at Avalon. The big ship is still next to the dock and the big screws are just starting to push her away toward San Pedro. The deck hands are pulling in the stern lines.

A LINE from a song ripples across your mind. "Rita," your mind says, and then the song cuts in:

"I left my love in Avalon, beside the sea . . ."

Donald wasn't going to leave his girl in Avalon. When the love bug bites, man, you move.

MONEY CAN BUY HER MODESTY Miss IBC Deceived Us on Cheesecake

By CHARLES RIDGWAY

Copyright 1962 by the Independent Press-Telegram

Australia's Miss International Beauty was on her way home today after admitting she really doesn't mind posing pictures in bathing suits after all, provided there is a good reason—money.

Dark-haired Tania Verstak, who says she wants to be a church-sponsored refugee worker, haughtily refused to pose for the usual swimsuit picture requested by photographers during this year's International Beauty Congress competition here.

IT WOULD VIOLATE her religious principles and "be completely out of character," declared the 21-year-old college co-ed during the contest.

Billed as a serious-minded student of Chinese philosophy, Miss Verstak carefully neglected to mention a two-year career as a part-time model which included modeling for a swimsuit manufacturer.

Her non-academic activities came to light Saturday, a week after her triumph in the beauty pageant, when a news feature syndicate distributed two publicity pictures released weeks earlier by the Australian Tourist Bureau. Because they identify Tania only as a former Miss Australia, the pictures almost escaped notice.

One shows Miss Verstak frolicking in Australia's mountains, scantily clad in skis and a brief, two-piece bathing suit made of a peek-a-boo eyeliner material. The other has her throwing snowballs, displaying her 34-23-35 figure with equal clarity.

WHEN QUESTIONED prior to her Saturday morning departure, Miss Verstak readily acknowledged she had posed for the pictures about a year ago.

"That was a job we did one weekend in the Kosciusko Snow Mountains to show visitors they could ski and sunbathe at the same time," she explained.

Why pose in a bathing suit in the mountains and not at the beach?

"That was different," said Tania calmly. "That was a job I was being paid for. There wasn't any reason to pose in a bathing suit in Long Beach."

CHARITY QUESTIONED Patman Suspects Hughes Tax Gyp in Complex Plan

By WILLIAM BROOM
I, P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—A tax-exempt foundation set up by Howard Hughes may have saved his financial empire millions of dollars in federal income taxes and renegotiated profits on defense contracts, House investigators say.

Details of the Hughes transactions are contained in a report by Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman of the House Small Business Committee. Patman is engaged in a study of the huge growth of tax-exempt foundations and their impact on small businessmen.

Patman's investigators recently completed a lengthy examination of the operations of the Howard Hughes Medical Institute of Miami Beach, and are engaged in further studies.

IN HIS FIRST report on the Hughes foundation, Patman questioned whether it served as a tax-saving device. He expressed an opinion that it may have indirectly boosted government defense costs as well.

The Howard Hughes Medical Institute was set up, primarily to perform medical research. In 1955, the Internal Revenue Service called the institute a tax-dodging device, but changed its mind two years later. In 1957, the institute was granted tax-exempt status.

The Patman report, delivered to Congress early last week, was the product of a study of tax returns and financial reports of the medical institute which never before have been revealed. These show that the Hughes institute is an elaborate connecting link between two major Hughes holdings. The sole trustee and absolute head of the medical institute is Howard Hughes.

THE MEDICAL institute was set up when Hughes Tool Co., wholly owned by Hughes, turned over the Hughes Aircraft Corp. to the medical institute. Hughes Aircraft employs about 28,000 workers and has annual sales of about $500 million.

Tool-company assets turned over to the institute were carried on the company's books for $37,000. The (Continued Page A-6, Col. 5)

Wyman Blasts Gibe at Brown

By BOB WELLS
I, P-T Staff Writer

SACRAMENTO—The California Democratic State Central Committee will elect officers here today to lead their party through the coming campaign.

Eugene Wyman, a Beverly Hills attorney, is expected to be named Democratic state chairman without opposition.

Saturday, Wyman got his party's campaign off to a running start by charging that the John Birch Society, "working hand-in-hand with organized backers of Richard Nixon," is mounting a "scourge" campaign against Gov. Brown.

His reasoning, he said, was that charges of being soft on communism or being "pink the John Birch Society," always seem to happen to people who run against Richard Nixon in California. It goes all the way back to the Jerry Voorhis and Helen Gahagan Douglas campaigns.

THE DEMOCRATIC leader, who has served as Southern California chairman the past two years, exhibited bumperstrips reading "Is Brown Pink?" which, he said, have been appearing in increasing numbers all over Southern California.

However, he admitted that he had no evidence tying (Continued A-2, Col. 7)

Carl Rowan, Negro, to Be Delegate to U.N. Assembly

WASHINGTON (AP)—Carl T. Rowan, deputy assistant secretary of state for public affairs, is to be named a member of the United States delegation to the new United Nations General Assembly, informed sources said Saturday night.

The 17th General Assembly will convene next month.

Formal announcement of Rowan's selection is due to be made next week.

Rowan, 36, is top ranking Negro in the State Department. He was named to that post by President Kennedy on Jan. 25, 1961.

When he joined the State Department, Rowan left behind a 12-year span as copy editor and reporter for the Minneapolis Tribune, plus lucrative sidelines as author and lecturer.

Rowan, a native of Ravenscroft, Tenn., became in 1944 one of the first 15 Negroes to win commissions in the Navy's V-12 officer training program. In 1951 he was the first Negro to win the "Outstanding Young Man" award of the Minneapolis Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Names of other members of the delegation were not disclosed.

L.A.C. Says: AFL-CIO and Brown to Oppose Nixon

The line of attack on Richard Nixon was clearly defined this past week at the convention of the AFL-CIO held here in Long Beach. Gov. Brown was the keynote speaker followed by other Democratic candidates. Their major attacks were on Nixon whom they attacked as being antilabor as compared to the all-out subservience to unions as exemplified by Brown and his fellow candidates.

There were no specific instances that showed Nixon as antilabor. But by innuendo he was pictured as an enemy to the working man. In particular, his campaign was condemned because it was charged employers were encouraged to give their views to their employees. It was called a back-door approach because it did not come through the union leaders. As could be expected, Nixon quickly replied by labeling Brown as "a rubber stamp for everything the union political bosses want—right or wrong." This of course, brought outraged comments from union leaders who were running the convention. They said Nixon was invited to go before the AFL-CIO political action committee but ignored the invitation. They did not comment on the fact he was not invited to speak before the delegates at the convention.

Since Gov. Brown used the AFL-CIO convention to start this controversy it is evident he places his hope for re-election on the power of that organization. By contrast, Nixon is appealing to the rank and file union members over the heads of their leaders. His refusal to go before the AFL-CIO political action committee was thoroughly justified. That organization was committed to the support of Brown and other candidates who have virtually a 100 per cent record of support of union demands. Had the union leaders been nonpartisan they would have invited both candidates to present their views to the 2,000 delegates at the convention.

We know of no antilabor sentiment by Richard Nixon. But a candidate with less than a 100 per cent union voting record has virtually no chance of union endorsement. In our opinion, Nixon's attitude is one that the rank and file members would approve if given the opportunity to hear it. But the union leaders with their paid campaign workers and newspapers do not give that opportunity. For this reason his campaign to inform workers in their places of employment is sound and practical.

Coming directly from being the main speaker for the state CDC, Richard Richards was also an honored speaker at the convention. He called for changes or repeal of the Taft-Hartley and Landrum-Griffin antilabor racketeering acts. These two federal laws restrict the power of the unions to some extent. They outlawed Communists from holding office in unions. They have been under attack by union leaders ever since their enactment—which came about only after some union leaders had been proven guilty of harboring Communists and arrogantly denying the right of nonunion workers to get a job.

Mr. Brown has drawn the line. He has gone all out to make himself the champion of unions. In the attacks on Nixon the union leaders and Brown are attempting to make this another "right to work" fight. That issue is not involved. What is involved is whether a governor is to act for all the people of California—or is he to be the willing tool of union leaders who demand and expect undemocratic control of their members' lives and their freedom of choice of candidates. It was Brown—not Nixon—who raised the issue—and who has made himself the union leaders' candidate. But we doubt he has gained the confidence of a large segment of the rank and file members.—L.A.C.

Boy Tells Slaying of Sailor

Formal charges were lodged late Saturday in Norfolk, Va. against a youth who admitted slaying the sailor-husband of a Long Beach woman.

Killed Thursday was Gordon Ross Holm, 27, whose wife, Kathy Dorothy, lives in Long Beach. Her street address was not immediately available.

Murder-robbery charges were brought against Carl Matthew Powell, 14, who allegedly beat the third-class machinist mate to death with a chair leg.

Det. F. C. Bruce said Powell, who lives with his mother near the murder scene, a Norfolk street corner, admitted the slaying in a signed statement.

Holm, stationed aboard the attack cargo ship Uvalde, also is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wiggo Holm, Viborg, S.D. He joined the service in February 1956.

Road Deaths 300 Monthly in California

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Highway accidents in California killed people at the rate of more than 300 a month during the first seven months of 1964.

The California Highway Patrol reported Friday that 2,261 persons died in traffic accidents between Jan. 1 and July 31.

That's 174 more, or an increase of 8.3 per cent over the same period in the previous year.

Teen-Age Boy Dies of Fumes

The body of a teen-age boy who apparently committed suicide Thursday was found Saturday by his mother, according to Downey police.

George Paul Hogenmiller, 16, was found by Mrs. Leah Mae Hogenmiller, 49, in the family car in the garage at 12329 Blodgett St. Downey police officers said he died of carbon monoxide poisoning. Mrs. Hogenmiller was unable to give police a reason for the boy's action.

YOU KNOW one thing. Her name is Rita. And she is staying at Avalon. Pretty soon she will be going home to San Diego and you won't even know her last name or where to find her in San Diego. You won't even know whether or not she wants to write.

It is that bad. Donald walked over to where his mother and father sat on the Catalina and borrowed $2 from his mother. Then, with a box containing his swim fins and swimsuit, he jumped off the ship and hurried back into Avalon.

THERE WASN'T much to do. Just wait for morning. And it was hard to sleep outside.

On the ship, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Heller of 9054 Adores Ave. missed Donald.

They couldn't find him at the Wilmington terminal either.

Worried, they went to police. They recalled Donald hadn't wanted to leave Avalon and remembered him mentioning a girl's name, Rita.

Quickly the theory developed that Donald had jumped overboard after the Catalina put to sea in an attempt to swim back to Avalon. He is a strong swimmer, the Hellers said.

BUT THEY feared the worst.

Forces were mustered for a sea search. Helicopters, the cutter Morris and two seaplanes began searching shortly after dawn.

The Hellers maintained a lonely vigil in the lobby of the police station in San Pedro.

While the seaplanes circled over the channel, Donald found Rita and they spent a happy day together.

The Democrats spent most of their biennial state convention Saturday hailing the record of the state administration.

CONVENTION delegates heard speeches by Lt. Gov. Glenn Anderson; Controller Alan Cranston; State Treasurer Bert Betts, and Don Rose, candidate for secretary of state.

A major theme of the speeches was California prosperity and Democratic "fiscal responsibility." Gov. Brown sounded the keynote with his speech noting a $35-million surplus and calling for elimination of state income taxes for 840,000 low-bracket taxpayers.

Cranston said Republicans had tried to paint Democrats as wild-spending, fuzzy-headed idealists.

"Since January of 1959, with Democrats holding all but one constitutional office and with working majorities in both houses of the legislature, we have proved that we can be fiscally responsible and humanitarian at the same time," Cranston said. "We have handled the state's finances with acumen and responsibility and have kept the books balanced. We have lived within our means."

BETTS CLAIMED that since August 1961, restoration of competitive sales of California bonds had saved California $25 million in interest costs.

"Prior to my restoration of competition," he said, "California was paying a rate above the national bond buyers average. This rate has dropped to below the national average."

In addition, Betts said, the fact that all bonds sold

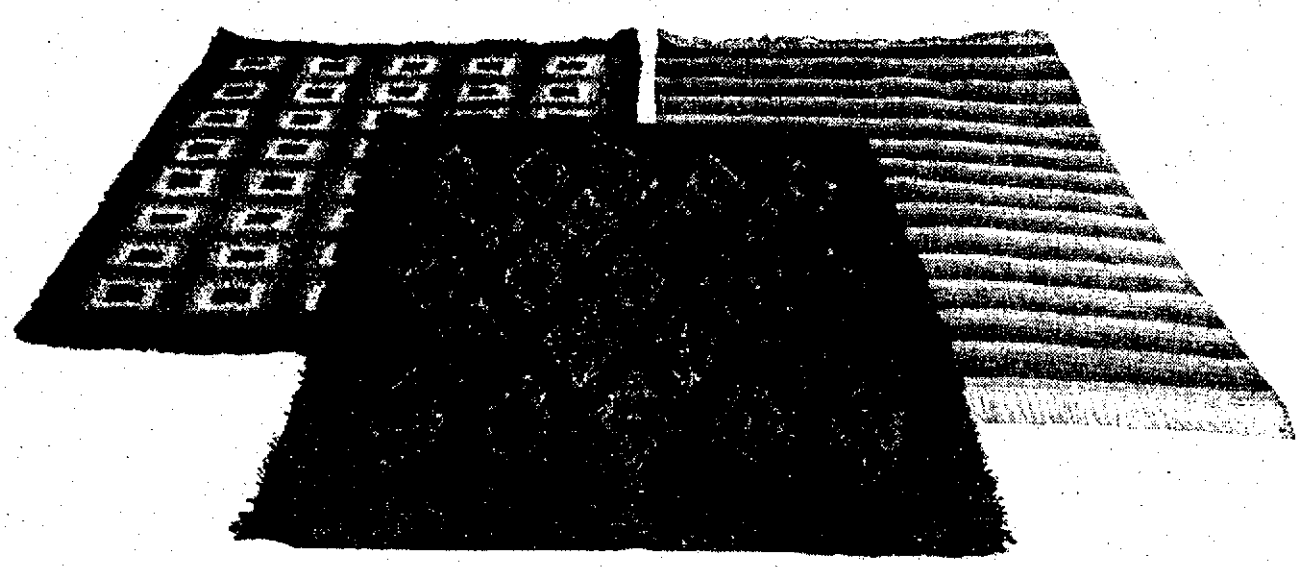

THE STATE committee today will consider a resolution by Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Sen. Clair Engle will be the keynote speaker for today's meeting. State Sen. Richard Richards, nominee for U.S. Senate, also will address the committee members.

AS SHE AND her chaperone, Mrs. Howard Dunn of 1052 Andrews Lane, packed for Tania's departure, they joked about the bright red, single-piece bathing suit she brought with her. "This is the one she didn't wear," said Mrs. Dunn.

"It's wonderful to have such a fine, serious-minded girl win the contest," the chaperone said.

Miss Australia, who won her nation's title nine months ago, said she didn't think her refusal to pose in a swimsuit aided her score in the judges' minds.

"As Miss Australia, I had been asked to keep up the standard of the quest," she said. "Since we were judged in playsuits, not swim suits, I could see no reason for posing."

SHE ADMITTED that her then-secret experience as a model for magazine and television advertisements, along with two previous beauty titles, had given her the poise and assurance to help her chances.

Tania's biography, released at the beginning of the contest, carefully avoided reference to her modeling career.

It notes she speaks English and Russian, was born in North China and escaped with her parents from Communist persecution in her native land. Her parents had earlier escaped from Russia.

Tania is completing her second year at Sydney University studying English, psychology and Chinese history and philosophy—which latter she calls her favorite subject.

PACKING FOR HER TRIP home to Australia, Miss IBC, carefully folded the bright red sunsuit in which she refused to pose in Long Beach. She is stopping over in Honolulu before completing her trip home.

Sydney theater usherettes in 1960.

AT THE TIME of her IBC win, Miss Verstak said the only reason she had entered the original Miss Australia contest was because it was a benefit for spastic children. Indicating she didn't quite approve of beauty contests in general, she turned down a world tour for the IBC but said she would carry out a commitment to tour Australia because it would benefit crippled children.

Just before her departure, however, she admitted she had become used to the idea of being judged the world's most beautiful girl.

"I came here feeling I had not the slightest chance," she said, "and it took me a while to get adjusted."

The reigning beauty said, however, she had enjoyed her stay here and "found the people just as warm and friendly as they are in Australia."

Tania contends she still intends to seek a career helping refugees in Europe to reach Australia, which she says still has plenty of room and opportunities for immigrants.

SHE SAYS SHE "never took modeling seriously."

"I just took the modeling jobs—most of them television commercials for American firms—because they paid well and I needed the money to attend the university, which is expensive," she explained. "I never did clothes modeling because I'm too short (5-feet 5½ inches)."

She said she couldn't earn enough money working in an office. "But the life of a model doesn't appeal to me. Your face soon becomes too well known and people get tired of seeing it."

Earlier, she had said she worked for her father as an advertising consultant. He owns an insulation manufacturing business. She intends to invest some of her $10,000 IBC prize money in the company.

Tania admitted her modeling had "made life more interesting for me."

"I MET A VARIETY of interesting people," she said. Miss Verstak plans to return to college in January following her tour and hopes to graduate in about a year. "I have to get more schooling in order to get the kind of job I want, helping immigrants," she added.

Miss Australia said modeling, even in a bathing suit, never embarrassed her. "I picked only the jobs that appealed to me," she reported.

Leaving International Airport Saturday, Tania said she was taking very few souvenirs with her except for the wardrobe she won in the contest, which completely jammed a large pile of luggage.

Her only real souvenir, she said, is a tin of chocolate-covered ants which she bought in an American supermarket. "I just wanted to show my friends you could actually buy them."

Miss Verstak said she planned to stay a few days in Hawaii with friends before going on to her homeland.

Miss Verstak arrived in Hawaii Saturday on her way home from California. She had a black and white stuffed panda under one arm. A hatbox swung from the other.

Two hours after landing in Honolulu she flew to Kauai Island for a three-day stay to "catch my breath." She is scheduled to leave for Sydney Tuesday.

What does she intend to do in Hawaii?

"I plan," she said, "to do nothing here except lie on a beach in a bikini."

Holdup-Loot U.S. Faces Search Fails Problems at Oceanside in Azores

ST. LOUIS (AP)—St. Louis police said Saturday a tip from one of the men implicated in the $17,200 Amheuser-Busch Credit Union holdup in St. Louis led U.S. bases in the Azores will Oceanside, Calif., police to be long and difficult, in dig up a large vacant lot in informed sources said Saturday. A futile search for buried money.

Detective Fred Grimes directed the search. He said Oceanside authorities scraped its huge Lagens Base and the two feet of earth from the lot with a road grader but nothing was found.

A large part of the money taken in the Aug. 3 robbery has been recovered and five men are charged in the case.

Police said one of the five, Robert Elroy Williams of St. Louis, told them he buried $3,000 in a leather sack near the home of relatives in Oceanside.

4,000-Year-Old Temple Found in Holy Land

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI)—An American archaeological expedition has discovered a 4,000-year-old temple at which the Biblical patriarch Abraham may have worshipped, it was reported Saturday.

A spokesman for the Drew McCormick School of Oriental Research expedition said the temple was found within the ruins of ancient buildings at the site of the city of Shechem, a religious center of the northern Israelite kingdom in the period from 1,900 to 1,100 B.C.

He said it was believed the small temple room had been used as a place of worship by Abraham because of knowledge of the whereabouts of the patriarch during his later adult life and the pre-temple importance of what is now called Tel Balatah.

Hunger Strikers Help Union Fight

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—The six hunger-striking members of the Chula Vista International Association of Machinists union ended their week long demonstration Friday night at the request of their union.

Ray Bryant, business agent for the IAM local in Chula Vista, said Saturday their strike had helped. He listed the tentative agreement between the union and Rohr Corp. on the arbitration section of their new contract as an example of the effectiveness of the strike.

Egyptians Fire Zafir Rocket in Desert Test

CAIRO (AP)—The United Arab Republic recently fired its "Zafir" rocket in a night experiment, the newspaper Al Ahram reported.

The paper published a picture of the "giant rocket soaring skyward in the darkness" but gave no date or other details.

On July 21 President Nasser watched the first test firing by the U.A.R. armed forces of four single-stage rockets from an unidentified base in the western desert. Nasser stressed then, in effect, that the rockets could hit any target in Israel.

The rockets were identified as "Khaer" (Conqueror) and the smaller "Zafir" (Victorious).

Cave Dweller Seeks Endurance Record

NICE, France (UPI)—Michel Siffre Saturday spent his 40th consecutive day in a cave 420 feet beneath the surface in a bid to set a 1,000-hour record for endurance cave dwelling.

Organizers said Siffre already has surpassed the previous record set by an Italian team which spent 700 hours underground.

Catholics Plan Sainthood for Jewish-Born Martyr

COLOGNE, Germany (AP)—Roman Catholic Church authorities in West Germany have initiated canon-law proceedings to elevate to sainthood Edith Stein, a Jewish-born nun who was slain by the Nazis in the Auschwitz concentration camp.

Joseph Cardinal Frings, the archbishop of Cologne, issued an appeal to Catholics to submit any letters, diaries or sermons by Edith Stein in order to advance her case.

Church sources said the nun born in 1891, was converted to the Catholic faith after studying philosophy in the early 1920s.

She was arrested by Nazi secret police in August 1942. In the same month, she died in an Auschwitz gas chamber.

NO 'SENIOR CITIZEN'

Gene Biscailuz Hates That 'Ex-Sheriff' Tag

By GEORGE C. FLOWERS

At the age of 79, E. W. (Gene) Biscailuz finds there are two things wrong with retired life:

1. He doesn't feel retired.
2. He doesn't feel old.

A remarkable man nearing the end of a remarkable career, Biscailuz says:

"I just can't get around to feeling like a senior citizen. I suppose I don't get around as much any more. I suppose I am slower than I used to be—but I just don't feel that way."

GENE BISCAILUZ, a living link to California's Spanish ancestry, served in the sheriff's department of Los Angeles County from 1907 until 1960. From 1932 to 1960 he was sheriff. From 1930 to 1932 he was on leave as undersheriff, to organize the California Highway Patrol.

No man ever held such a law-enforcement office so long as Biscailuz, who frankly says he's never quite gotten over the feeling of being sheriff.

FOR MANY thousands of people — perhaps millions — he was the sheriff who rode the richly-trapped horse in the Rose Tournament Parade. In the field of law enforcement, however, he is known for some other things. They include: Pioneering the honor farm system for prisoners.

Organization of a crime prevention bureau.

A phenomenal record as an enforcement officer.

The latter record is based upon the fact that his department, in his later years, made as many as 173,000 arrests a year, and achieved 96-per-cent convictions.

THE CALIFORNIA Highway Patrol is one of his proudest achievements.

"I had to take a year and a half off to do it," he recalls. He was asked by the state to perform the chore.

This slowing and greying man has been fiercely proud of his Spanish ancestry.

It stems from his maternal grandfather, William Warren, a Yankee who sailed around the Horn to California and married Juana Lopez, daughter of a Spanish don.

THEIR SON, William Warren, was the first Los Angeles City marshal, in 1870, and was killed in a gun battle where the present city hall stands.

Gene's father, Martin Biscailuz, of Basque ancestry, was a city councilman and lawyer.

"I guess I joined everything worthwhile that came along," Biscailuz said. He lists the Masons, Native Sons of the Golden West, Elks, Shrine, Moose, Eagles, Foresters, Jonathan Club, Athletic Club, American Legion, and a dozen more groups.

This gregariousness, and a devotion to the chicken-and-salad banquet circuit, paid him off at the polls. When Sheriff William Traeger was elected to Congress in 1932, Biscailuz was appointed successor, then won whopping majorities in the elections of 1934, '38, '42, '50, '54 and '58.

GENE ALWAYS won in the primaries, once by the all-time-record vote total of 766,000. When a state law forced him to retire — and he's still grumpy about that — he virtually named his successor by endorsing his undersheriff, Peter J. Pitchess, the present sheriff.

"When I started this business," Biscailuz recalls, "I was studying law nights and needed some money for beans. So I hired on as a sheriff's deputy."

He was one of 27 such officers when hired Jan. 7, 1907. When he retired Jan. 1, 1960, he was leaving the command of 3,300 regular and 1,500 reserve officers, men and women.

HIS FAVORITE joke is: "I was the biggest hotel keeper in the world."

By this, he explains, he means he operated the County Jail, which houses 3,000 "guests" and processes more than 55,000 persons annually.

Biscailuz says he can't settle down to the quiet life. He and his son, Warren, live in the family home at 332 Euclid St., Santa Monica, their home since 1926. Mrs. Biscailuz died in 1950.

The ex-sheriff (how he detests that phrase) fairly snorts when he discusses the state's compulsory retirement law (70 for sheriffs).

"AS FAR AS I am concerned, I'd like to keep serving the people—that is, as long as they want me. I don't go along with the idea that a man in this job has to be young. As you get older you naturally learn more. There is no substitute for experience."

A director of the Pueblo Association of Los Angeles — a group concerned with restoring a section of the city to its appearance in the pioneering days — he has an office at 125 E. Sunset Blvd., spends Tuesdays and Thursdays there.

For 23 years Biscailuz has been county campaign chairman of the March of Dimes. He keeps busy at this.

"I STILL DO a little speaking at the luncheons," he says ruefully. "but I don't care much for it. I've been to so many of those things."

Biscailuz was born on Boyle Heights, never has lived outside Los Angeles County.

When he retired, he says, "I was a little sick — the doctor says it was hypertension. I got that licked."

"But I refused to be a retired man. I don't like it."

"The other day I was called to speak at a Senior Citizens' Day doings."

"I felt out of place."

Humphrey Viewed as Senate Leader if Mansfield Quits

By WILLIAM BROOM

U. P. Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—The ground is being prepared for a change in Senate leadership next year.

Concerned about public reaction to their disjointed performance in the current session, Senate Democrats appear willing to exchange Sen. Mike Mansfield's brand of laissez-faire leadership for a firmer hand.

Odds-on choice as his successor next year is Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, No. 2 in the present Senate command and party whip. Also slated for a high post in the new leadership lineup is Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine. He could wind up as the new whip.

Sentiment for a change is only in the development stage at present. It is based on an opinion held by many senators that Mansfield will step down voluntarily. Highly respected and liked by his colleagues, Mansfield can have the job as long as he wants it.

Nevertheless, some discontent with his leadership exists. Part of it is based on a human tendency to blame the leader for the deficiencies of his followers. Part results from the very quality senators admire in Mansfield, which is his willingness to accommodate all points of view. Part stems from his lack of toughness and inability to make his decisions stick.

"He's soft on people," said one Democratic senator.

"He overaccommodates other people to the detriment of carrying out the Senate's business in orderly fashion," said another.

IN FAIRNESS to Mansfield, another senator pointed out that he has been the victim of some erratic demands from the White House in steering its legislative program to the Congress. At times, the administration has followed student-council tactics, overloading its program with all kinds of demands. Certainly, the White House hasn't made it easy for Democratic leaders in Congress to sort out the must legislation from that which is not urgent or is impossible to obtain.

Mansfield's job has not been made easier by White House aides in another fashion.

"When things go wrong," said a third senator, "they blame Mike. When things go right, the administration takes the credit."

Sen. Humphrey's position at the threshold of leadership is the product of a steady rise in esteem among his colleagues. Southern conservatives long ago gave him their stamp of approval. He is an elder statesman among progressives and liberals, largely because they recognize that he has mastered the parliamentary arts many of them find so incomprehensible.

The present ferment for change started shortly after Democratic senators recovered from a heady binge of freedom from the autocratic rule of Lyndon B. Johnson.

AFTER JOHNSON became vice president, Mansfield moved up to the leadership from his whip's post more or less reluctantly. He was the logical successor, and nobody else at the time was in a position to offer competition.

Operating on the premise that senators were adult, responsible people, Mansfield seldom cracked the whip. This has proved to be a faulty premise. Free in an orchard of legislative green apples, the senators proved capable of no more restraint than the average schoolboy.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Algiers Rebels Oust Ben Bella

ALGIERS (AP)—A junta of guerrilla colonels forced Ahmed ben Bella's Political Bureau out of power Saturday and Ben Bella was reported planning to flee Algiers.

HASSAN

Thus only 23 days after the leftist deputy premier wrested control from Provisional Premier Ben Youssef ben Khedda, the eight-week-old nation faced a new and dangerous crisis.

All available reports indicated Ben Bella and a handful of followers were planning to leave the capital. Some reports said they would go to Oran, others to Tlemcen in Western Algeria.

The colonels' junta, consisting of the general staff of the guerrilla Wilaya (Zone) No. 4 which occupies Algiers, had no political program and the extent of its influence elsewhere in Algeria was unclear. It is reportedly directed by Col. Si Hassan, 27.

Rains Sweep Across Mid-U.S.
A drought-breaking, heat-chasing cold front moved across the parched midcontinent Saturday.

Torrential rains poured down on Austin, Tex., breaking the longest drought in 41 years. The city measured 4 1/2 inches of rainfall between midnight and 8 a.m., the first moisture in 55 days.

Showers and general rains broke out along a cold front extending from lower Michigan to the Texas coast. Some northern Michigan areas had 1 to 2 inches of rainfall.

Senate Votes $5-Billion Farm Plan
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate Saturday voted almost $5 billion to finance the nation's farm programs for another year and urged that new ways be found to combat the problem of enormous surpluses.

The measure goes back to the House which approved a different version. If it accepts Senate changes, the bill will be sent to the White House.

Four Killed as Bus Rams Car
FLORENCE, N.J. (AP)—Four persons were killed and 20 injured Saturday when a bus apparently rammed the rear of a car on the Pennsylvania extension bridge over the Delaware River.

The car burst into flames and a man, a woman and two children in the car perished.

The car registration listed the owner as Roslyn Gabor of Brooklyn, N.Y. The bus driver and 19 women passengers were injured, none seriously.

$10,000 Missing in "Suicide" Mystery
NEW YORK (AP)—Police disclosed Saturday that about $10,000 in cash and certified checks was delivered to a millionaire business executive the day before he plunged 11 stories from a hotel room in what police tentatively had called a suicide. The money has not been found.

An autopsy also left unanswered the question whether 67-year-old Herber Segal's death Friday was homicide, suicide or accident.

Shah Asks, Gets Straight Talk
Tehran, Iran (AP)—The Shah of Iran asked for some cowboy-style "good plain talk" with visiting Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson Saturday and he got it from the Texan, informed sources said.

Johnson spelled out President Kennedy's policy of eliminating defense support in all but a few countries, a cut that will reduce Iran's army by at least 15 per cent. Iran will continue to get military equipment under the aid program.

One East German Flees, One Caught
BERLIN (AP)—Despite new gunfire on the Communist side of the wall, tension in this tinderbox city appeared to be receding Saturday night after eight days of bitter East-West wrangling.

One burst of gunfire in the early morning darkness apparently was aimed at an East German People's Army soldier who made it uninjured into West Berlin. Eastern guards also halted an East German trying to swim the Landwehr Canal to West Berlin with shots from tommyguns and hauled him into a police boat.

Discounts Anti-U.S. Trade Talk

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy's special assistant on trade policy Saturday discounted the oft-repeated contention that the United States cannot compete with low-wage countries in world markets.

The White House aide, Howard C. Petersen, said the best proof to the contrary was that this country exported $20 billion worth of goods last year while importing about $15 billion.

Petersen said the $5 billion excess of exports over imports "means profits for employers and investors and it's also an enormously important contribution to that very worrisome balance of payments problem we have."

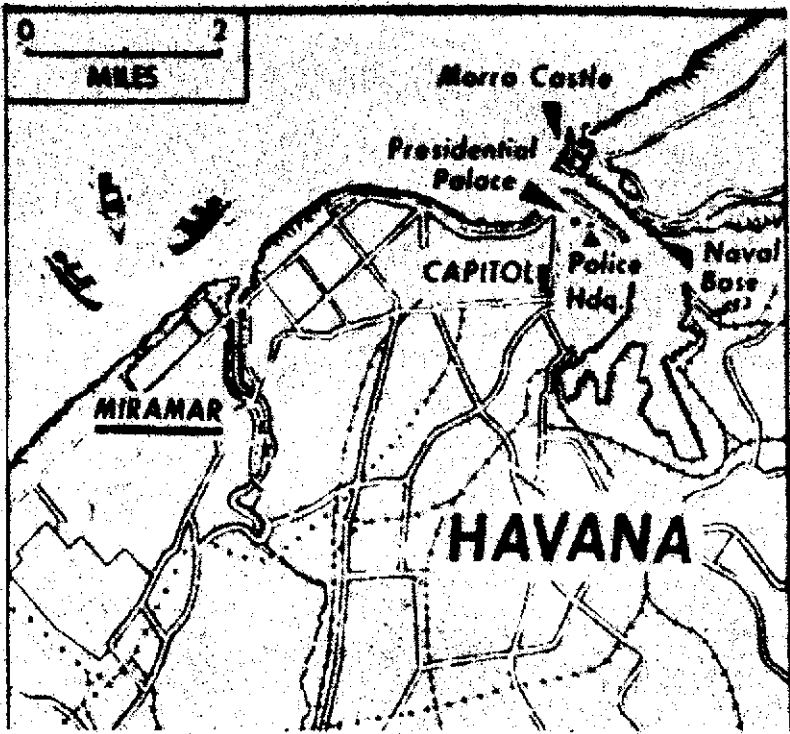

THE Philadelphia banker, on leave as the President's trade assistant, made the comments in a television interview with Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J.

Petersen said passage of the administration's trade-expansion program was vital if this country is to maintain access for its goods in the rich European Common Market area.

Petersen said the trade program is aimed at finding markets on a nondiscriminatory basis.

Williams noted that Japan recently had sent missions to Red China and Russia to seek new markets for its expanding production.

The bill to give the President authority to cut or eliminate tariffs in return for similar concessions from other countries has passed the House and is pending in the Senate Finance Committee.

Raider Describes Firing on Havana From Boats

Salvat said they fired 19 shots with the cannon and several bursts from a 50-caliber machinegun.

SALVAT SAID the first 14 shots from the cannon were fired at the Hotel Icap and the other five at the Chaplin Theater where the meeting was believed in progress.

The first hits lit up the front of the hotel and the surrounding buildings and pulled away from them till we could see chunks of wall they gave up."

Salvat said there were 23 persons involved in the raid, including himself. There were 15 in one boat and eight in breaking away from the group and moving toward us. In Havana, it was reported that damage from the raid was slight, but near-panic objective of our mission."

HE SAID his launch was swept the hotel Icap as sleep-ing guests were shaken out of bed by the bombardment. Among the hotel guests were Soviet bloc technicians who were in Cuba to help the Castro government.

Prime Minister Fidel Castro promptly blamed the United States and "mercenary agents (Cuban exiles) who operate with impunity from the coasts of Florida."

CASTRO charged that several other buildings besides the hotel were hit by the shellfire. He made no mention of any casualties.

MIAMI (UPI) — Two launches used by Cuban exiles in the shelling of two buildings on the Havana waterfront were impounded Saturday at Marathon Key, the U.S. Coast Guard announced.

No one was aboard the boats, a Coast Guard duty officer said. He said they were taken into custody "for possible violation of federal laws."

Numerous federal officers, FBI and Coast Guard officers flocked into Marathon Key to take part in the investigation.

Marathon Key is off the tip of Florida among a string of islands reaching down toward Key West.

MEXICO CITY (AP)—A Cuban student exile leader said anti-Castro units landed in Cuba before and during Friday night's naval bombardment of a Havana suburb by student raiders.

He gave no estimate of the size of such landings, but said a growing force is being aided in Cuba by farmers and workers.

Angelo Gonzalez, head of the Cuban Revolutionary students Directorate in Exile, called the naval operation the beginning of a major movement to oust the Castro regime.

HUGHES MEDICAL INSTITUTE UNDER FIRE

contribution included patents, trademarks, and good will of Hughes Aircraft. At the same time, the tool company leased to the medical institute for 10½ years certain real estate and fixed assets used by Hughes Aircraft, which had cost the tool company $26 million.

The tool company then sold to the medical institute the $74-million book value of its holdings in Hughes Aircraft. These assets consisted of cash, receivables on government contracts and inventories.

THE INSTITUTE also assumed $56 million of liabilities against the assets, most of which was for renegotiation of government contract prices. The difference, $18 million, was covered by a note the institute gave to the tool company, payable in three years at 4 per cent.

The institute then subleased to Hughes Aircraft assets it had leased from the tool company. Aircraft was to pay rent totaling $33.6 million over a 10½-year period.

In the next step, the institute transferred to Aircraft the $74-million book value of assets bought from the tool company. Aircraft assumed the $57 million of liabilities owed on those assets, and for the other $18 million, issued stock to the medical institute. This stock was to serve as collateral on the note owned to the tool company by the institute.

AT THE END of these transactions, all of which took place on Dec. 31, 1953, the institute wound up in the following position: Its "capital" was the $37,000 initially contributed by the tool company. It carried at $1 the leasehold from the tool company. The institute also had the aircraft stock, carried at $18 million, but pledged against a corresponding note liability to the tool company of $18 million.

In the ensuing years, the tool company claimed a tax deduction of $2 million because of these transactions. The $18-million note payable to the tool company was not paid and has since been extended on a year-to-year basis.

From 1954 to 1961 there was a stream of payments from Hughes Aircraft to Hughes Tool Company for the leased assets, with the Hughes Medical Institute, controlled solely by Howard Hughes, acting as the middleman.

ACCORDING TO the medical institute's tax returns, it has received $25.9 million in rent from Hughes Aircraft. Out of this, it spent $5.7 million on research, 23 per cent of its income. It accumulated $3.3 million in reserves, 12 per cent of its income. It paid to Hughes Tool Company $16.9 million, 65 per cent of its income. Included in the latter figure is $6 million in interest on the $18-million note.

Rep. Patman questioned the whole arrangement in his report, from which the above figures were obtained. As a by-product of the transactions, Patman said, national defense costs were raised by $15 million. That happened, he explained, because Hughes Aircraft paid $15 million more in rent to the institute than it would have been able to deduct for depreciation on the aircraft plants had these still been a part of Hughes Tool Company. The rent counts as a cost in figuring out the renegotiated price on Hughes Aircraft's defense contracts.

REP. PATMAN said the whole arrangement was a "ring-around-rosy" that "sounds more like high finance to me than charity."

"It doesn't look to me as if the institute met the requirements of the law that it must be organized and operated exclusively for charitable purposes," he said. "Meantime, $3.3 million of earnings have piled up in the institute on which no tax has been paid, and Toolco has gotten a $2-million charity deduction that saved it over $1 million in tax."

The Hughes Medical Institute conducts its research operation in its own laboratories associated with the University of Miami and Jackson Memorial Hospital, Miami. It employs 66 scientists and technicians. It also finances research projects in other laboratories. Most of its work has been in the fields of biochemistry and microbiology.

Seattle's Boeing Set to Strike

SEATTLE (AP) — Estimated 10,000 Boeing Co. workers of the Seattle area rejected a company contract offer Saturday and authorized leaders of the Aero Mechanics Union to call a strike "if necessary."

Other units of the union in Boeing operations elsewhere in the nation voted previously, also favoring rejection and strike.

More than 46,000 workers are involved nationally, many of them at Boeing's Wichita, Kan., plant and some at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

ABOUT 35,000 in the Seattle area would be covered by the proposed contract, of whom 24,000 are union members.

The union did not reveal the total vote but said 98.75 per cent gave approval on this ballot.

"I agree with the negotiating committee's action in rejecting the Boeing Co. proposal and authorize the committee to take strike action if necessary."

The employees involved are hourly-paid production and maintenance workers.

Little, Important Things Department Urged for Long Beach Government

By GEORGE ERES
One of the hazards of new found political office is the inheritance of the office slogan: THINK BIG. But, as any guy under 5 feet 7 inches can tell you, "It's the little things that count, too."

We're not knocking the Big Thinkers, but we think what's badly needed around here is a city Department For Handling The Little Things That Are Important.

THERE ARE a couple of things the city could turn over to a DEHT-LTTAL.

Motor boats are running onto the beach on the Peninsula where children swim. People are running about with petitions. We need an act of council to know that motor boat propellers and swimmers don't mix? Obviously, a case for the DEHT-LTTAL.

ITEM: The contractor who dug up the beach at the bay to install sewer lines forgot to put back the shower and restore the drinking faucet. As the result of a 12-year-old girl's irritation, the matter was taken directly to City Engineer Jess Gilkerson who got the shower and drinking fountain installed pretty darn quick. Jess was a whole DEHT-LTTAL in himself.

THEN THERE is the problem of fees for use of items in the public library.

The library people are partly to blame for this. They started charging fees for new books a long time ago. The city manager took the bait and installed fees for borrowing phonograph records, pictures and films.

In the year ending June 30, the circulation of records, films and pictures went to pot. The circulation of records was down 47,617 and for films 6,658 compared to the previous year. The city didn't get what it expected in income from fees and even City Manager John Mansell, who started the mess, admits that it isn't working out the way he thought it would. He just hasn't had time to do anything about it.

A DEHT-LTTAL would handle the problem in no time—just admit it was all a mistake and toss the fees into the discard—the ones for new books, too. That would get the library back on the right track—a free public library.

YOU MAY remember the story about the boss who walked into the office one day and saw everybody busy but one guy with his feet on his desk.

He turned to his assistant and said, "That's what I like to see, a man who thinks."

The DEHT-LTTAL will make all the city's department heads look good. They can sit back and Think Big, while the head of the Little Things department watches the store.

The National Air Fair at Chino Sept. 1 through 3 has by totaling $5,000 have been scheduled a revival of closed-circuit racing for participants in course midget air races.

The pint-sized planes must meet specifications originally set up for the Goodyear dog fights, parachuting, wing Trophy Races of 1947-48. The four-cylinder engines were restricted to 190 cubic inch displacement and delivered from 90 to 125 horsepower.

Plumber Permit Fee Hike to Be Debated

Proposed increases in Long Beach plumbing permit fees are scheduled for consideration soon by the City Council's ordinance committee.

Recommended by City Manager John R. Mansell, the revised fees are now being incorporated in the amendments under preparation by City Atty. Gerald Desmond's office. Then they will be referred to the ordinance committee for possible hearings at a date not yet set.

Average increase in the various charges is 25 per cent. Added annual revenue to the city is estimated at $12,000. The basic permit cost will

Laguna Beach Gets Fine Performance of 'Carmen'

By RACHEL MORTON
If every city in the United States would put on a "Festival of Opera" with performances as good as the one I heard of "Carmen" in the Irvine Bowl in Laguna Beach Friday night, our country would very soon become opera conscious, and there would be opportunity for our abundant American talent.

Our little enterprising neighbor city of Laguna, always championing the arts, is presenting "Festival of Opera" for three weekends. The fact that the bowl was sold out is evidence that Americans do love opera, even opera that is not exactly of Metropolitan status. The performance Friday night was most commendable in spite of weaknesses.

WILLIAM OLIVIS was a very professional and convincing Don Jose, torn with jealousy and love. His powerful tenor voice had a tear in it, and it was produced expertly. He sang the Flower Song with passion, abandon and beautiful quality of tone.

A petite vixen of subtle charm and allure was Margaret Roggero as Carmen. She, too, showed familiarity with the part that came from much professional experience. Her voice, a rather light one for the low range music of Carmen, had a lovely high register. But in the card scene it lacked power to convey the morbid foreboding of death. Her acting was at all times sincere and depicted truly the capricious Carmen.

John Lombardi has been heard as Escamillo with the Los Angeles Opera Co. His light baritone voice lacked bite, which weakened a role that should have been strong. MICHAELA is a naive, shy little maid, and Marilyn Interlandi made her that, but her singing was wholly inadequate. The big aria, "Je dis que rien m'empouvante," a good deal to the whole per-ability of Carol Todd is wasted in the role of Frasquita when she would make such a lovely Micaela. (Los Angeles Opera Co. and Laguna Opera take note.)

The quintette was delightfully sung and the large chorus looked well and sang with great gusto and excellent tonal quality.

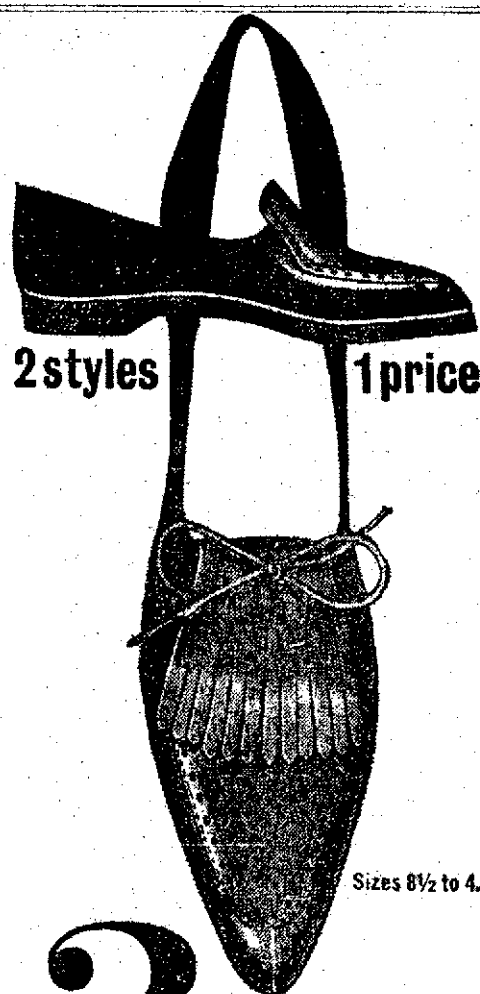

Wouk's 'Nature's Way' Given Funny, Frantic Presentation

By ROBERT C. WYDER
As a playwright, Herman Wouk is a pretty fair novelist. The management at the Magnolia Theater, which opened with Wouk's "Nature's Way" this weekend, fully realized that fact and went about making up for his deficiencies. The result is a frantic and funny theatrical presentation that is most amusing when it depends least upon the script.

The story is a mixture of satire on natural childbirth and straight comedy on natural marriage—just seven months before the baby is due. It involves a song writer, his new wife, his lyricist, his mother-in-law, and assorted theatrical types. It never really gets anywhere or makes much of a point, but it allows a lot of vigorous comings to ham it up all over the place.

Among those most adept at the hokum are a couple of old hands, Eva Raber as the wife and Pat Brown, who also directed the show, as her mother. Even when they stick to the lines of the play, they are funny, a real tribute to their talent.

GEORGE AUGUSTISON as the husband alternates between amusing only the first time, and straight reading of the lines, which are hardly amusing at all. Daird Roberts as little maid, and Marilyn Interlandi made her that, but her singing was wholly inadequate. The big aria, "Je dis que rien m'empouvante," a good deal to the whole per-

Southland Cities on Two Men, Woman Arrive From Japan in Small Ship After 57 Days at Sea

PHILADELPHIA, (AP)—Twelve cities will be honored Tuesday for outstanding public and community relations projects during the 38th annual Congress of the American Municipal Association.

Redondo Beach, Calif., and Hollywood, Fla., will get awards for helping strengthen international goodwill through sister-city programs with San Salvador, El Salvador and La Paz, Mexico, respectively.

Glendale, Calif., and Jersey City, N.J., will be honored for promoting new awareness of municipal operations through radio, television and newspapers.

Dallas and Fort Worth, Texas, will be cited for champions to increase industry and tourism.

A briny trio of seafaring adventurers, including a pretty Australian nurse from New Guinea, docked at Terminal Island Saturday after a 57-day non-stop trip from Yokohama, Japan, in a 39-foot schooner.

Skipper Josef Pachernegg, 39, a native of Austria and former German submarine pilot, declared: "The trip was so easy an old woman in a rocking chair could have done it."

REASON for the trip—"We just wanted to see things, do things, go places and be free men." He has spent the last three years in the Australian part of New Guinea running a government patrol boat.

With him is his fiancée, Benita E. Burge, 38, an Australian-born nurse from a Wewak, New Guinea, hospital where the pair met.

"Joe said come and go around the world with me, so here we are," said the dark-haired nurse, her hair coiled in tight braids against the damp sea air.

THIRD member of the barefooted, adventure-loving crew is William R. Gasson, 29, Tokyo correspondent for Britain's Reuters News Service. Bill says he went to the Tokyo docks to write a story about the trip Joe and Benita made from New Guinea.

"They said come along. I had three months of leave owing me, so here I am," said the New Zealand-born journalist.

Gasson will leave the other two here in time to take a new Reuters post in London Oct. 1. Joe and Benita plan to head for the South Seas in about a month—perhaps Tahiti.

MEANWHILE, the skipper is looking for an inexpensive dock as a refuge during their Southern California stay.

Benita said she spent a fair share of her time cooking meals on the Okeanos' tiny galley, one of three semi-separate compartments below deck. The little blue-bottomed vessel has four bunks and a deck barely wide enough to traverse on either side of the cabin.

The little twin-masted ship made the 4,500-mile voyage with no mishaps, only a heavy load of barnacles to show for the trip.

THE CREW, except for slightly weather-worn chin whiskers on the men and wind-blown hair for Benita, also came through the voyage without a scratch.

"We ran a little short on milk and biscuits," Benita reports. "But there's plenty of water, potatoes and onions left."

There was also an ample supply of New Guinea "jungle juice" on hand. The little ship followed the 43rd parallel all the way across, Skipper Pachernegg reports. "It was bloody cold at times. Seems quite warm here though," he said as he pulled up to the quarantine dock at Terminal Island Immigration headquarters.

The crew was granted six month visitor permits by the U.S. Immigration Service.

"WE GOT quite a greeting as we neared land yesterday," Gasson said. "Rockets started going out over our heads (apparently from Pt. Mugu missile launch sites). We could see their trails right over us and later heard loud explosions."

The crew managed to catch fish nearly every day during the journey to supplement their food supply.

The journey was in sharp contrast to Skipper Pachernegg's last attempt to go around the world. His 32-foot ketch, Viking, wound up on a Galapagos Islands beach, on the equator off the coast of Ecuador.

"SHE DRIFTED on one night and was wrecked. I had to walk 50 miles to civilization," the skipper recalls. "It took me over five days and I had to drink goat's blood to stay alive."

Raised in Austria, Pachernegg joined the German merchant marine at the age of 14, transferred to the German Navy in 1940 and served aboard patrol boats and one-man submarines in the North Sea during the war.

After the war, he sailed aboard Swedish freighters for eight years before going to New Guinea.

"I work long enough as a skipper to make enough money so I can keep sailing my own boat," said Joe. I hope I can get another couple to sail with us to the South Seas—to share expenses you know."

FOR MOON TRIP

Must Moonmen Learn Russian?

By ALVIN B. WEBB JR.
CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—"Vi gavareetey pa-rooskie?"

This is a phonetic phrase, passed along for the benefit of future U.S. astronauts. It means, "Do you speak Russian?"

At the rate the space race is going, it could be the first question American explorers will have to answer when they reach the moon.

The implication is that the world's leading producer of television sets, swimming pools and electric can-openers may lose the No. 1 prize in space to a nation that only a few years ago had many soldiers who thought toilets were indoor drinking wells.

Fifteen months ago, President Kennedy officially squared off the United States against the Soviet Union for the most spectacular and costly "prestige" struggle in history—a no-holds-barred race to land the first men on the moon. America's goal, 1967, and 1970 at the latest.

THE FIRST huge chunks of a 20 to 40 billion-dollar "pledge" for the moon project sent U.S. industry into action. The first of a manpower force that eventually will reach 500,000 was brought into hardness. "Paper" projects poured off drawing boards like confetti from New York skyscrapers during a parade.

And from behind the iron curtain there was a year of comforting silence, broken only by the occasional launching of an unmanned Soviet "scientific" satellite. U.S. hopes rose on the tacit inter-pretation that the silence de-scribed trouble in the Russian scientific camp.

In a way, America itself had gone into a sort of "orbit" about the moon project named "Apollo"—and was jolted rudely back to earth when a pair of silvery space-ships streaked from the Russian heartland into the skies on the mornings of Aug. 11 and 12.

FOR THREE days, Soviet "space brothers" Andrian Nikolayev and Pavel Popovich soared round and round a stunned world which had for weeks anticipated a new Russian "spectacular," and buried into separate orbits and there be assembled for flights to the moon.

It was a startling revelation—the Soviet Union apparently has decided against tackling the troublesome technical problems of building a single gigantic rocket for a "direct" shot at the moon and has shifted to the "rendezvous" principle that would permit use of smaller rockets.

This is the track that U.S. space experts, after months of shuffling around among ideas, decided upon. But for some unexplained reason, they failed to anticipate that Russia might do likewise. At least, there was little, if any, advance speculation that the Soviets would attempt a twin-orbit flight.

JFK Confident U. S. Will Catch, Pass Reds in Space Race

By HARRY SHARPE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy candidly told Americans last week the United States trails Russia in the space race and it's going to take time to catch up.

"We are second in long-range boosters," he said, mindful of the Soviet Union's historic orbiting twin cosmonauts. "We started late and we've been behind." But he was confident we will catch up and go ahead.

THE PRESIDENT told newsmen this year's space appropriation was greater than the combined total spent in the eight years of the Eisenhower administration. He said the government was working hard on the biggest obstacles to gains—more potent rockets and guidance and navigation systems.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara was equally candid and indicated he would expand military space spending even more next year to close the gap. He has just ordered development of the huge Titan III booster.

The Titan III will have three times the million-pound thrust of Russia's biggest booster and is a radical departure from rockets used to orbit American astronauts.

RUSSIA'S newest cosmonauts—Maj. Andrian Nikolayev and Lt. Col. Pavel Popovich—told a Moscow press conference that before floating to earth by parachute they were ejected from capsules which in turn had been ejected from their five-ton space vehicles. They said they didn't try to rendezvous in orbit, as reported, but at one time were only three miles apart.

The Soviet Academy of Sciences boasted that the twin flights would be followed by "automatic interplanetary stations, and then man's direct participation."

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and all Moscow accorded the cosmonauts a tremendous reception.

U. S. officials reported that Russia had resumed large scale deliveries of military technicians and equipment to Cuba, possibly including surface-to-air missiles.

THEY SAID the situation was being watched with concern. Kennedy had said earlier at a press conference that so far as he knew, no Russian troops had been landed although Cuban exile sources claimed thousands had disembarked.

The Central Intelligence Agency presumably has been keeping a close check on developments.

Communist Premier Fidel Castro has been comparatively silent recently but Radio Havana often repeats charges that Cuba must prepare for invasion by the United States.

As many as 20 Russian cargo ships have reached Cuba in the past month. Officials said much of the equipment appeared designed for building up Castro's coastal and air defenses.

BERLIN became a cold war hot spot again after West Berliners noted along the Communist "wall of shame" protesting the East German killing of a young refugee.

Russia withdrew its military commandant from four-power treaty control of the Red-encircled city and installed an East German general as military commander of East Berlin.

Allied leaders saw this as another force play to compel American, British and French occupation authorities to deal with the puppet East Germans.

President Kennedy declared forcefully that the Big Three would uphold their treaty rights. They in turn accused Russia of trying to destroy those rights. They also called on the Soviets to meet with the Allies in Berlin to discuss ways to prevent more serious incidents which might spark war.

They branded the refugee killings as "particularly revolting" and "contrary to the principles of humanity."

The President disclosed that two U.S. nuclear-powered submarines—the Skate and the Sea Dragon—made a historic rendezvous under the North Pole ice cap, last Aug. 2, then surfaced.

The Skate had come from the Atlantic and the Sea Dragon from the Pacific in a sort of cat-and-mouse electronics maneuver demonstrating revolutionary underwater defenses against Russia's rocket-carrying submarines.

The United States and the Soviet Union agreed to open direct negotiations on a treaty banning all nuclear tests. Both sides appeared to be anxious to break the existing deadlock before the United Nations General Assembly meets in New York Sept. 20.

Khrushchev has hinted he would attend. The President said if he does, "I would hope to have a chance to talk with him."

Chairman Glenn T. Seaborg of the Atomic Energy Commission, said the United States still leads in atomic weaponry, despite new Soviet tests.

Congress had adjournment fever, but Kennedy urged it take favorable action on his farm, drug control, anti-poll tax, trade and United Nations bond measures before quitting. At the same time he was reported preparing a government economy directive to ease the way for the tax cut he has promised for next year. The defense secretary has already taken steps to save $3 billion a year for five years and lower defense costs by $750 million this year.

The Senate passed a Kennedy's farm bill but its fate was uncertain in a hostile House. The Senate also reversed itself and passed a strong drug control bill in the wake of the thalidomide malformed-baby tragedy.

Senate GOP leader Everett M. Dirksen who had vigorously opposed all drug legislation, joined in the unanimous vote. Early and favorable House action was expected.

Kennedy's congressional leaders promised action on other "must" bills but it was evident some would perish in the adjournment crush. Most legislators want to go home and campaign for re-election.

The chief executive said he was considering another "non-political" trip—this time to big cities. He was in California, Colorado and South Dakota last week and had kind words for Democratic candidates. He said he was considering visits to major metropolitan areas in connection with the 25th anniversary Sept. 1 of the federal housing programs. He also said he would spend some time in late September and October on the campaign trail.

Vice President and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson arrived in Tehran, Iran, on another leg of a Middle East goodwill tour. Their first stop was Beirut, Lebanon. Johnson's mission was to assure America's friends of continued economic aid while unproductive military assistance is being reduced.

Champion's No Lumberjack

By ROBERT BECKMAN

Grizzled lumberjacks, guiding floating logs toward the mill stared in amazement as a well-dressed man jumped from an out-of-state car and began skipping across the treacherous logs.

Then they waited for the city dude to fall. "You better know how to swim," one bewhiskered veteran shouted.

The man they watched was Ray Heideman, 42, of 12834 Barlin St., Downey.

With apparent ease, Heideman skipped from one wet log to another and—with a twinkle in his eyes—tossed in a little trick step that puts the log to twirling.

HIS JAUNT through the maze of logs completed, Heideman introduced himself to the men working at the mill along the Washington highway.

"Been doing this since I was a boy," he said—and it was the understatement of the year.

Heideman, who has been twirling logs since 1935, was then a three-time international log-rolling champion on his way to the 1962 Hayward, Wis.

Now he's a four-time champion.

HEIDEMAN, a native of Eau Claire, Wis., is back home with another trophy—and $660 in cash—for placing first in the men's senior division.

Logrolling contestants are paired off and each steps onto an 18-inch-diameter log. Each wears spiked shoes. The object: to twirl the log until the opponent falls.

If after three minutes, neither has fallen, they move to a 16-inch log for eight minutes, then to a 14-inch log for 10 minutes. If there still is no winner, they move to a 12-inch log with no time limit.

"Most of the decisions—two out of three falls—come on the 14-inch log," Heideman said. "Only two of us went on to the smallest log this year."

Heideman's sons competed, too, this year and the family trophy case now needs enlarging for certain.

Ray Jr., 12, took third in the junior division, and John, 9, garnered a fourth-place medal in the 11-year-olds-and-under competition.

Said Heideman, who is athletic director at Pius X High School here:

"I guess we did pretty well—considering we don't get any logrolling practice between meets."

Mrs. America Thrives On Weekend Widow Role

Mrs. America of 1962, Mrs. Lila Masson, 39, of Detroit, Mich., has been on the go another of her sponsors — John Manville, Quaker Oats, last November and is thriving. Toni Hair Products and Tupperware Plastic Containers.

Mrs. Masson will be at Lakewood Manor, Palo Verde, and South Street, Lakewood, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. today helping to mark opening of fourth unit homes in the development. She will judge a contest to name a new floor plan created for Lakewood Manor by L. C. Major and Associates. Transistor radios will be given to the 10 persons who submit the 10 most descriptive names for the floor plan which allows for a four-bedroom home to be converted by removing walls.

MRS. MASSON is something of a weekend widow. Her personal appearances — on weekends — carry her thousands of miles. She's one of the prizes, you get a chance to see Mrs. America and judge for yourself if her eyes are really green as publicized.

"They're really green," said Mrs. Masson, "but sometimes they're more green than other times. It depends on what I'm wearing."

Leaving the family, husband Cleve; daughter, Diane, 18, and sons Tom, 13, and David, 10, for long weekends has "brought us closer together," said Mrs. Masson.

"We include the children in all our plans and tell each other our experiences. They all have a certain pride in what's happened," she said. "All of a sudden they ceremoniously assist me to my chair and open doors for me — in public anyway. "I really believe that these separations when I must leave for an appearance alone have actually made us a closer-knit family."

Auto Fines to Pay for Safer Streets

Projects to Cost $406,000

By GEORGE WEEKS

Fines collected from traffic offenders in Long Beach will pay for new traffic signals and other safety installations estimated to cost $343,892.

City councilmen have approved a list of 20 projects scheduled for completion within 12 months at widely distributed locations. With the addition of $62,500 from other public agencies, the cost of the program will top $406,000.

Total city revenues from the fines and forfeitures are anticipated at $818,892. Some $475,000 is being transferred from the traffic safety fund to the general purpose fund for street repairs and related projects.

LARGEST item on the project list is $70,000 for reconstruction of the traffic signal system at the San Diego Freeway and Bellflower Boulevard intersection. It will be reimbursed from state funds.

A $20,000 allotment will pay for modernization of traffic controls at 16 intersections by the installation of additional signal heads to aid pedestrians.

Aviation Aid Is 'Rocket Wise'

By BOB GEIVET

A technical intelligence officer with Army Ordnance in World War II, who helped direct the capture of 100 German V2 rockets, owes his current job to them.

Herbert L. Karsch, now with Newport Beach's Aerodynamic in a new post as manager of operations support, was highly impressed with the German rocketry in World War II although some of them failed to get off the launching pads.

They were an entirely new development at the time of World War II, and the Allies were both suspicious of them and much interested, he says.

THE ROCKETS demonstrated that German scientists were advanced in the exact sciences of rocketry and missiles.

Karsch believes, as do many other scientists, that Russia's capture of Germany's leading mathematical wizards and "practical scientists" spurred the Soviet leap into space.

He credits the German rockets with whetting his own interest in missiles; his part in the nation's space program grew from that.

Karsch now has had almost 20 years experience in the missile field—all because of the V2s he helped dissect and study after they were captured.

HARBOR BOOSTERS

Seek Battleship as Pier J Shrine

Permanent enshrinement of a U.S. battleship in the Port of Long Beach will be proposed Monday to the Board of Harbor Commissioners.

The Port Ambassadors, a new group of harbor boosters affiliated with the Chamber of Commerce, will seek the board's support for a move to obtain one of the historic warships from the Navy, landlock it in Pier J during the pier construction and maintain it as a permanent exhibit open to the public.

Mayor Edwin W. Wade has announced his support for the project. Rep. Craig Hosmer also has expressed interest.

"IT'S REGRETTABLE that we permitted the USS California to be broken up for scrap in 1959," said Wade. "But there are still battleships available. Getting one of them for our port would be a suitable shrine, a memorial to the Navy's earlier days."

The mayor and others expressed hope that the USS Missouri, now in reserve, will be made available. If so, the big ship would be kept intact as it was on the day it was the scene of the surrender of Japan in World War II.

Battleships believed available immediately are the Indiana and Alabama, now mothballed at Bremerton Navy Yard.

Dr. Sutter E. Kunkel, chairman of the Port Ambassadors, will head the delegation before the Harbor Board. Mayor Wade said he also expects to make an appearance if his other duties permit.

IS THERE such a thing as a Southern Californian? Byron Fish, columnist for the Seattle Times, rather doubts it.

He has written an interesting piece on the subject, inspired by the somewhat unfavorable reaction to the Seattle World's Fair attributed to people from Southern California.

He notes, at the outset, something which has been commented upon here: That Southern Californians, accustomed to Disneyland, Knott's, Las Vegas shows, etc., are a pretty sophisticated lot and for that reason were not so impressed, as some others, with what Seattle has to offer.

Going on from there, Bro. Fish has made an analysis of people around here that people around here should find interesting, regardless of agreement. From here on out, I quote Fish in the Seattle paper.

PERHAPS we had better study the question of whether there is such a thing as a Southern Californian.

To be sure, there are a number of natives of that description, but most of the population came from elsewhere. So, if there is a type that judges a World's Fair by how close it comes to being a Disneyland, one must remember that they merely collected from other states.

THEY collected so fast and in such huge numbers, they really are not Californians or even Westerners yet. How soon they will be absorbed, if ever, or develop a regional character, remains to be seen.

Meanwhile, one detects a clash between the outnumbered longtime residents and the hordes of comparative newcomers who have put California on the verge of becoming the nation's most popular state.

The influx of people keeps Southern California perpetually a region of strangers, all transplanting their own attitudes along with their baggage. Just as the United States was a melting pot for Europe, Southern California is a bubbling pot for Americans.

IT IS A common human trait for new converts to be the most fervent over whatever cause they espouse, and new residents of an area usually behave the same way.

If they move voluntarily, it is because they are "sold" on the new place being better than the old one. Barring some misfortune, their enthusiasm does not die down until they have been around long enough to take the new territory for granted.

This may explain, to some extent, why tourists from Southern California account for the highest percentage of negative reaction to the fair. That region has the highest percentage of recent converts.

They are not going to admit, so soon, that anything else on the West Coast (including Northern California) can equal what they have found.

PETE SZUCH . . . Old Cars Like New

Old Cars Are Best, He Says

Pete Szuch likes the finer things in life.

These include music—old and new—and entertainment—old and new.

But automobiles? Just the old. The 44-year-old electrician has owned many cars but the newest is a 1932 Ford Victoria.

"Old cars have something the newer ones don't," Szuch murmurs as he places an affectionate hand on the shiny Victoria.

It's shiny—inside and out—because Szuch leaves no bolt untouched in his search for rust and dirt.

Szuch, you might say, is an old-car fancier, but his heart lies with the 1928-32 models.

ACQUISITION of older cars and his careful renovation would qualify him for the Horseless Carriage Club.

"They made REAL cars from 1928 to 1932," Szuch argues. "When you have one of those models, you have an automobile."

Recently, a dealer for a top American luxury sports car came by Szuch's home, 14309 S. Grayland Ave., Norwalk, to look at Szuch's 1929 Model A sports roadster.

Two years of renovation went into the sparkling Model A.

"That fellow was so impressed," Szuch said, "that he offered me a straight swap—one of his $5,000 models for my 1929."

"Know what I told him? There's lots of models around, but not very many like mine."

U.S. Need Should Dictate Choice of Customs Site

WE AGREE WITH a recent editorial in the Wilmington Press-Journal that in all the hassle over the customhouse site one vital point has been forgotten or deliberately overlooked—the convenience, economy and needs of the federal government.

SOME UPTOWN LOS ANGELES customs brokers are up in arms because they will have to move their offices.

Mayor Sam Yorty is worried that Los Angeles will be downgraded as an "administrative center."

The Los Angeles Harbor Commission wants to develop Reeves Field.

Wherever the customhouse is located, it should primarily be for the convenience and economy of the federal government because that means for the convenience and economy of the taxpayer.

COMMISSIONER NICHOLS HAS expressed interest in securing a site that will serve both the harbor and Los Angeles International Airport, the principal areas of customs activities. This will permit customs to put the maximum number of its operations under one roof and give it maximum administrative efficiency.

Probably a location on Reeves Field would be more beneficial to Long Beach than a location on the San Diego Freeway. A location within our specific port district certainly would. These sites have been proposed.

But the Long Beach Harbor Commission has agreed to support any reasonable site within the harbor area preferred by Customs and the General Services Administration. After all, these are the experts.

THIS ATTITUDE MAKES SENSE. It is time to stop petty squabbling. Let each harbor community advance its favorite site for Nichols' consideration. But let them all agree to support the final decision.

Senate May Alter Its Work Rules

By OUR WASHINGTON BUREAU

WASHINGTON—The shame and humiliation of its performance during the present session has the Senate seriously considering some reforms in its work rules next year.

Talk of a more sensible work schedule starts every year about this time when congressmen look at the time they wasted early in the session. But this year, things are worse. The Senate is even farther behind in its business than usual, so much so, that the House of Representatives has taken a 10-day recess to give the other body a chance to catch up.

This year's tie-up started with the opera bouffe argument between two crusty old chairmen of the appropriations committees—Rep. Clarence Cannon and Sen. Carl Hayden. Money measures stacked up as they argued about where they were going to hold meetings.

Then came the filibuster against the communications satellite bill. This was followed by a three-day tie-up when the defeated liberals childishly delayed proceedings to show their resentment.

These happenings have created a climate for reform. Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) has a plan he believes the senators will accept, but he's keeping its details a secret for the time being. The Humphrey plan would designate certain days for work, certain days for recess during which members could be absent from Washington. It would allow every senator to plan his work schedule for the entire session.

Best of all, the Humphrey plan will enable senators to have a brief vacation in the summer. He points out that in 14 years in Congress, he has never been able to spend a summer holiday with his children.

THERE'S ALWAYS A political snooper from the Kremlin around whenever Russian groups visit abroad. During the recent Russia-America track meet at Stanford University, U.S. officials placed various pamphlets in the visitors' lounge. One of these, written in Russian, was titled "Questions and Answers About the United States." The Americans were pleased when all the copies quickly disappeared. They figured their guests found the pamphlets interesting reading. A few days after the Russian track stars departed, building custodians found all the pamphlets stacked away in a closet. Some member of the Russian party had obviously hidden them from the view of his team-mates in the belief they might be corrupted by subversive U.S. propaganda.

SEN. TOM KUCHEL'S office aides are currently puzzling over a reply to the following telegram which was sent at 3:38 a.m., Burbank time.

"Dear Senator: Will you please take ahold of this San Fernando Valley. It is most certainly running wild. Almost unable to close your eyes. It is being over-run by Swedes, etcetera. Burbank police have no control. Am trying to live in Burbank."

THE WAYS AND MOODS of Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) are beginning to go beyond those expected of a maverick. His colleagues in the Senate have now been driven beyond mere irritation into a state of somewhat frustrated rage. He's taking on everyone, viciously and pointlessly, according to one senator, and he has no friends.

He occupied most of the time of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the other day and disputed the right of Chairman John Sparkman to shut him up. When Sparkman interrupted Morse to point out that it was the rule that senators took only 10 minutes per round of questioning Morse demanded that the clerk read the rule in question. "Perhaps it is only the rule of courtesy," Sparkman, the soft-spoken Alabamian replied. That, of course, made no impression.

Meany Called Reuther a Liar in Tiff Over CIO's Hellstein

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Drew Pearson is on a news tour of European trouble spots. In his absence, his column is written by his associate, Jack Anderson.)

WASHINGTON—George Meany, the grizzled old curmudgeon of the labor movement, uttered such a deep-throated growl in Chicago last week that the echoes were picked up by the press. Reporters heard he had called his No. 2 man in the AFL-CIO, Walter Reuther, a "liar."

More out of propriety than repentance, Meany felt obliged to deny the report. What really happened: he didn't call Reuther simply a "liar," but also used an unprintable prefix.

The name-calling encounter took place in Meany's hotel room between sessions of the AFL-CIO executive council. Flanked by David Dubinsky of the Garment Workers and Al Hayes of the Machinists Union, Reuther called upon Meany to name Packinghouse Workers boss Ralph Hellstein to the executive council.

"You know why I'm here, George," began Reuther. "Ralph Hellstein's friends would like to see him on the executive council."

"I won't go along with that," growled Meany. "Hellstein will be elected to the council over my dead body. He's too left-wing for me."

"That's a horrible slur on a leader who has done so much to clean his union of radical elements," retorted Reuther. He reminded Meany of the merger agreement between the AFL and CIO and that the executive council would be balanced.

Reuther claimed that a "CIO vacancy" existed, that CIO leaders had "unanimously nominated" Hellstein, and that Meany had no right to veto their choice.

"You don't have to tell me about the AFL-CIO merger agreement. I helped to draft it," snorted Meany. "I'm not opposed to the CIO filling this vacancy, but I am opposed to the selection of Hellstein. I think you personally rigged this nomination to embarrass me."

"That isn't true, and you know it!" shot back Reuther. "You're a G-d-d- liar!" roared Meany.

Reuther started to rise from his chair, his fists clenched. "I won't take this abuse!" he shouted.

But Dubinsky and Hayes leaped to their feet and stood between the nation's top two labor leaders.

"You shouldn't have said that, George," they chided. "Well, he called me one, too," growled Meany.

SENATE Leader Mike Mansfield has served private notice that he will make a motion to force a vote on Thurgood Marshall's nomination to the U.S. Court of Appeals unless South Carolina's Sen. Olin "The Solon" Johnston acts on the nomination at once. Mansfield threatened to intervene personally after Johnston had adjourned his subcommittee for the fifth time without taking up the Negro leader's appointment.

House GOP Leader Charlie Halleck recently cornered his Indiana colleague, Congressman Bill Bray, in a House corridor and belabored him for not voting the straight Halleck line. Charlie growled that it was embarrassing to him, as Republican leader, to have a member of his own Indiana delegation straying from the party line. But Bray cut him short. "You vote your way," he snorted, "and I'll vote mine."

President Kennedy and Sen. Jim Eastland of Mississippi have nothing in common except the coincidence that they both belong to the Democratic party. Yet they worked closer together than a couple of pea pickers to get a drug bill through the Senate. Earlier in the year, Eastland promised the President a drug bill. The Mississippi senator didn't concern himself about the details, but it became a matter of honor with him to get a bill passed.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Researchers Will Hunt Ways of Putting Disabled to Work

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—A program for the expenditure of $313,000 to conduct pilot experiments on the rehabilitation of disabled persons on the public assistance rolls was announced recently. The state will put up $77,000 and the federal government $236,000.

While no one is naive enough to believe that the problem of indigent disabled persons will be solved by this project, it nevertheless is a step in the direction of ridding the relief rolls of at least some individuals who will be better off, happier and better citizens if they are earning their own livings.

The program fits in with several other attempts, not only on the part of the state, but also the federal government, to put persons back in productive enterprise rather than have them remain as wards of the taxpayers.

It also fits in with what Samuel Leask, Jr., administrator of the Health and Welfare Agency, is attempting to accomplish in the welfare field. Leask's efforts are directed toward assisting those unfortunate enough to need state charity to regain their places in society through productive work.

Rehabilitation of the disabled is somewhat of a combined state project. To start the project, counselors will be assigned to the welfare offices in Sacramento, San Francisco, Santa Clara, Fresno, San Bernardino and San Diego counties. Three counselors will be assigned to Los Angeles County.

These counselors, the Vocational Rehabilitation Service, which is under the state Department of Education, will review applications for public assistance to determine if there is a disability problem contributing to the indigency of the applicants. If such evidence is found, the case will be taken by the Rehabilitation Service, which will provide medical and vocational diagnosis, to determine how best to return the applicant and his family to self-supporting status.

Another program of assisting people to regain their place in a productive society is being carried on by the state Department of Employment. This concerns unemployed persons who are out of work because automation has interfered with their vocation.

The department plans to provide instruction and classes in various schools to assist these people to learn new skills. Thus, instead of continuing to ladle out millions of dollars monthly to support the non-producers, the state finally is taking some steps to assist them with instruction and encouragement in something aside from money.

Soviet Russia Is Flagrantly Violating Monroe Doctrine

WASHINGTON—The Soviet government is flagrantly violating the Monroe Doctrine, which declares that no European government may establish a foothold or acquire any territory in the Western hemisphere beyond what had already been established prior to 1823. This has been a basic principle of American foreign policy under all administrations since that time. Now, however, the Soviet Union has landed military personnel and equipment in large quantities in Cuba and will maintain a base under its control just 90 miles from this country.

President Kennedy has made it clear in public statements heretofore that, while the United States may consult with the Organization of American States, this country is nevertheless free at any time to take unilateral action to deal with any violations of the Monroe Doctrine.

The facts about the latest operations in Cuba have been verified to the satisfaction of the U.S. Department of State. Here is what actually has happened:

1. Between 3,000 and 5,000 Soviet personnel arrived in Cuba in five Soviet passenger vessels between July 27 and July 31.

2. Eleven cargo ships of the Soviet Union arrived during the same period and unloaded large crates at the ports of Havana, Matanzas, Bahia de Nipe, Bahia Honda, and Mariel. This was accomplished during the night hours under strict security conditions.

3. Soviet personnel did all the unloading. 4. Eyewitnesses saw empty trucks lifted into the holds of the various ships, where they were loaded and covered with tarpaulins. They were then hoisted back on to the docks and driven away by Soviet personnel.

5. Eyewitnesses reported seeing tanks, communications trucks, and large truck-trailers carrying crates about 40 feet long. All indications are that military hardware and communications equipment formed a large part of the cargo. Crews of American airplanes, flying over the ships on their way to Cuba, also observed the military nature of the equipment.

6. Only one of the five Soviet passenger ships arrived openly, and it was ceremoniously welcomed by Cuban government officials. It carried about 400 genuine agricultural experts and technicians, who were heralded as coming to assist in the agricultural development of Cuba. The other four vessels, however, arrived secretly at night, and these carried Soviet military personnel.

7. At least 15 additional ships from the Communist bloc, containing more of the same kind of cargoes and personnel, are on their way to Cuba.

President Kennedy knew all about this when he referred briefly at his Wednesday press conference to the landing in Cuba of "supplies and technicians of a rather intensive quantity in recent weeks." He said that they came from the Communist-bloc countries. Asked what the significance of it was, the President answered: "We are examining it now."

Actually, the Soviet military officers will train the Cuban Army just as they have done in the case of the North Vietnam Army in Southeast Asia.

The Monroe Doctrine—first proclaimed during the administration of President Monroe because of efforts of Russia and other countries to colonize certain portions of the Western hemisphere—declared, in effect, that any attempt by a European power to establish a foothold in any country in this hemisphere not already colonized would be regarded as an act of aggression and as "dangerous to our peace and safety."

THE COUNTRIES OF Latin America, by resolution, in recent years have concurred in the Monroe Doctrine as a hemispheric policy, but the question of how it should be enforced has never been decided. That's why President Kennedy made it clear in a public statement last year that the United States feels free to proceed on its own if the Latin American states do not wish to join in any co-operative action against an aggressor.

The landing of military supplies and personnel is a natural sequel to the setting up of Communist party personnel inside the civilian as well as the military departments of the Cuban government itself.

FROM THE STANDPOINT of international law, the United States has every right to land troops, take possession of Havana, and occupy the country, unless the Cuban government answers satisfactorily the request of the U.S. government that all Soviet military personnel be sent home and that no further shipments of military supplies be sanctioned by the Havana authorities.

There may be some connection between the Berlin crisis and the Soviet activities in Cuba. It may be that Soviet Premier Khrushchev is testing the United States. If he finds the Washington government "soft" and disinclined to take any countermeasures, the same procedure of infiltration by Soviet "advisers" and "technicians" may be followed in other countries in Latin America as part of a planned takeover of those countries. For this reason, it would indeed be a surprise if President Kennedy does not take advantage of the opportunity now afforded this country under international law and the Monroe Doctrine to safeguard the interests of the United States.

Reader Comments on Nixon Articles

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following are extracts from letters to the editor relative to the series of articles by James R. Phelan on the Hughes Tool Co. loan to Donald Nixon, brother of Richard Nixon, ex-Vice President and current gubernatorial candidate.)

EDITOR:

I resent these articles terribly. I think Gov. Brown is a poor governor and now that we have a chance for a man of Nixon's calibre, you knock him.

MRS. C. B. WILLIAMS

I CAN SEE no reason to try to link Richard Nixon in any deal, good or bad, in which he had no part. True, some one in his headquarters made a boo-boo and by a stretch of the imagination it might be charged to Nixon, but even that didn't implicate him in any questionable transaction.

J. L. MURYHEY

CONGRATULATIONS to Mr. Phelan. Much has been done by the Republican party and Mr. Nixon himself to make him seem as clean as the driven snow. Now the truth has been brought out and Richard Nixon can't deny he was involved in this loan to his family by a large government contractor. This was a wonderful job in getting the facts.

a few digs on the way he gloated over balancing the budget with money he did not have, but thought he would get from amendments that did not pass. Jarvis, Jarvis Just Sound Alike

EDITOR: In your Aug. 15 edition you printed a letter from me in which I mentioned the fact that Howard Jarvis is running as a write-in candidate for the U.S. Senate against Richard Richards and Thomas Kuchel.

Adjacent to this item was an editorial in which the name of Sen. Jacob Javits of New York was mentioned. Just for the record, I would like to point out that these are two entirely different men (as different as night and day) and that the similarity of names is the only similarity between them.

Howard JARVIS is running against Kuchel and Richards. Jacob JAVITS is, unfortunately for the Republican Party, already a U.S. Senator.

Languages in the News

A leading British space authority has pointed out that Telstar, having been launched by Americans (who speak more or less the same language as the British), has given English a tremendous impetus toward eventual acceptance as a world language.

Other projected world languages are still being used, with varying success. Two important ones are Esperanto, based on Latin and the Romance languages, with Teutonic, Slavic and Greek additions, applied to an easy grammar, and Interlingua, based on Latin elements common to Western European languages.

Here, for space age use, is how to say "We hope Americans will be the first on the moon." In Esperanto and Interlingua.

Esperanto: Ni speras ke lan amerikanoj estos laj unuaj vizitantoj sur la luno. Interlingua: Nos spera que americanos va esser le prime vizitantes al luna.

A copy of the Berlitz "Diner's Dictionary" will be mailed to anyone submitting a question used in "Languages in the News."

JUDY GARLAND SPEAKS OUT

Not the Tragic Figure I'm Painted, She Says

(Editor's Note: Judy Garland is one of the most frequently written-about stars in show business. What she herself feels about life in the spotlight is told in the following first-person story, written exclusively for The Associated Press.)

By JUDY GARLAND

I love my career. I want to say this because I'm always being painted a more tragic figure than I am, and I get awfully bored with myself as a tragic figure.

I wouldn't have been anything but an entertainer. With all the troubles, with the stumbling and falling on the way, the rewards are still so great.

If you happen to be a success, you meet writers, politicians, people in the arts, people with stimulating ideas in many places. It's a marvelous opportunity to lead a broad existence.

As a performer, I love the enthusiasm audiences have shown me. You can't blame me—we all want to prove ourselves, and I've had appreciation shown to me in the most inspiring, spontaneous ways.

NOW I LOOK at my three fine children and I wonder whether I would want them to be entertainers, too. Applause alone doesn't sustain you at 3 a.m., when you can't sleep.

But even if my children understood this, could I stop them in their choice of career? I don't think there's much I could do—or would do. I'd be a damned fool to discourage them if they wanted badly to be actors.

They've been around theater people all their lives. It's inevitable that they'd think of the stage and screen for themselves, if they're born talented. If they have the desire to sing and dance and entertain, it would be most terrible to have that smothered by a parent. I would never be a mother who wants to be the star of the family, with no competition from her children.

HOW THEN COULD I help them prepare for show business, if they chose to enter it?—as Liza, the eldest, has already. I used to think the best thing is to try to keep their lives, up to a certain age, as normal as possible. But how the heck can it be completely normal when they travel all over with me? Yet I believe they have been helped by the security of being with their mother. That is better than the best boarding school or a home full of servants—and no mother.

I would like to live in London in summers and New York in winters so that the children will be educated in New York. Education is, I feel, fundamental to their future. I first went out on a stage when I was 3 and have been at it pretty steadily ever since. That didn't happen to my children, fortunately, and I wouldn't want them on a stage at 8 or 10 or 12, either.

LORNA AND JOEY, my younger children, will go to school in New York, but Liza, who's 16 now, will go to study at the Sorbonne. She will take history, languages and even study sewing and cooking—things that I think are necessary to a young girl who wants to grow into an attractive woman. As long as she's going into theatrical work, her education should first embody all that, before everything narrows down to the theater.

Finally, it comes down to a matter of talent. Liza has been studying ballet since she was a child and loves it. Last year she spent the summer season at Hyannis, Mass., as an apprentice in summer stock—painting scenery, moving props, sweeping the stage, working hard. She seems to like the theater more than the movies.

LORNA, WHO'S 9, is the singer of the family. She has a terrific voice. Joey—he's only 7 and you can't tell with boys. He might turn out to be an engineer. Right now he's only just finished the first grade of school and he's just a nice fellow.

But if they approach acting, I would want them to be aware of the responsibilities of a career and the little hurtful things that can happen. They have to be taught what true professionalism is—good manners at work, thinking of other people, your co-workers in a production. There are people who have been acting for years and have never achieved this. I may be many things people disapprove of but I have always tried to be a true professional.

So if they are talented, you teach them and encourage them and give them confidence. If they are not talented, get them into another line quick. It's difficult enough when one has talent. When one hasn't, it's too heartbreaking.

SINGER-ACTRESS Judy Garland and children: Liza Minnelli, 16, daughter by a previous marriage; Joey, 7, and Lorna, 9, children by marriage to Judy's estranged husband, Sid Luft.

Big Year for Dogs in Movies

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It's official, Hollywood has gone to the dogs.

The American Humane Association reports that 2,676 animals appeared in Hollywood movies during June. The Screen Actor's Guild, meanwhile, noted a depression exists for its human members.

Big upsurge for the animal activity was Paramount's "Hawaii," where baby elephants and similar African stars shared equal billing with John Wayne.

Even Jackie Gleason in "Papa's Delicate Condition" had to compete in scenes with elephants, chimpanzees, and the like in a circus scene.

But most unusual activity at Paramount was for "Hud Bannion," starring Paul Newman. The script called for 40 Texas buzzards.

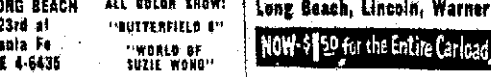

And then there's "The Pigeon That Took Rome."

HENNING BODENHOFF MUSES OVER SOUVENIRS OF COLORFUL CAREER SERVED IN DANISH UNDERGROUND

He's Been War Hero and a Peace Fighter

By MOLLY BURRELL

FULLERTON — At 38, Henning Bodenhoff has had a distinguished military career, survived Nazi torture and gained international acclaim as a peace officer with the United Nations.

Now in Sunny Hills in Fullerton, he is writing a book, and enjoying a 14-month old son and the home he never had time for during his action-packed life.

Bodenhoff, seventh generation of a family whose sons have served in the elite Danish King's Guard, joined the Guard at 18, was imprisoned and tortured by the Germans in 1943 for his work with the Danish underground, escaped and continued his work with the underground, became a top officer with NATO, served as UN peace officer during two crises in the Middle East.

HIS DECORATIONS from 13 countries tell only part of the story.

He has tramped the deserts of Arabia, dined on lamb's eyes and acrid Bedouin coffee, helped relocate thousands of refugees from the Iron Curtain, mastered five languages, and helped hundreds of victims of Nazi oppression escape from Germany and Denmark.

"You have heard many stories of the resistance movement and its heroes, but I think there were really no heroes. Without the help of hundreds of little people, each doing an im-

East Texas Oil Scandal in Making

By PATRICK CONWAY
AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — While the Billie Sol Estes case has been stealing the headlines, a scandal has been building up in east Texas that could make Estes's manipulations look like a tempest in a petty cash box.

This scandal involves the slanted drilling of oil wells to someone else's lease. There is no clear indication of how long it has been going on, or how widespread it is or how much oil has been stolen.

But it involves the East Texas Oil Field, the biggest in the western hemisphere, the nearby Hawkins Field and Webster Field. Webster Field is southwest of the East Texas Field, in Harris County or the city of Houston.

Texas Atty. Gen. Will Wilson estimates the value of the oil stolen from slanted wells is in the millions of dollars.

FROM 1895 through June 30, 1962, a total of 310,614 age factory work week. Standard & Poor's stock market index, retail sales, durable goods orders, initial claims for unemployment insurance and prices of industrial materials.

BUSINESSMEN were cheered by the statement of Semon E. Knudsen, vice president of General Motors Corp., the world's largest manufacturing company, that in his opinion there will be no recession in 1963.

He predicted that the automobile industry will sell 7,000,000 cars this year and next year.

Responding to good news, the stock market staged a vigorous rally and climbed above the level at which it stood before the "Black Monday" crash of May 28 — the worst fall since 1929.

According to Wilson, there are other forms of the skulduggery in the fields. Defense Department had One is the "Granddaddy awarded the prime contract Well." It is a producing well for the Titan III space launched in by plastic pipes to a vehicle to Martin-Marietta number of dry holes.

The dry holes draw oil is expected to cost $800 from the "Granddaddy Well" million. The market leader and are thus made to look like producers. The reason for this is that there is a legal production quota for every oil well.

Legally, only the "Granddaddy Well" has a quota. But its quarterly dividend from 75 cents to 50 cents.

T. F. PATTON, Republic president, said his firm, "like other companies in the steel industry, has been caught in a squeeze between incessantly rising labor and other costs on the one hand and conditions which have prevented the company from obtaining relief through higher prices well out of a good oil well for its products on the other."

He said the profit squeeze well produces less than 20 barrels of oil a day but it can't, both because of legal production every day in competitive conditions and the display of power exhibited by the federal government, to that produces more than 20 barrels a day can produce only eight days a month. It by us last April.

That the scars from the price battle between the Kennedy administration and steel producers remain deep also was evident in a statement by Avery C. Adams, chairman of Jones & Laughlin Steel Co. He cited President Kennedy's statement in September that the steel industry can look forward to good profits, and said: "History has already proven that the President's statement with respect to the steel industry's potential profits, based as it was upon the theoretical and academic recommendations of his Council of Economic Advisers, was not in accord with the facts."

THE STEEL INDUSTRY boosted its production last week but still lagged at about 55.5 per cent of capacity. The output of 1,616,000 tons was up 2.4 per cent from the previous week. Orders indicated that improvement in September will be slight because automakers still have big stocks and will be working them off.

Automobile production still was very low this week — about 7,000 passenger cars — as the changeover to 1963 models moved slowly. American Motors and Ford joined Chrysler in turning out 1963s.

The railroads and labor were locked in battle on two fronts. Labor emphasized the likely loss of thousands of jobs in the proposed merger of the New York Central and Pennsylvania railroads in cross-examination of James M. Symes, Pennsylvania chairman, at an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing.

Railroads asked a federal court to speed action on a labor-obtained injunction which is blocking the job cuts and new work rules the lines want put in effect. The railroads urged a ruling by the end of September.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Bright '63 Auto Outlook Sparks Economic Gains

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The economic panorama took on some brighter hues this week but still was marred by smudges.

Rises by business indicators, a prediction of banner sales of automobiles in 1963 and an advancing stock market provided encouraging signs.

A laggard steel industry, beset by a profit squeeze, and spotty performances in scattered segments of the business world were a drag.

Statistics indicated the trend of the economy was predominantly upward in July. With reports on 30 barometers measuring various sectors of the economy still incomplete, the Census Bureau said 10 were up, six were down and one was unchanged. In June, 15 of the 24 reported were down, eight were up and one was unchanged.

These indicators chart such things as housing starts, average factory work week, Standard & Poor's stock market index, retail sales, durable goods orders, initial claims for unemployment insurance and prices of industrial materials.

By JERRY WYNN

Albie Pearson is a symbol of the success of the Angels this season.

A pawn (5-foot-5 1/2, 141 pounds) in a game of brawn, L'il Albie makes up in hustle what he lacks in muscle. Going into Saturday's game, he is batting .274, leads the American League in runs scored with 98, and is second in fielding among centerfielders with one error in 128 games.

And as Pearson has made his diminutive presence felt in a demonstrative manner, so have the Angels, those brash babies, squirted the bottle in the faces of the proud old papas of the senior circuit.

If you were given the chance, Albie, would you trade bodies with Frank Howard?

"Absolutely. He's got so much more to work with than me. I have no potential of being more than I am now. He has the potential to be a super-star."

Are there advantages to being small in baseball?

"None whatsoever. Being small in this game is nothing but hard work and heartache. It's fine for a jockey, but not for a ballplayer."

But weren't such players as Eddie Stanky, PeeWee Reese and now Nellie Fox very successful despite their small size?

"Yes, but they were very much bigger than I, taller and heavier. I can't model myself after anyone except a little leaguer."

Do you take much of a razzing from players on other clubs?

"Not so much any more, and it's all good-natured. They call me a refugee from a race track, and yell to get out of the hole, and things like that. It's just in fun."

With your 23-inch strike zone, do you go to bat looking for a base on balls?

"No. I try to make it conscious in the pitcher's mind that he has a small target. But I think most pitchers realize now that I can hit, so they come in to me as any other hitter."

Who are the toughest pitchers for you to hit?

"Jim Kaat of Minnesota. Whitey Ford of the Yanks and Ray Herbert of the White Sox. I have the most trouble against a lefty with a good fast ball tailing in or a good curve going away."

What is the toughest play for you to make in centerfield?

"A line drive hit directly overhead."

Who do you consider the top fielding centerfielders?

"Jim Pierson is probably the best in this league today. He lacks a real good arm, but he has good range. Mantle, when he is right, is good, and so is Jim Landis. The best I've ever seen is Al Heist. I played with him in the minors. I think he is with Houston now."

Did you have an idol among ballplayers?

"Ted Williams. He's the greatest hitter I ever saw and a great guy."

You probably are the No. 1 golfer in baseball. Are the baseball and golf swings similar?

"Very much so even though one is parallel and the other vertical. The hip turn, pivot and hand action are much the same."

Do you have ambitions to become a pro golfer?

"Absolutely. I'd like to join the tour some day, but I need a lot of work on my game before then. There never has been a left-hander who has won a PGA tournament you know."

Which do you consider tougher, pro golf or major league baseball?

"Baseball. You have to do so many more things like run, throw, hit, slide. In golf, it is the fundamental swing that counts. I may get an argument on this from Jerry Barber."

Is there one big reason for the success of the Angels this season?

"No, not one. It's a solid front office, a solid manager, a solid everything. This team picked up the spirit right off the bat and has been playing great baseball."

What has been your biggest thrill in baseball?

"Being an Angel."

Vikings Beaten in Thriller

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (UPI)—The St. Louis Cardinals stormed 80 yards early in the fourth quarter for the clinching touchdown to edge the Minnesota Vikings, 24-21, in a thrilling National Football League exhibition game before 15,500 Saturday night.

Trailing 21-17 after three periods, the Cardinals regained the lead when quarterback Sam Elcheverry hit end Sonny Randall on a 34-yard scoring pass with 3:15 gone in the final stanza.

Both teams missed scoring opportunities after that.

THE VIKINGS, behind 17-7 after the Cards' Billy Triplett returned the second half kickoff off 91 yards for a touchdown, struck twice in the third period to go in front.

Quarterback Lee Grosscup, obtained two weeks ago by the Vikings and making a bid to back up the ailing Fran Tarkenton, threw scoring passes of 30 and 32 yards for the Minnesota touchdowns. He first hit Tom Adams and later connected with Gordie Smith.

Gerry Perry's 39-yard field goal in the first quarter and Etcheverry's 17-yard scoring strike to Randall had given St. Louis a 10-0 lead halfway through the second quarter.

THE VIKINGS cut it to 10-7 by halftime, however, when a tremendous rush on Etcheverry forced a fumble on the Cardinal 20-yard line.

The ball tumbled into the end zone and Minnesota tackle Paul Dickson won a scramble for possession.

Green Bay Comes From Behind on Taylor's Runs, Overcomes Bears

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—

The Green Bay Packers, down 14-7 at halftime, rallied on the churning legs of Jim Taylor to score four times in the second half and defeat the Chicago Bears, 35-21, in the 13th Midwest Shrine Game at County Stadium Saturday night.

The Packers all-pro fullback, held to 18 yards before intermission, sparked the Packers to their 17th consecutive exhibition game victory since 1959. The "Bayou Blaster" scored two touchdowns and kept the sputtering Packers moving by picking up vital yardage throughout the second half.

Taylor's 26-yard burst

The Packers emerged for the third quarter looking like they would run the Bears back to Chicago. The Bears took the kickoff, but on second down quarterback Bill Wade was hit and fumbled. End Willie Davis scooped up the ball and rumbled 15 yards to the Bear eight. Taylor plunged over from the two and Paul Hornung converted to make it 14-14 with 3:41 gone in the second half.

The Packers went ahead, 21-14, after a Bear punt, quarterback Bart Starr passed 18 yards to Lew Carpenter and a Hornung converted with 11:30 gone.

The Bears tied it up near the end of the quarter when linebacker Larry Morris picked off a Starr screen pass and sped 56 yards for a touchdown. Roger LeClerc's kick made it 21-21. Shortly afterward, Taylor scooted 26 yards and the Packers had a lead they never relinquished.

Green Bay's last tally was scored on a one-yard plunge by rookie Earl Gros.

The Packers emerged for the third quarter looking like they would run the Bears back to Chicago. The Bears took the kickoff, but on second down quarterback Bill Wade was hit and fumbled. End Willie Davis scooped up the ball and rumbled 15 yards to the Bear eight. Taylor plunged over from the two and Paul Hornung converted to make it 14-14 with 3:41 gone in the second half.

The Packers went ahead, 21-14, after a Bear punt, quarterback Bart Starr passed 18 yards to Lew Carpenter and a Hornung converted with 11:30 gone.

The Bears tied it up near the end of the quarter when linebacker Larry Morris picked off a Starr screen pass and sped 56 yards for a touchdown. Roger LeClerc's kick made it 21-21. Shortly afterward, Taylor scooted 26 yards and the Packers had a lead they never relinquished.

Green Bay's last tally was scored on a one-yard plunge by rookie Earl Gros.

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—

The Green Bay Packers, down 14-7 at halftime, rallied on the churning legs of Jim Taylor to score four times in the second half and defeat the Chicago Bears, 35-21, in the 13th Midwest Shrine Game at County Stadium Saturday night.

The Packers all-pro fullback, held to 18 yards before intermission, sparked the Packers to their 17th consecutive exhibition game victory since 1959. The "Bayou Blaster" scored two touchdowns and kept the sputtering Packers moving by picking up vital yardage throughout the second half.

Collegians Open Grid Workouts

College football springs upon the crowded sports calendar this week when practice opens all across the country.

From Long Beach State to USC and UCLA to the Big Ten to the Ivy League, it's that time of year again. Almost all teams begin drills Saturday.

Long Beach State has the shortest preparation time, opening at home against the San Diego Marines Sept. 15. The USC Trojans debut Sept. 22 against Duke in the Coliseum and UCLA doesn't get into action until Oct. 6, hosting Ohio State.

USC COACH John McKay, with a statement that "we'll be better than last year" when Troy missed the Rose Bowl by the margin of a narrowly-missed field goal, will greet about 70 candidates Friday afternoon for a pre-practice Camera Day for newspaper photographers. McKay will have 17 lettermen.

The Bruins will turn out for photographers Friday morning and coach Bill Barnes has invited 74 candidates in vie for positions as UCLA switches to the T formation from the single wing.

But, if it's up front where it really counts, then the Vikings may not let any team filter through them this fall. "We'll have as big a line as you would want," admits the LBCC mentor, "and there is good depth there, too."

To back this up, of 18 lettermen returning, 14 are line-men.

And that's not even counting first year men who include Poly's Jeff Smith (252), El Rancho and Shrine end Frank Mazzotta (190), Wilson's second team all-city tackle Dale Eckdahl (210) and tackle Ken Brewer (225), who next to Mike Giers was rated the top linemen on Poly High's great team of 1960. Brewer didn't play last year.

Stangeland will greet close to 65 candidates Saturday morning at 7 o'clock when fall drills get under way. Two-a-day drills will be held until school starts Sept. 11.

Two big problems at LBCC this season, according to Stangeland, are:

1. Team speed. ("We won't have anyone capable of going 90 yards on an opener up the middle like Dee (Andrews) or

Fishing and Heart Attacks

There's an old proverb that Allah doesn't deduct the hours we spend fishing. Just where it started, I don't know, but I doubt that the Mohammedans had anything to do with it. Possibly some smart Madison Avenue press agent dreamed it up to sell more fishing tackle.

Most of us know that the proverb isn't exactly correct. Sure, we know that doctors often recommend fishing for relaxation and for mental therapy. And there's no doubt that they are right. However, the thing doctors don't recommend is a tiresome fishing trip for patients who have had heart attacks.

One death locally and numerous heart attacks on albacore specials put the issue into rather sharp focus this year. Even the U.S. Coast Guard had its hands full at the start of the albacore fishing season. Why albacore? Because those longfins can cause more excitement than any other fish that swims in the ocean.

If every fisherman were to evaluate his own capability, or if he let some reputable doctor do it for him, there probably would never be any distress calls from fishing boats.

That is the sole purpose of this column—not to keep any one from going fishing, but to warn each angler that the stimulation of real exciting fishing can be harmful to persons with severe heart cases.

ANGLERS ALSO ARE INCLINED to forget their ages and capabilities when they journey to the mountains, grab a rod and reel and plunge headlong into such a place as the Owens River Gorge. It's easy going down, but climbing out often results in a call for an ambulance and stretcher bearers.

You can't go from sea level to altitudes ranging up to 10,000 feet and expect to exert yourself physically just as you would at home.

The excitement of marlin fishing was apparent at Kailua-Kona in the recent fourth annual Hawaiian International Billfishing Tournament. Fred McNamara, 51, a famed Honolulu angler, suffered a heart attack after boating a 430-pound blue. Despite careful attention at the hospital, he suffered two other attacks and died.

On the other hand, Len Heard, 81, a member of one of New Zealand's teams, hooked and boated an ahi (yellowfin tuna) weighing more than 200 pounds and showed no apparent strain.

Not only that, but Len was on a honeymoon with his second bride. When the genial, heavy-set white-haired New Zealander was introduced at the awards banquet, the crowd at the Kona Inn stood and cheered him.

Make sure that your heart's all right. If so, go albacore fishing; if not, choose a boat where there will be less excitement, or sit on a pier.

WILLIAM FARLEY, 333 W. 10th St., complains about California requiring ocean fishing licenses. Fresh from a trip back to his native New Jersey, he says that no state fronting on the Atlantic makes its residents or visitors fork up for a license and he doesn't think California should do so either. Also, he adds, one should be allowed to carry home all the fish he can catch.

My only suggestion is that Mr. Farley visit the DFG laboratories on Terminal Island and find out what the Department of Fish and Game does with our ocean license money. As a starter, discover what happened to the kelp bass several years ago.

Douglas worker W.L.C. is quitting this paper after 18 years and subscribing to an out-of-town sheet because I rode a 707 jet to Hawaii instead of a DC8. He thinks I should ride only in those products made by Douglas.

Surely, we here at the I, P-T favor Douglas and all other local companies, but not to the extent he expects. All airlines advertise in these newspapers.

I might add that I've ridden DC3s, DC4s, DC6s, DC6Bs, and DC8s, in addition to numerous other types of planes. Also, W.L.C., the outdoor editor of that paper you're planning to take rides with me on the same airplanes. If we didn't, we might never reach some areas.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS—Dr. J. Gordon Bateman, a member of the Southern California Tuna Club, has two reasons to be jubilant today. He has received word from the International Game Fish Association that his 337-pound black sea bass, caught a couple of months ago at Catalina Island on light tackle, has been accepted for a world record.

Perhaps an event just last week brought him even more happiness. He took his daughter, Karen, 12, on a fishing trip out of San Diego. Karen hooked and landed a longfin weighing 39 pounds, 2 ounces on three-six tackle. That's a feat of which any male angler could well be proud.

Al Zapanta sends word that he has a few openings on a four-day trip to Mazatlan (Aug. 31-Sept. 3) where sailfishing is real hot. Details may be obtained from Zapanta at MADison 7-6863.

Boys and girls had one of their most successful fishing rodeos Thursday, but a note of sadness occurred Friday morning when Pat Tannehill died. Pat was in charge of the Senior Citizens program and the Tackle Busters for the Recreation Department for several years. He had been in such critical condition that he could not appear at the 1962 fishing rodeo. He was one grand guy and his passing leaves a great void.

STEIN BLOCH'S VESTED LOOK

It is no easy matter for a man to become "successful" so, once arrived, it seems perfectly logical to us that a man likes to look like the success he is. Nothing does that quite as well as wearing a vest. Doctor, lawyer, business chief . . . all vested men. More news: the new Stein Bloch's Chairman III suit, no-dart suit created for a man who likes the 1963 slim look, but doesn't want to go "natural shoulder" all the way. What the vest and no-dart coat do: make the new suit look very new. We show it in several suitings worthy of Stein Bloch's magnificent hand-tailoring. Their new Town Brown with Blue, new greys, new blacks, all vested.

Bellflower Boulevard — Then and Now

FORTY-SEVEN YEARS do make a difference, as evidenced by these two pictures taken at Bellflower. At left is scene on July Fourth 1915, when Bellflower Boulevard was a dirt road and much narrower than the present-day boulevard shown at right. The horse and buggy crowd was watching a foot race.

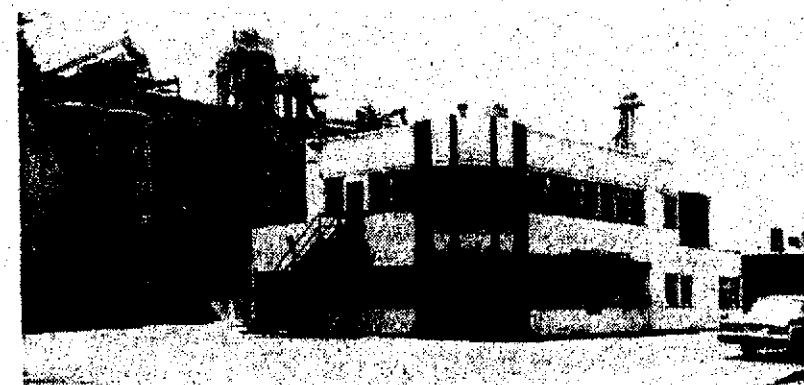

Pictures have at least one thing in common—a Thompson store, also reflecting the progress through the years. Bellflower's "main street" now is a wide, well-lighted thoroughfare, highly businesslike for a city of its size. Street, formerly Somerset Avenue, was widened in 1929, with buildings set back.

TRIANGLE GRAIN PLANT AT BELLFLOWER

Friendly City, Bellflower, Has Formula for Good Living

By VERN ANTHONY
Southland Progress Editor

BELLFLOWER — For a model, U.S.A. style so-called "bedroom city" — basically residential as opposed to an industrial center — try Bellflower.

But this growing city of near 50,000 is happily surrounded by the Southland's vast array of business and recreational resources so essential to "the good life."

Always a "hi-neighbor" industry. Large plants near facilities. town, Bellflower officially by, however, embellish the adopted slogan "Friendly City" following incorporation in 1957.

FAVORED VERSION as to the origin of the city's name has it called after an apple. Originally the area was known as "Wilderness" and then, in about 1904, it was called "Firth."

It became "Somerset" when the Pacific Electric Railroad established a station here. Then came complications.

The Postal Department refused to recognize the name because there already was a Somerset, Colo.; and the abbreviation might be confused with California's. So there had to be another name.

THE STORY GOES that there happened to be in the area an orchard of Bellflower apples. Folks liked the sound, so agreed to call the town Bellflower.

About 96 per cent of the city's more than six square miles is developed or useable, and the remaining 4 per cent will be absorbed by a freeway which will cross the southern part of town just north of Artesia Boulevard. Bellflower contains no giant factories; but it has put emphasis on light consumer type

Newer in the city is Donhal, Inc., manufacturer of highway trailers under the Oasis trade name. This plant is growing loads are delivered hundreds of miles right to feed lots. American Brass, North American and others.

ESTABLISHED in the days when this was a major dairy is the electronic control panel

OUTSTANDING development in recent building activity has been the spurt in construction of apartment houses. Future use of land available due to deep lots laid out here also is expected. High rise building, with no present restrictions, also looms.

A city of outstanding schools, Bellflower has the added advantage of nearby Cerritos College just outside its eastern boundary, where a $14 million campus is being developed on 95 acres.

BELLFLOWER has no city business license tax, one of only four such cities in California.

There are three modern place stands one of the nation's most modern milling

Area Men Build Up Thriving Trailer Plant at Bellflower

Story and Photos by Ralph McClurg.

BELLFLOWER—Nestled in a shady grove where workers and buzzing saws hum with the birds is one of Bellflower's largest industrial plants—a multi-million dollar concern.

Very little is known locally of the plant or its products, except by those interested in travel home trailers. However, the demand for the quality built "homes-for-the-road" has been responsible for making Bellflower known by trailer house dealers and owners throughout 11 western states and Canada.

DONHAL, INC., manufacturers of Oasis Trailers, is located at 10123 E. Washington St. The plant is hidden on a large tree covered plot at the rear of a residential street in this "bedroom" city. Only a few of the neighbors are aware of the extensive operations of the plant.

Co-owners of the firm are the Donald Herfter and Dwight H. Avery, who were fellow workers in the aircraft industry during World War II. Both were employed in Downey at the time.

HERFTER started in the cabinet manufacturing business back in 1946. In 1957 Avery joined the firm and the business was expanded to the manufacturing of complete trailer homes.

The partners commented, "Our products just seemed to take hold and we've had a backlog of orders ever since our first trailer was put on the road."

Between five and eight trailer homes ranging from $1,295 to $4,000 roll off the assembly line daily. An average of between 70 and 75 desert spa-workers are employed in the plant.

THE FIRST MODEL to roll off the Donhal assembly line was a 15-footer; the second, an 18-footer. Now, the Oasis line includes models in provincial and modern styling with standard facilities or full self-containment.

A recent issue of the Mobile Home Journal, a national publication, had this to say about the Bellflower product following an extended road test:

"WEBSTER DEFINES an oasis as a lush, plush haven. The Oasis trailer tested is one lush, plush haven that for cost and accommodation beats any

"The Oasis behaves wonderfully on the highway, tracking as if it is magnetized to the hitch. Even at high speed no wobble or sway could be detected."

The Oasis scored 84 points out of a possible 100 in the Journal's road test, and was given a four-star, or one of the highest ratings.

Port Ambassadors Will Visit Redondo

Long Beach Port Ambassadors, seeking to strengthen ties with neighboring cities, will visit Redondo Beach Tuesday for fellowship with civic leaders and a tour of shoreline developments.

Sutler Kunkel, Ambassadors chairman, Saturday urged members to participate in Tuesday's activities.

The party will leave by bus at 9:45 a.m. from Chamber of Commerce headquarters, 121 Linden Ave.

There will be a boat tour at Redondo at 11 a.m. Luncheon is scheduled for 12:30 p.m. at the Plush Horse Inn, where the visitors will be welcomed by Redondo Beach Mayor William F. Sculeger.

THIS WILL BE the first visit for the Ambassadors to other cities. Kunkel said it is planned on alternate months to visit various cities and to host groups from other cities with tours of the Long Beach harbor.

IN ARTESIA WONDERLAND

Among the many attractions of recently opened Artesia Wonderland in Artesia are the favorable financing terms and low full prices, officials said. Home shoppers may purchase on "terms for everyone" that offer a total "move-in" of $295, full prices are from $11,750 to $12,950 and monthly payments from $78 include principal and interest.

Wonderland Price, Terms Draw

Recently opened Artesia Wonderland in the close-in city of Artesia, presents a selection of diversely styled dwellings that boast of unusually low full prices and terms, officials announced. "Terms for everyone," the spokesman said, offer a complete "move-in" of $295, full prices are from just $11,750 to $12,950, and monthly payments from $78 include principal and interest.

Artesia Wonderland homes are designed with family-flexible plans featuring convertible dens, dining areas adjoining the well planned kitchens, lots of closet and storage space, and big bedrooms with sliding door wardrobes.

HARDWOOD PARQUET "stretchedwood" floors, sturdy vinyl floor coverings in kitchens and baths, kitchens with handsome tile countertops, range hood with exhaust fan and light and sink-installed disposers are among the many appealing features.

Located just north of Artesia Blvd., Artesia Wonderland has ready access to the Santa Ana Freeway, which in turn offers convenient access to many other parts of the Southland.

Model homes are reached from Long Beach by taking Seventh Street east to Los Alamitos Boulevard, then north on Los Alamitos (which becomes Norwalk Blvd.) and continue to 166th Street and turn left.

New Plaster 'Thincoat' Acclaimed

A new plastering material, described by building codes as "thincoat" plastering, has improved the performance of walls and ceilings of the "nailed-on" variety by a substantial margin, announce researchers for the Southern California Plastering Institute, Inc.

Thincoat is said to be an ultra-high-strength gypsum material applied to thickness of as little as one-eighth of an inch over ordinary 4 ft. x 8 ft. gypsum lath materials. Clay Johnston, president of the institute, said that it has proved to be a decisive answer to the problems of many builders seeking lowest possible construction costs through the use of other materials that are generally regarded as substitutes for genuine lath and plaster.

Johnston said that thincoat provides "a solid, smooth hard and complete covering for any wall and can be painted or otherwise decorated in the same manner as conventional plaster."

Parliament Homes sales reached $225,000 during the past week, William Rousey, one of the building partners announced. He attributes this favorable buyer acceptance to the many quality features offered in the custom-designed homes, the low down payment, and the easy financing terms.

The attractive homes, designed for modern living, feature floor-to-ceiling fireplaces of used brick or slump stone with gas loglighter, acoustical type ceilings, aluminum frame glass sliding patio doors, large entry hall with closet, and natural finish ash doors.

THE HOTPOINT all-electric kitchen has push button range, wide built-in oven with glass door and timer, automatic dishwasher and garbage disposal.

Ideally located, in Westminster, unit 2 and unit 3 Parliament Homes are close to schools, shopping centers, and are rapidly accessible to industrial areas. Wall-to-wall carpet is only one of the quality features offered at Huntington Beach Sunshine Homes, Unit 2, by builders and developers S. V. Hunsaker & Sons.

McClung & Matlocks, 2005 Agents for Bar Harbor Homes report that customer response to the many exciting innovations incorporated in the design and finish details of the homes has pushed sales beyond their most optimistic estimates.

One of the most popular of such innovations is the separate children's play room with skylighted ceiling and easy to care for slate flooring. Other new features which have proven to be a delight to home buyers are reach-through linen storage, built-in clothes hampers, huge "sausage" drawers, magazine racks, hidden towel dispensers, kitchen planning desks, and built-in sliding pot and pan trays. These are not "optional extras," but are included in the realistic price of Bar Harbor Homes.

NOR ARE SUCH features included at the sacrifice of other custom quality details. The prospective home owner will find spacious, well laid out rooms, separate dining areas in addition to kitchen, breakfast nooks, slate entry ways, the finest of rustic quality fixtures with marble pullmans, indoor gardens and dramatic lightplaces.

A choice of three livable floor plans is available on these four and five-bedroom and 2-bath homes. Twelve interior stylings have been cleverly utilized to give the development a luxury look. All this may be had at a realistic price of from $24,900 to $25,995. Terms are as low as $995 plus costs down, and special benefits are available to purchasers who elect to pay cash to the existing loans.

Furnished models are on display from 9 to 9 and there's a door prize drawing on Sunday at 4 p.m. for everyone. Bar Harbor may be reached by taking the Santa Anna Freeway to Harbor Bluff Turnoff. Turn south on Harbor to the Showcase of furnished models. From Santa Anna, drive west to any major thoroughfare to Harbor Bluff, south on Harbor to Bar Harbor.

DAILY NEWSPAPERS

ARE NOW CARRYING MORE ADVERTISING TO MORE PEOPLE THAN EVER BEFORE

Daily newspaper circulation in the United States has now reached 60,283,114*—this is the highest figure in the history of our country. The combined newspaper circulation of the U.S. and Canada has also climbed to a new record—64,397,118.*

Steady vigorous growth such as this can come from only one thing: ever-increasing public and advertiser recognition of the newspaper's pre-eminence as a medium of communication. That's why advertisers also are investing more money in newspapers than ever before—$3,702,800,000 in 1960.

It is particularly important to advertisers—both national and local—that people are reading almost a million and a half more newspapers than a year ago, more than ever before. It means that advertisers' messages now have an even greater opportunity to be seen, absorbed, and acted upon.

More readers mean more prospects reached, more customers sold, more value for the advertising dollar. For a rising sales curve, use the daily newspaper to carry your advertising to the largest constant consumer audience in North America.

OUR LOCATION is unex- celled! We are in the center of all activities, whether at the ocean, the mountains, the desert, or other vacation land show places. Our weather is very moderate. As for smog, we see it only when it has no other place to go—and California is a pretty big state!

Most important, and most gratifying, are the people of Garden Grove!

If you can, imagine a city like ours, expanding so quick- ly, still retaining its warmth and its friendliness, just as if we were still the sleepy hamlet of 3,750 people. Then you know why I am so proud of Garden Grove.

Homes are made of sticks and stones, and so are the stores and factories, but a city must have a heart, made up of people, to pump the blood and make it breathe.

Full Title to Land to Sherwood Buyers

One of the most favorable real estate appreciation factors in Orange County is cited as a major sales influence at Sherwood Country Club Estates, which had its highly successful grand opening recently near Upper Newport Bay, directly across from the Santa Ana Country Club.

Developer George D. Buccola pointed out that those large, luxurious two-story, four and five-bedroom homes are not sold on leaseholds, but buyers get title in their own names, thus insuring benefits from the "inevitable appreciation of property in this highly favored area."

PRICED FROM $32,500 to $33,700, on down payments from $1,625, these estate-size dwellings contain interior space ranging from 2,515 to 2,585 sq. ft. They are rising only a few minutes from the site of the University of California campus on the Irvine Ranch.

Outstanding luxury features include full-length balconies in some of the varied stylings, wall-to-wall carpeting, exceptionally large breakfast areas in kitchens, generous walk-in closets, true family rooms and well-planned traffic flow through rooms.

The owners' suites are separated from the other bedrooms and well-planned traffic flow through rooms.

Mr. Ray K. Cherry, builder, Hadley-Cherry, Inc., Los Angeles, California

"I BUILD ALL KINDS, BUT I LIVE IN A MEDALLION HOME"

"My thirty-five years as a builder have taught me—often the hard way—what true quality is in a home," says Mr. Cherry. "But I've never had any difficulty understanding why there's such a solid trend to electric living. I live in a Medallion Home, and believe me, you can't match the quality of its electric features, no matter how particular you are."

"Electric living provides, as a matter of course, so many benefits that you would ordinarily count as 'extra luxuries': cleanliness, coolness and easy maintenance."

You can benefit from the experience of this long-time builder too. When you buy or build, in any price range, make sure it's a Medallion Home.

Only one new home in four earns this distinction. These are the qualifications:

1. A flameless electric kitchen—cool, clean, modern. It comes equipped with major electric appliances, including automatic flameless electric range and oven.
2. Full "Housepower" wiring—Only a home built to rigid Medallion Home standards has the overall electrical capacity necessary for truly modern living.

3. Abundant lighting—planned for comfort, convenience and beauty throughout the home.

A total electric Gold Medallion Home gives you all these benefits plus:

4. Flameless electric home and water heating.

Loans Top $29 Million

Residential real estate loans totaling $29,473,804 were made in Orange County during the first seven months of 1962 by Santa Ana Savings and Loan Association, Stewart S. McPherson, president, has announced.

This was an increase of 129.7% over the $12,832,767 loaned during the corresponding period last year, he said. These funds were used to finance both new residential construction and acquisition of existing properties.

The seven associations in the Great Western Financial Group, with which Santa Ana Savings is affiliated, made real estate loans totaling $263,577,830 throughout California during the first seven months of this year. This was 25.5% more than the $209,944,036 loaned during the same period a year ago.

Anaheim Firm Tells Earnings

ANAHEIM — ASTRODATA, Inc., local electronics firm, has announced that earnings for the fiscal year ended June 30 were $749,583 (after taxes) on sales of $5,234,553 — equal to 54¢ per share, on 650,000 shares outstanding.

President Wallace E. Rianda stated that results for this first year's operation under public ownership were well ahead of predictions. Rianda said incoming orders for the year exceeded $6.5 million. Present backlog is over $2.5 million.

The firm designs, manufactures and markets nationally complex data acquisition and processing systems, missile range timing instrumentation and a complete line of instrumentation amplifiers and nanovoltmeters.

DOOR PRIZE DRAWING EACH SUNDAY 4 P.M. FOR EVERYONE

Volunteer 'Wheels' on the Go for CVO

By MARY NETH

"Where to?" asks S. M. Young (above) of a woman passenger. One of four drivers for the Community Volunteer Office, he puts wheels under those who need them: zips through traffic taking blind or handicapped to hospitals, clinics and offices of any of 83 CVO served agencies.

Now retired, Young shrugs off on-the-go job with flip, "Since today I'm paid for not working, I decided to work for no pay."

But, that's not the real reason he is among the volunteers here who lend a total of 100,000 hours to community service each year.

Questioned further, Young admits to wanting "to do something worthwhile," adding that to him the best way "is in giving someone else a boost."

And, that's what CVO is all about. A neighbor-to-neighbor program of community help, it turns time-on-the-hands to helping hands—utilizing everyone from school children to pensioners in doing so.

No one is ever turned away. Among the 867 persons who donate leisure hours every week, every profession, skill and talent imaginable is represented.

"As a clearing house for volunteer services, we've never failed to answer a call," says Clara Andrews, executive director.

Jobs vary from reading to the bedridden, to building cabinets, to teaching the cha cha cha.

HOW DOES CVO line-up its willing but unpaid helpers? A weekly newspaper release usually does the trick. Sometimes with results so overwhelming they are almost alarming.

For example, Mrs. Andrews recalls the time the need for coffee can be used in a craft class was publicized.

"We were swamped," she says. "We could hardly get in the front door—but we didn't turn a single one down."

Result: with a few telephone calls, Mrs. Andrews located another group who could use all the piled-up cans. "Nothing was wasted and everyone who took part in the project was eager to help again," she adds.

Put into operation here by the Junior League in 1948, CVO is one of 126 such groups in the country. Now run by the Community Chest, it is headed by Mrs. Francis M. Lowry as president of the board of directors and saves taxpayers an estimated $100,000 annually—without displacing any paid workers.

THE IDEA of the civic let's-help-each-other organization originated from volunteer services performed during the frantic days of World War II.

Now in its 15th year, CVO is still on-the-go and its volunteers still as eagerly sought.

Among some of its unsung hard workers are such persons as Clarence Orrin Winter, who has donated his car as a fareless taxi since 1948. ("We've really depended on him," says Mrs. Andrews. "There is always a shortage of drivers.")

Helen Gass, retired Poly High gym teacher, has lent her experience to therapy work and Edwin E. Byhre, retired banker, now in his 70s, has saved the taxpayers untold funds by organizing and running bookkeeping departments for large agencies.

Each agrees that volunteer work benefits everyone—including the volunteer. "The work adds up to a feeling of being needed, the extra security of an expanding group of friends and a better knowledge of the city," says Mrs. Andrews.

PLUNGING LITERALLY into CVO volunteer work is college student John Howell. Here holding hand of John Coultrup, 6, he takes to pool for quick off-duty dip. Howell has given his vacation time to teaching blind youngsters at local Braille Camp how to swim. Many Long Beach high school and college students take part in CVO work during the summer. As volunteers, they have the opportunity for on-the-job training in offices and clinics.

OFFICE WORK'S not routine work when it's for CVO. Mrs. Martin Paquette, standing, and Mrs. Judge Anderson both have busy schedules at home but manage to squeeze in time for volunteer duty. They started at CVO as Junior Leaguers nine years ago, found jobs so satisfying that they've kept at them. Below, Korene Vaile Houser, 5 months, gets loving care from volunteers (left) Mrs. Louis Strohm and Mrs. Keith W. Perine, who help at well-baby clinic.

Marlene Lauer Says Vows

Fragrant white summer flowers decorated First Methodist Church in Santa Monica for the mid-afternoon wedding of Marlene Ann Lauer and George Alfred Hotelling, and were used in profusion at Hotel Bel Air for the reception which followed.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Calvin Albert Lauer of Palos Verdes. Dr. Lauer has long been prominent in Long Beach medical circles, and the family formerly resided here.

Professor and Mrs. Harold Hotelling of Chapel Hill, N. C., are parents of the bridegroom who was graduated from the University of North Carolina.

Mrs. George A. Hotelling

A GOWN of fragile Chantilly lace was worn by the bride. It was styled with a portrait neckline and with its skirt fullness falling into a graceful sweep train. A jeweled crown secured her tiered veil of illusion. Her bouquet was of orchids, lilies of the valley and stephanotis.

Her sister, Barbara Joan Lauer, was her only attendant, and wore pale pink organza. Harold Hotelling Jr. served as his brother's best man.

The bride was graduated from Wilson High School and from Stanford University. Following a honeymoon in Carmel and San Francisco, the couple will be at home in Santa Monica.

Toastmistress Council to Meet Sept. 4

"A Place for Leaders" national Toastmistress Clubs, convenes at 7 p.m. Sept. 4 at the Hawaiian Restaurant. Mary Monk of Long Beach Naval Shipyard Club will be in charge of the program and has scheduled a planning meeting Thursday in her home.

LOOKING PATRIOTICALLY pretty in red, white and blue ensemble, Mrs. Emily Terrill, Mrs. U. S. Savings Bonds, holds aloft key-to-city following presentation of certificate to district P.T.A. Wednesday. Award was given for local school children's outstanding savings stamp and bond program. Dr. Vernon Hinze and Mrs. Walter George, president Long Beach district P.T.A., admire key as Mrs. Terrill shows mementoes of travels made as representative of the U.S. Treasury Department.

SMALL SAVINGS EARN Stamp of Approval

Long Beach is adding new laurels to its crown of fame. Not only is it noted for its harbor, beaches and beauty contest, but now its children are acclaimed among the thriftiest in the nation.

And, as such they are earning national recognition. President Kennedy's "goodwill ambassador," Emily Terrill of St. Helens, Ore., presented an award here Wednesday.

As this year's "Mrs. U.S. Savings Bonds," Mrs. Terrill gave the certificate to Mrs. Walter George, president of the Long Beach District P.T.A. at a luncheon in the Long Beach Yacht Club.

The certificate recognizes local elementary and secondary schools for a combined total sales of $94,000 in savings stamps—the highest total stamp sales in the state.

"Through the excellent P.T.A. program here, children are learning the value of investing money wisely while, at the same time, supporting the government," said Mrs. Terrill.

"In these days of bankruptcy by 18-year-olds, the importance of school thrift programs can't be underestimated," she added.

A BLUE-EYED blonde, Mrs. Terrill was chosen as Mrs. U.S. Savings Bonds by U.S. Treasury Department

judges last December. The decision was based on her qualifications as a homemaker, mother, civic worker and—wise budgeter. Al Code, district manager, Southern California Edison Co., was host for the Yacht Club luncheon at which Mrs. Terrill officially recognized the Long Beach Council P.T.A. and the Long Beach Unified School District. Following the luncheon, she presented an award to Mayor Edwin Wade, in recognition of the total Long Beach area sales of $4,604,878 in Savings Bonds for the year.

Gold Event Today for Arthur Scotts

Fiftieth wedding anniversary of long-time Long Beach residents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Scott, will be celebrated this afternoon with a reception from 2 to 5 p.m. in the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Scott, 212 E. 45th St., with whom they reside.

The hosts will be assisted by their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Poyer. Guests will include friends and relatives as well as members of the Keystone Class of Grace Methodist Church which Mr. Scott serves as teacher; members of Story League; and the couple's six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

WILD WAVES SAY . . .

By Iola Masterson

I, P-T Women's Editor

OLD CHINESE saying: Before men laugh at neighbors' bad luck, they should examine own fortune cookies.

Which brings us to the ribbing Tom Rowan has been taking from Bill Jenney for breaking his leg last month in one of those simple it-couldn't-happen-but-it-did accidents in the process of getting out of his car.

Now it's Bill's turn to hobble in a cast and be object of Tom's ha ha's. He busted his leg something over a week ago by tripping over a rose bush in his yard. Nonetheless he kept a fishing date with Bill Cree last weekend taking to the sea—cast, crutches et al.

SPEAKING OF bones that go snap, this has been a season of "castitis" at Joyce and Bert Paul's home. First, Joyce broke her wrist in April and was in a cast for six weeks. In May it was daughter Patricia's turn for plaster to aid her broken arm. Now son "Skip" wears the family's coat of arms on his hand since he fractured a bone therein a week ago. Ah, Bert, take heed.

AND THESE aren't the only ones who are breaking out all over. Beth Whipple is limping around in a cast, too. Hers was kind of a mother's industrial accident, though. She jumped off a wall while playing hide and seek with her children to account for her broken foot. All in the line of duty.

is a 30th anniversary gift to each other.

First they'll visit Bob's brother and wife, Clay and Bette Douglas, in England where he is Air Force stationed. Together they'll tour France and the Rhineland. After that Gilda and Bob will visit her childhood home in Italy and see what can be done about locating some distant relatives.

While they're gone, son Tom will remain home to keep the furnace stoked, sidewalks shoveled.

THEIR CAR bristling with the equipment of pleasure, Pat and George Johnson returned from a quickie five day vacation at Del Monte Lodge on the Monterey peninsula. They both toted their bicycles for leisurely touring of the terrain and, of course, George took his golf gear and, of course, Pat took her artist's paraphernalia to putter at sketching while he puttered at putting.

EXCHANGING the clatter and clank of adding machines and cash registers (normally music to their ears) for the soft clinks of floating ice cubes Friday were members of the Sales and Marketing Executives Club. It was occasion of their annual summer dinner dance as they were entertained at Long Beach Yacht Club.

Preceding the dinner they gathered in various members' homes for get acquainted and get the night off to a good start cocktail parties. Hosts were Betty and Warren Mitchell, Louise and Paul Rossiter, Mae Lee and Frank Campbell and Rosemary and Bob Westmyer. "Big Jim" Duncan, with an assist from wife, Louise, was the wheeling and dealing chairman of the night.

IT'S A sturdy run by boat to San Diego and thence to Ensenada but a number of local cruisers made the long trek on a long last weekend to compete in the Balboa to San Diego and the San Diego to Ensenada predicted log races. For mariners that's a kind of endurance contest and guessing game.

Kelly Williams, with crewmate Bob Briar, toted home a beautiful second place trophy in his division as one of the Long Beach race entries. Others who splashed their way were Jane and Fred Woodard also "Spud" Martin with his passenger Frank Boyar.

"Spud," who had just put two new motors in his boat, had one conk out even before he got as far as Balboa. So that took care of his chances but, nevertheless, he limped on down the coast with plans to stay for fishing—two motors, one motor or rowboat.

WITH A devout curiosity, residents of Los Cerritos area keep watchful tab on the progress of a fantastic new home being built on Virginia Road. When it's finished, probably not until November, it will be the abode of Dixie and Bill Barnett and their children who will move here from Compton.

The place, designed by Cliff Mays, will not only be huge but is being built in authentic Mexican style not unlike an Aztec castle. Tile and other building materials not available here are being imported. I was told that Dixie has some very fine old Spanish furniture for the casa and is having some special pieces made in Mexico City.

TO THE hefty splashing of competitors and the roaring of parental rooting sections, our local kids performed most creditably in the recent State Jr. Olympic swim meet for Southern Cal. at Mayfair Park. Cheering their porpoises as they competed in a crowd of 3,000 swimmers were Marilyn and Larry Bonzer, Mary Jane and Bill Durnin and Marian and Montie Magree.

THEY'LL COME by jet . . . but they'll be dragging their feet. Patsy and Cathy Davis, who have been having time of their young lives during a summer-long students' tour of Europe, are due back home next Saturday to rejoin their eager to see them parents, Eleanor and John. And they return with just a soupcon of time to spare before duty calls. Patsy is scheduled to begin teaching (her first job) with the LA schools while Cathy heads for her sophomore year at USC.

WRAPPING UP the season, Nightingales had an end of summer (what summer?) party Saturday, an informal beach and barbecue at Patty and Ned Twining's ocean front place in Seal Beach. With a twinkle in her eye hostess Patty promised there'd be dancing around the pool . . . pool table, she explained.

TWENTY-TWO MILES across the sea Carol Slosson and the children are currently vacationing at their home away from home in Avalon. Mainland-bound by office chores, Clifford commutes whenever he can.

THE GOLF shoe is on the other foot as Evelyn and Don Sullivan take up the game. Evelyn is the "old pro" of the family—meaning she had a few lessons a few years ago. Don is just beginning. Still and all, they're having a ball trying to hit same over at Recreation's 9-hole course. FORE!

Oswald Jacoby Bidding Is Complicated

Hand 17 of the World Championship series belongs to East and West. The bidding when Italy held the East-West cards is shown in the box. America tried to jam the bidding and might well have stampered them into a seven contract if they could be stampered, but they settled for a double and two trick set of South's six-spade bid. Of course, if North and South had not gone to six, Italy would have played and made six diamonds.

When America held the East-West cards, diamonds

WHATEVER reason East had for his no-trump opening must have caused him to continue with a bid of four no-trump. If he had made his logical bid of five diamonds, West would have raised him to six and the chances are that he would have been allowed to play

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Mom's Right in the Middle

DEAR ABBY: I have two daughters. One is 28, married and has two children. The other is 23 and single. The single one was employed by my son-in-law for two years. All this time they carried on a secret love affair. The older one found out about it and started divorce proceedings. I got upset and forbade my unmarried daughter to enter my home again. Now, the older one is being courted by her husband again and it looks like they are going back together. She says if I have anything to do with her sister she will never speak to me. I love them both, Abby. The older one blames her sister—not her husband—for what happened. What should I do?—BROKEN-HEARTED MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: Your older daughter is wrong to demand that you have nothing to do with your younger daughter. I can't blame her for feeling resentment toward her sister, but if she has it in her heart to forgive her husband, she should forgive her sister, too.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are going to celebrate our 10th wedding anniversary shortly. I have heard that some of our friends are getting together and giving us a surprise party. Should we be "surprised"?—NOT SURPRISED.

DEAR NOT: You can't "be" surprised—but you can ACT it.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think I am a case for a psychiatrist? I keep a diary, but it really isn't much good because it is full of lies. It tells about dates I never had with boys I don't even know. I enjoy writing it, but I am beginning to wonder if I am crazy. I keep it well hidden so there is no danger of my mother or anyone else finding it. What makes a person do things like that? I am 15 and not very popular.—MIXED UP.

DEAR MIXED UP: If it will make you feel better, you have lots of company. Many people find escape from dull reality by creating a more exciting make-believe world. A certain amount of daydreaming is normal and healthy. Concentrate on developing your personality and becoming more social, and you'll enjoy reality more and dreams less.

Unload your problem on Abby. For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Cornthwaite Stars in Plays by L.B. Author

Two plays by Long Beach playwright Bernard Weiss will be given professional production at Coronet Theater, Los Angeles, beginning Tuesday.

Robert Cornthwaite

Both were premiered here earlier at Off-Broadway Theater.

"Aurelius" is the story of the Roman emperor and Stoic philosopher, Marcus Aurelius. "Reynard" is based on medieval legends about Reynard the Fox.

Robert Cornthwaite, former resident of Long Beach and now a Hollywood actor, will direct as well as star in both plays.

He is remembered locally for his performance in "The Egg" last winter at Magnolia Theater.

ON GREEK STAGE

Maurice Chevalier, France's singing ambassador, will open at Greek Theater Monday for seven performances through next Sunday. In the show, specially created for the amphitheater, the star will be accompanied by the Greek Theater orchestra and Fred Stamer at the piano.

California Artists in La Cienega Spotlight

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Young California artists play a major role in the La Cienega galleries through this month. At Gallery 333 (the street number) just where restaurant row turns into gallery and decorators' row, a superb collection of the works of artist-craftsmen is for sale at modest prices.

Among these is a length of white silk organdy, screened in crisp white blossoms by Mary Jane Leland of the Long Beach State College art faculty. One of her paintings there, Robert Trout, is represented by some beautifully-crafted pieces in wood. Among these is a handsome box with handles, lined with velvet to contain precious possessions.

AL PINE, a silversmith, has ingenious jewelry in abstract designs, some elegant hollowware and utensils. The gallery's director, Maurice Ascalon, offers some large pieces of hand-wrought silver, the most impressive a ceremonial Torah crown. Hebraic characters for "truth" and "justice" give a baroque character to the creation.

Esther Robles Gallery, 665 N. La Cienega, is showing 14 West Coast artists, all of considerable stature. Most impressive and fresh are two oils by Gregory Kondos, one entitled "Greece," the other "White Rock." Both are predominantly white with lovely colors suggesting verdant, floral landscape and deep blue sea.

"Autumn Picnic" pushes to the limit his exploration of this theme with rectangles of thick impasto in intense colors. Don Reich's "Contra Costa Delta" is thinly painted in grey, greens and blue. These two epitomize the wide range of interest and exploration of technique found in the works of artists of our area.

Recordings Aid Study, Discussions

Recordings of national interest have been added to the record section at the Main Library.

"Witness" contains dramatic high lights of various Congressional investigations. "Portrait of Adlai Stevenson" presents the statesman in many incidents of his varied career. The medical work of Tom Dooley is told in "Portrait of a Splendid American."

"Behind the Headlines with Douglas Edwards" discusses Medicare, The Steel Crisis, The Space Age and The UN Bond Issue. This series of recordings is especially valuable to groups and for classroom discussions.

Phonograph records may be borrowed from the Main Library for a two week period. There is a rental fee.

Eyes Luce Play

NEW YORK (AP)—A drama written 20 years ago under a pen name by playwright Clare Boothe Luce is now being eyed as a Broadway prospect.

"Love Is a Verb" was originally tested at the Barter Theater in Abingdon, Va., with authorship ascribed to a Karl Weidenbach. Mrs. Luce subsequently acknowledged it as her work.

Richard Charlton, operator of the Sombra Playhouse in Phoenix, Ariz., has taken a White Way option on the comedy, which Mrs. Luce has put through four revisions.

Major & Minor Notes PROTESTS MUSIC'S 'FALSE PROPHETS'

By RACHEL MORTON
A.P.T. Music Critic

It would seem that if a thing is repeated often enough, many people accept it as the truth. There are, alas, so few really discriminating thinkers in the world today.

Our high pressure advertising has much to do with this state of affairs. In politics a man is often ruined by a falsified story, off-repeated.

But I am concerned today with music, and its false prophets. I am fed up with this rash of publicity all over the country celebrating the 80th birthday anniversary of Igor Stravinsky. Pages and photographs of the man have filled our magazines to a point of nausea. This year is also the 100th anniversary of Claude Debussy, a really great composer. Does anyone go frantic over that? Not only is the fact not mentioned, but his wonderful music is seldom played.

IGOR STRAVINSKY, in his early days in Russia under the tutelage of Rimsky-Korsakoff, wrote music of genuine creative genius such as "The Firebird," "Le Sacre du Printemps," "Petrouchka" and "Fireworks." After Stravinsky met Diaghileff in Paris and began composing ballet music for him, his style changed and it has been changing drastically ever since.

Richard Leonard writes of him in Music Lovers Encyclopedia:

"This small-sized, slight-figured Russian, with the full lips and slanting eyes of a Tartar is a cold little man with the calculating interest of an experimenter in music, an iconoclast and hater of all sentiment. His music reflects a cold, hard cynicism; a disdain of sentiment, a preoccupation with pure, steely mechanics, mixed with an occasional outburst of an almost frenzied despair — and abstruse cerebral exercises deliberately drained of emotional force."

THE LATE WORKS of Stravinsky as heard at the Ojai Music Festival last spring, were unendurable to ears sensitive to beauty in sound. And yet, all this hubbaloob over his 80th birthday.

Another flagrant outrage of today is the current custom of using Biblical texts by pseudo composers for their own odious attempts. This is the way the Communists ridicule religion. What could be further from the truth? And yet the musical public gullibly swallows it and without remonstrance.

AND ONE FINAL protest. I dislike conductors of mediocrity who gain publicity by identifying themselves with Beethoven series: quartets that play only Beethoven; improvisation fakes who fill the air with nothing on instruments; and singers who rely on gaining a reputation by singing the unsingable.

When will the musical elite rise up and stamp out these false prophets—these wolves in sheep's clothing? When will sanity be restored and Truth become again our priceless heritage?

Bowl to End Season

A concert version of "The Student Prince" Saturday night with Jaye Rubanoff conducting, and Symphonies Under the Stars programs Tuesday and Thursday nights, conducted by Alfred Wallenstein, will wind up the 41st season at Hollywood Bowl.

Wallenstein, former music director of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra, will introduce Agustin Anievas, piano soloist, Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. and will conduct the entire incidental music to "A Midsummer Night's Dream" Thursday night with Marie Gibson, soprano soloist.

Anievas, a native of New York, recently won the Dmitri Mitropoulos competition. For his Bowl debut he will play Chopin's "Concerto No. 1." For the Mendelssohn music, the Roger Wagner Choral women's chorus will join with the orchestra and soloist.

IN ADDITION to Rubanoff, conductor for Romberg's "Student Prince," the concert will have Laurel Hurley, soprano; Charles L. K. Davis, tenor; Igor Gorin, baritone; and the Roger Wagner Choral. Rubanoff has been on the staff of the Hollywood Bowl for eight years, and has served as artistic assistant for the past three seasons. He conducted many musical shows at the Greek Theatre a few years ago.

Music Award

Janice Allred of Lakewood received the Outstanding Girl Musician award at University of Redlands summer music clinic. She was one of six students to receive awards during the Grand Finale concert in the university's chapel. Each was granted a tuition scholarship to next year's music clinic.

Art Show at Fiesta Friday

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

San Pedro Art Association will stage an art show on the docks of San Pedro Friday through Sunday in conjunction with the Fishermen's Fiesta.

Judging of the 250 entries will be done today at the association's gallery, 820 S. Beacon St., by artist Rex Brandt and Gerald Nordland, dean of Chouinard Art Institute.

Cash prizes will be awarded on a best-of-show basis, with a special prize for the outstanding painting relating to the fishing industry.

Oils, watercolors, gouaches, prints and drawings will be exhibited; no crafts, mosaics or sculpture will be shown.

Three Long Beach State College advertising design students were winners in the 1962 Crown Zellerbach Paper Company's poster competition, "To Break the Language Barrier."

Anthony Mindiola was awarded a second prize of $50; Fred Branch won third prize of $25; and Jim Bright took honorable mention.

Awards were for the entire Southern California section of the contest.

Forty-five colleges took part in the total competition; 455 entries were judged.

TWO RARE, small volumes are on temporary display at Huntington Library and Art Gallery in San Marino.

They are the first edition of "Old Mother Hubbard and Her Dog" and the first American edition of "Cinderella."

Although both have been shown before, they are exhibited this time as the inspiration for two facsimiles, in the actual size of the originals, recently published by the library.

"Old Mother Hubbard" was written by a 36-year-old gentlewoman, Sarah Catherine Martin, and was first published June 1, 1805.

The library's copy of "Cinderella," printed in Philadelphia in 1800, is the only known American first edition.

BERT PROCTOR and Paul Lauritz will be on the roster of judges for the Catalina Island art exhibit Sept. 22 and 23.

Among activities at the show will be a demonstration by Dr. Marques E. Reitzel, well known contemporary artist.

A total of $1,000 will be awarded, with $150 going to a non-resident of Catalina for the best painting of the island. The grand prize is $400.

PASADENA Art Museum has announced an exhibition of "The Art of Los Angeles County" to be held in May, 1963.

Los Angeles County Museum of Art, which has always held an annual exhibition of artists of Los Angeles and vicinity, has temporarily discontinued the show because of the impending move of the museum to Hancock Park.

Explained Dr. Thomas W. Leavitt, director of the Pasadena museum: "Although our museum is relatively small and its facilities are limited, we are aware of the need of an exhibition of this type and are undertaking the project."

"Because we could not possibly handle the 2,000 or more works that might be submitted, we plan to ask artists to send slides of their work during the six months before the exhibit, and from these about 600 artists will be invited to submit to a final jurying late in February. The exhibition will contain 100 to 150 works of paintings, sculpture and drawings.

The show will replace the museum's annual San Gabriel Valley Artists Exhibition usually held in the fall. Prospectus for the new exhibit will be available in September and copies will be sent to local artists, galleries and schools.

AMERICAN craftsmen are invited to send entries to the "Fiber - Clay - Metal, U.S.A." show to be sponsored by the Saint Paul Gallery and School of Art Nov. 15 through Dec. 23.

Entries must be received not later than Oct. 15. There is an entry fee of $4. Further information may be obtained by writing to the gallery, 476 Summit Ave., Saint Paul 2, Minn.

This will be an open competition in the media of ceramics, metal, jewelry, weaving, decorated textiles, wood and enamels. Prizes and purchases will total $2,500; accepted pieces will go on tour.

Jurors will be Trudy Guernsey, weaver, San Francisco; John Prip, metal-smith, Ducksbury, Mass.; and Warren Mackenzie, potter, Stillwater, Minn.

Tania: Simply Terrific

By MARY ELLIS
P.T. Fashion Editor

Miss International is really Miss Simplicity. In the eyes of the fashion world, that is.

She has that rare knack of taking neat simplicity out of the plain-Jane class, of turning it—quite deftly—into her own brand of natural elegance.

The past week, while being fitted for the wardrobe that was part of her IBC title, cinderella Australian beauty Tania Verstak spoke freely of her fashion philosophy.

Her comment: "I like sleeveless, very simple, understated clothes."

Black, white and navy blue are her favorite colors.

TANIA ACCENTS her lovely 34-23-35 dimensions with fine fabrics and simple lines, makes many of her own clothes, wears little jewelry.

Example: when clerks at Buffums' were accessorizing a $225 Cahill white strapless evening gown, she agreed to a crystal necklace ("with some misgivings") but declined the earrings.

"I'm just not the earring type," commented 21-year-old Tania.

Her special brand of glitter is built in: a flawless complexion with exotic, olive overtones... green eyes, flecked with yellow... and the brightest, busiest smile this side of a toothpaste ad.

Unwilling to take the glamor route, her brows are unarched, her coif simple. She does her own hair, polishes her own nails (with an almost-clear polish).

HER GREATEST PROBLEM (as if she could have one), she says, is her chestnut hair.

"When I first won the Miss Australia title nine months ago, I tried beauty shops," said she. "But my hair is so fine and they teased it so much, it started breaking off. So I went back to the do-it-yourself routine."

She recalls an incident when she was scheduled to start a football game in homeland Australia:

"I was wearing one of those cover-the-hair Italian berets. I threw the ball, off came the beret... and THERE I stood—Miss Australia in curlers!"

But this serious-minded college student, who left this weekend to continue her studies at Sydney University (she plans ultimately to do refugee work in Europe), takes such things in graceful stride.

As she does life.

Fit for a Queen...

RIGHT: "It should be raised to about here," Tania told alteration lady during fitting of black-and-brown shadow plaid by Georgia Bullock. Dress lengths in Australia are same as here, said Tania.

FAR RIGHT: Shopping for clothes to take her 14-year-old sister, Tania attended teen-age fashion show at Buffums' tearoom, and here is pictured with model Jeannie Wengrovius, a student at St. Anthony's High School. "I'm going to wear this when I step off the plane in Australia," said Tania about malt-colored Kimberly knit she's wearing, one item in her IBC-won wardrobe.

UPPER RIGHT: "I love hats," chirped Tania, as she tried on new-style Garbo slouch hat by Dachtette and contemplated borrowed-from-the-boys derby by Emme.

WHY GROW OLD?

Summer Sun Is Hard on Hair--Perk It Up for Fall

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

The good old summer time, with its outdoor life and outdoor sports, is fine for the health, but it sometimes gives our hair a beating. You probably have been out in the sun a lot of the time, and the sun's rays are really hot during this season.

Also, almost daily wetting of your topknot (I have never found a cap which keeps the hair dry) is not especially good for your tresses. Salt water definitely is hard on the hair.

IN ADDITION to this sort of hair punishment, we usually "let down" in the summer and you may have missed the daily brushing of hair or scalp massage much more often than usual. It is a good bet that your hair needs some reconditioning before you have your fall permanent.

If you feel that it is dry, have a few hot oil treatments or give them to yourself. Simply part the hair progressively until you have covered your entire head. Dip cotton in warm olive oil and rub along each part. Then wrap your head in a towel which has been wrung out in hot water. Let the towel remain until it begins to cool and then heat it again. Do this several times. If your hair has dried out some this summer, have cream shampoos for a while even if you do not usually like them.

ONE OF the world's outstanding hair experts once told me that she believed fall sunshine is most beneficial to the hair, that it has special qualities which will improve the condition of the locks. Her advice is to sit outdoors and relax whenever possible, and let this brand of sunshine filter through your hair.

The fall sun does not burn and dry out like the summer sun.

IF YOU would like to have my leaflet about hair care, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for "Your Crowning Glory." Send for leaflet No. 52, Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Prolong Life

Heavy flowers, such as dahlias and peonies, require more water to keep them fresh than smaller flowers. Submerging the entire arrangement, flowers and all, in water for few minutes each day helps to prolong beauty of the flowers. Do not submerge such flowers as iris, delphiniums, and orchids, for they waterspot, the Society of American Florists says.

She's Headed for a Crash Landing

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: He's married, Molly, but it doesn't matter, I could sing. I could dance, I could fly! You see, I went to work in this new office and when they introduced me to the head of our department I slipped. I thought, here at long, long last, was the man of my dreams. My heart just reached right out and clung. So then I began to wonder if he were married—no ring or anything. None of the girls said and I didn't feel like asking. A week went by and I began to think, uh-huh, he isn't attached.

Then she came. The most beautiful, delectable, desirable woman you have ever seen. No, it couldn't be, but it was. It was she—his wife, I mean.

So I gave up and gave in and spent a really dreadful week thinking my life was lost.

But she decided to seek something better somewhere and left him. Left him flat. He was so disconsolate and I was so rapturous. He finally noticed me.

Now he has promised a big surprise for our next weekend. I'm in love, I sing. I dance. I'm flying high. Shall I ask him what his plans for our future are? She won't divorce him, he says. —ORBITING

DEAR ORBITING: You're going to overshoot by more than 200 miles and your space ship is going to disintegrate. Mark my words. I don't want to sound like the eternal pessimist, but

Dear Molly Mayfield honey, you're circling for a crash! The man IS married. She won't divorce him. What's left? No big surprise is worth it. Better to revamp your dream man and turn a stronger lump on this one. He's playing little games and he's dealing you a losing hand.—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: I went out with a thief last night. Not only has he wrongfully taken my heart, but he has also taken my money.

BAPTIST WOMEN TO ENTERTAIN Emphasis will be on fashion Thursday when Women's Missionary Society of First Baptist Church hostesses an afternoon garden party in Park Estates home of Mrs. Jack Aldridge. Spearheading plans are (left to right) Mrs. Herman Simpson, chairman; Miss Claudia Pendleton, fashion show coordinator; and Mrs. Raymond Osburn.

Poolside Setting for Style Tea

Women's Missionary Society of First Baptist Church will entertain Thursday afternoon with a poolside fashion show and tea at the home of Mrs. Jack Aldridge, 5271 El Roble.

Miss Claudia Pendleton will coordinate the show in which fashions for toddlers to grandmothers will be shown. Other attractions will be a swimming exhibition and organ interludes by Bill Appleton.

Proceeds from this and other special projects planned throughout the year will go to assist in raising funds for the "Congo Concern" which is the program of bringing to the United States the Nlandu and Diawaku families of Congo students studying here.

SPECIAL guests will come from a wide area as representatives of the Woman's Baptist Missionary Society of Southern California, over-all sponsors of the Congo project.

Mrs. Herman Simpson is chairman of special projects for the local group, under leadership of Mrs. Samuel Davis, president, and Mrs. Wilmer Horton, vice president. Included on her committee are Mmes. Richard Clements, Adelaide Keating, E. Rae Moore, Raymond Osburn, Richard Steyer, and Lewis Van Winkle.

AAUN Events Readied

In accordance with President Kennedy's proclamation of United Nations Week, Oct. 21-27, 1962, the Long Beach Chapter of the American Association for the United Nations is scheduling events for local observances and programs.

Individuals and representatives of civic and cultural organizations are invited to a breakfast at 7:30 a.m. Sept. 5 in Red Velvet Room of the Lafayette Hotel. Plans for celebrating U.N. week as well as lists of available literature, films and program speakers, will be revealed at this event.

Mrs. Alexander J. Kadavy, president of Long Beach Chapter, AAUN, announces that reservations may be made by telephoning or writing to the chapter office, 1544 E. Seventh St., before Aug. 31. All interested persons are invited.

Tea to Fete Honoree on 85th Year

A tea this afternoon honoring Mrs. Daisie Macaulay on her 85th birthday will be given by her family at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Dumm, 1052 Tehachapi Drive.

Members of the family who will receive and assist are Messrs. and Mmes. Robert Macaulay, Anaheim; Frank Carr, Laguna; William Fuller, Whittier; and David Frey, Idyllwild.

Lavender and silver appointments will be used in the home and garden.

INVITED to pour are her granddaughters, Mmes. Dale Wald, Franklin Frey and John Mitchell.

Also assisting will be Mmes. Charlotte Dumm, S. F. Thompson, Paul Nowlin, William Benoist, Orville Hastings, Richard Guess and Elizabeth Bailey.

Mrs. Macaulay has resided in Long Beach since she came here from Wichita, Kan., in 1925.

Young Stars to Shine in Dance Revue

Granger Dancing Academy will present "the younger set" in a dance revue on the Recreation Department sponsored community program Monday evening in Exhibit Hall of Municipal Auditorium.

Carl H. Robertson will lead community singing to open the program at 7:30. Regenia Beam accompanies.

Highlighting the stage show will be 7-year-old Darcey Garo, singing commercial girl; the Meadows Sisters, Lonna and Gregg, doing the "When You and I were Young Maggie Blues;" Jeanie and Ben in "Ray and His Little Cheviote;" plus many clever novelty acts and the traditional George M. Cohan Revue.

I left the table to dance with this other guy and left my purse on my chair. That is the only time my purse was out of my sight, and when I checked for change last night I found the bill I borrowed from my girl friend missing.

I have said nothing to this "friend," but I wonder if I shouldn't ask him what's with charging me for the evening?—DIANA

DEAR DIANA: Sure, sure, sure. We are always so sure what happens when something is missing. We know exactly who did it and when. And we can be very, very wrong. You may just find that bill placed in another purse. You may have pulled it out in the little girl's room. To accuse a person of stealing is about the worst insult possible.

Maybe the poor guy was broke. If he did take it, maybe he intends to return it. Very unwise of him, but men can get in spots.

Try him out again sometime if you wish. But before you charge him, be sure, sure, sure!—M.M.

NOTE TO FLY-BY-NIGHT: You may think it fun to kiss and run, but wings weren't meant for hornin' in.—M.M.

It seems only fitting and proper that, as our opening sentence of this commentary, we clip a page from the past and insert it in the present.

Today's Chef of the Week, W. E. McClendon, is one of America's most decorated airmen. His 17 citations include the Purple Heart, Presidential Citation, Distinguished Flying Cross and an Air Medal with two oak leaf clusters. His plane was shot down twice, and he lived to remember both descents.

McClendon was born on a cotton farm near Dallas, Tex. He had mastered that cotton growing business before coming to Long Beach in 1934. Then his vocation geles concern, of which he became sales manager. It was here that he met his wife, the youngest daughter of the late Mrs. Laura Scudder, the lady of the potato chip and peanut butter fame.

The life of a traveling man didn't appeal to him any more, so the McClendons established their own company, the first of which was McClendon's Finer Candies. It was located at 10th Street and Redondo Avenue. Soon, two tea rooms in Westwood Village were to follow. They made a specialty of chocolates and wedding cakes.

McClendon's pre-war record included two and one half years with Aircraft Accessories Corp. of Glendale. It was one of the many companies which had its beginning because of the then precarious future. Starting with 14 employees, by the time McClendon went into the Air Corps they numbered 3,500.

Enlisting as a B-29 pilot, he flew 31 missions; principally over India, the Marianas and Tinian Island group. He was a member of the first B-29 squadron to bomb Japan. He left the service with the rank of lieutenant.

Returning to Long Beach, he affiliated with a Los An-

THEN ANOTHER bomb burst! Because of his B-29 bomber experience, he was recalled to the Air Corps to take part in the Korean fracas. He spent the next year ferrying planes to Yokota Air Base near Tokyo. He and his family, which includes "Mrs. Mac" and daughter, Carol Dale, 15, are avid "seamen," and spend most summer weekends at Catalina Island, aboard their 37-foot express cruiser, the "Carol D." He's a member of the Southern California Tuna Club.

Come winter, McClendon finds time for another favorite sport—golfing. He has a full-fledged wood-working shop with the talent and equipment to use it with fine results.

Today, our chef is going all-out and giving you his recipe for cole slaw dressing. It's an old, old one he picked up and is so good that people have actually offered to buy it. Since this is the first and last printing, be sure to clip and keep it handy.

DO NOT ADD to cabbage until immediately before serving.

COLE SLAW
(Serves 6)
Select head of good, solid cabbage. Slice as fine as possible, and chill.

DRESSING
3 tbsp. granulated sugar
1 tsp. MALT vinegar (must be malt)
¼ tsp. hot dry mustard
4 tbsp. cream
4 tbsp. mayonnaise
Mix sugar and mustard. Add vinegar and blend. Add mayonnaise and blend, then, last of all, blend in cream.

San Pedro's Fishermen's Fiesta, one of the three most photographed events in the country, will be held in the port community Aug. 31 to Sept. 1—the first time since 1957. The seagoing pageant will feature the traditional parade of more than 30 of the port's commercial fishing boats and an 800-year-old Mediterranean custom of blessing of the fleet, and is expected to attract a crowd of more than 350,000. The three-day fiesta, which this year has Gov. Edmund Brown as honorary skipper, will be headed by the 18-year-old daughter of a fisherman, Joanne Mosich, as Skipperette. Theme of this year's Fiesta is "Out of This World." More about the Fiesta on Page 7.

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on ANDREW and ANDREWS. — M. T., Mrs. A. A., G. A., Long Beach.

M. T., A. A., G. A.: ANDREWS was first used as a surname in honor of St. Andrew who became the patron saint of Scotland in the 5th century. This name was revered by the Scotch. The clan name-forms were Andrew, Andrews, MacAndrew and Anderson. The family coat-of-arms has a golden St. Andrew's cross (an "X" shaped cross) on a red shield. There are also many English Andrews families.

DEAR MISS RULE: Could you analyze DOOLIN and DULIN? — M.A., M.M., Long Beach.

M.A., M.M.: DOOLIN and DULIN are from the Gaelic Irish "dubhlainn" meaning "dark complexioned stranger." Sons of Dubhlainn formed the clan O'Dubhlainn or O'Doolin. Early clan members include Felix O'Dubhlainn, Bishop of Ossory in the early 1200s. The clan coat of arms is a shield divided into eight triangles pointing towards the center, colored alternating black and silver. Over them is laid a black and silver ring.

DEAR MISS RULE: My German ancestor was named BATES. — Mrs. T. P., Garden Grove.

T. P.: BATES is usually English, but the German surname Betz was respelled Bates by some families. Betz is from the old German "Beretz" meaning "Little Bear." The bear was symbolic of power and bravery in medieval centuries. The Betz coat-of-arms from Nurnberg has a black lamb centered on a silver shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have information on FRIZZELL. — H. H., Long Beach.

H. H.: FRIZZELL originated in Germany. The source was an ancient baptismal name, Friede meaning "Free man." Friede evolved into the nickname Fritzell which was later shortened to Frizzell.

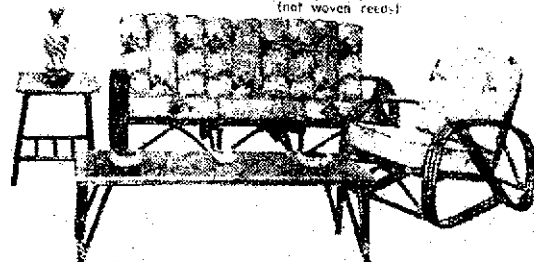

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on CLAYTON. — M. A., L. D., Long Beach.

M. A., L. D.: CLAYTON began as "Claeg-tun," a medieval English town name. The root phrase meant "town built on clay soil." There are over a dozen English towns with this name, aptly titled because of sticky clay which once filled their streets in winter time. Ancestors include Robert de Clayton of Lancashire, 1273, and Henry de Clayton, 1292. The Clayton shield is silver, emblazoned with a black cross in the center.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please explain NICHOL, NICHOLS, NICHOLSON, NICKERSON, NICKELL, NICKELS. — M.P., F.V., F.N., Long Beach; C.B., East Los Angeles; H.N., Lakewood; Mrs. J.N., Anaheim; B.P., Huntington Beach.

NICHOLSON, NICHOLS and NICHOLSON originated in medieval England and Scotland. NICKELL, NICKERSON and NICKELS are spelling variations of the same root name. These surnames all express "son of Nicholas." The source was the ancient Greek baptismal name Nikolaos meaning "victorious warrior." The Scotch Clan Nicholson of MacNicol were from Sutherland. Their coat of arms has three red eagle heads on a gold shield. The English Nichols shield has two ermine stripes below three gold suns on a blue background. The Welsh Nicholl shield is black, emblazoned with three silver spear heads. Early Massachusetts settlers include William Nichols, born in England in 1599; Anna Nickerson of Chatham, married in 1747, and Edmund Nicholson recorded in 1646.

In the footsteps of two stars of former years, lovely Heather Sears stars in "The Phantom of the Opera."

The 'Phantom' Returns

A GAINST the dramatic background of Gaston Leroux's famous classic, "The Phantom of the Opera," the appealing beauty of British actress Heather Sears, above, stands out with gem-like sparkle. She is the third actress to star in the "Phantom," following in the footsteps of Mary Philbin who played the feminine lead to the noted Lon Chaney in the original screen version in 1930, and Susannah Foster, who played the lead 13 years later, cast opposite Claude Rains. The current picture is a Hammer Film Production starring Herbert Lom. Universal produced the first two versions and now releases the British adaptation of the screen thriller.

What's Your Hobby?

By John Ronson

ENJOYING more leisure time than ever before, Americans spent a record $450 million last year for hobbies and crafts. The hobby industry expects this to increase $25 million during 1962.

With a growing variety of hobbies priced from less than a dollar to several hundred dollars, Americans are having no difficulty joining the hobby-happy.

In the Southland as everywhere, doctors doff stethoscopes and put on engineers caps to manage model railroad empires. Railroad engineers exchange their overalls for artists' smocks for an evening before their easels. Business executives unwind in their off-hours constructing miniature antique automobiles and millions of housewives find pleasure and relaxation making ash trays and table tops of mosaic tile.

FOR CHILDREN, the hobbies of today are often the careers of tomorrow. That youngster flying his model plane in an open field may be the first man to set foot on the moon.

According to the Hobby Industry Association of America, model plane building and flying is a top national favorite as a hobby-sport.

"Why do airplanes fly?" or "What's a retro-rocket?" no longer need be embarrassing questions to parents. A trip to the hobby shop, a few fascinating hours spent by father and son constructing a miniature jet or space capsule, and the questions are answered.

Summertime means model airplane time complete with national competitions and big prizes to the fastest climber, highest soarer and the most beautiful. New trends in this hobby field include plastic ready-to-fly models and improved balsa model kits. Be prepared to see the skies full of them this summer.

A BIG INDOOR trend is to electric road and race car sets. Miniatures of popular racing models whiz around table-top tracks as families wave checkered flags and cheer on their favorites.

Millions of American women are finding ways of putting their artistic abilities to use and beautifying their homes at the same time with mosaic tile kits and paint-by-number sets. Guests are surprised to learn the beautiful landscape on the wall is "just something you did one rainy afternoon," or the striking tile coffee table top was made with your own hands.

Interest has heightened also in "old fashioned" railroads, boats and automobiles. Many a nostalgic memory has been stirred working on a miniature Iron Horse or Model-T.

Seaworthy model ships are bringing double-barreled fun to their builders: Fun in the building and fun in the sail-

San Pedro's men of the sea revive their big pageant, the Fishermen's Fiesta

By Mary Neiswender

SAN PEDRO'S men of the sea—hard-bitten, wind-worn fishermen—will bring back the pageantry of the old world this week as they revive their annual seagoing pageant—the Fishermen's Fiesta.

The spectacle, dormant for the past four years, has a sporadic history—as moody as the sea or the men who sail it.

But since its beginnings in 1921 it has brought hundreds of thousands of spectators to Los Angeles Harbor and has become the third most photographed event in the nation.

In 1921, San Pedro's immigrant fishers paraded their small boats to Catalina Island—no one knows why.

IN THE 1930s they threw another parade-type party celebrating a bountiful season.

In 1945 they had reason to celebrate—their boats and their boys came back from the war.

The war-end Fiesta was a whopper and included a parachutist—leaping from a plane carrying a 40-pound tuna for then-Mayor Fletcher Bowron to start the show.

The parachutist got tangled in telephone wires, and no one knows what happened to the tuna, but the potentials of the Fiesta were too great to die.

THREE YEARS later the Fiesta took hold and for 11 successive years the event grew. The 800-year-old Mediterranean religious custom of the blessing of the fleet carried on from the first Fiesta-season. One year it was Eugene Cardinal Tisserant of Rome who came to give the blessing; other years it has been Los Angeles' James Francis Cardinal McIntyre.

Chief Justice Earl Warren, then governor, was honorary chairman one year; Richard Nixon attended in a similar capacity.

(This year, Gov. Edmund Brown will be honorary skipper. Beautiful Joanne Mosich has been chosen "Skipperette.")

But despite the dignitaries and the crowd—which this year is expected to reach 300,000—the fishermen and their boats will be highlighted.

Some 30 boats are scheduled to parade—smothered in papier-mache blossoms—vying for prizes in an "Out of This World" theme. The boats, carrying family and friends of the fishermen, will parade before television cameras on the final day of the three-day Fiesta, Aug. 30-Sept. 31.

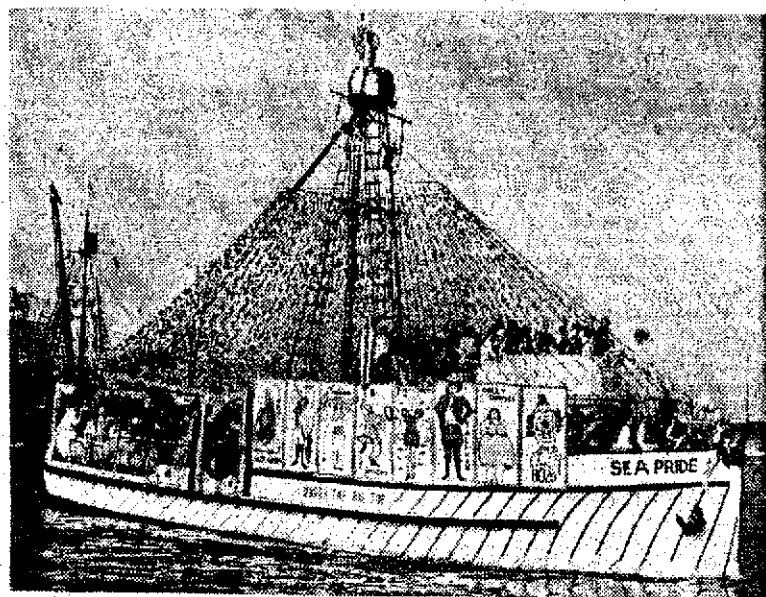

THE BOAT owners, who sneak into hidden coves along the coastline to decorate their little vessels, will be competing for plaques, trophies and cash.

But, admittedly, that's not the main reason for the Fiesta.

Adapted from ancient Mediterranean rites, blessing of the fleet is part of Fishermen's Fiesta. Above, Statue of Virgin Mary is borne to dockside.

Some of port's 165 fishing boats rest at San Pedro's fishermen's wharf, awaiting first Fiesta in four years; some 30 of them entered in the contest.

No event is complete without its "queen," in this case Skipperette Joanne Mosich, regent of Fiesta.

California Weather: Usually It's Unusual

By Aubrey B. Haines

WHEN recently the temperature at Santa Monica stood at 60 while in the San Fernando Valley it was 110, it demonstrated that California has more varied climates than any other geographical area of the same size in the world.

Indeed, California temperatures have ranged as much as 170 degrees apart! The highest temperature registered in the Death Valley was 134 degrees; the lowest was 36 degrees below zero at Bodie. An old mining camp which Mark Twain wrote about, Bodie is less than 200 miles northwest of Death Valley and so high in the mountains that in its rarefied air the miners could not get water hot enough to boil their beans.

In the matter of rainfall even as prosaic a thing as a thunderstorm has its romantic side. Southern California shows a variation from almost nothing, as at Bagdad on the Mojave Desert—where no rain fell for more than two years—to the summer resort of Squirrel Inn in the San Bernardino Mountains, where more than 16 inches of rain fell in one day. On this same mountain range more than an inch of rain was registered in a minute.

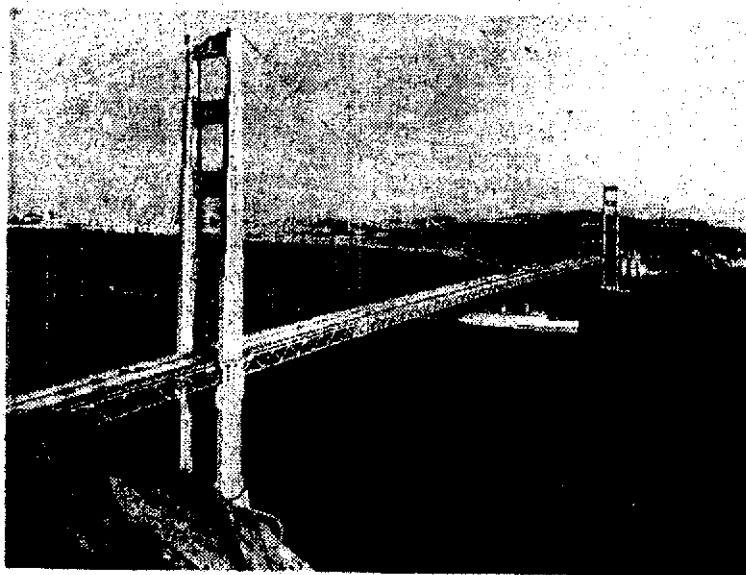

Farther south, near the Mexican border at Campo, 11½ inches of rain fell in an hour. Near the Oregon line the heaviest rain falls. The village of Monumental on the western slope of the Siskiyou Mountains near the coast received the greatest rainfall: 153.54 inches! Thirteen feet of water deposited from the heavens fell in a single year—1909.

The heaviest snowfalls occur in the Sierra Nevada Mountains. The deepest snow was measured at Tamarack in Alpine County, when 884 inches fell during the winter of 1907. In this same rugged territory the snow sometimes accumulates on the ground deep enough to cover completely a three-story building, chimney and all. Snow driest areas are only a few hundred miles apart.

California's contrasts include such scenes as the Imperial Valley sand dunes, found near Holtville. Sand absorbs and holds the summer heat.

Northeastern California is noted for great variations in temperature and rainfall. Here falls the heaviest snow. Where the state touches the Nevada boundary, the summers are hot, and the weather partakes of the desert. The extensive Sacramento Valley is watered by heavy mountain snows and frequent summer thunderstorms. In this district is the nation's only active volcano: Mount Lassen.

Two reasons account for the great diversity in California's climate: the proximity of the even-tempered Pacific to the windward and the ridge of high mountains forming the backbone of the state for nearly 1,000 miles. Only when one considers these physical conditions can he understand that within the confines of a single state may be found the hottest and one of the coldest spots in the United States, the heaviest downpours and the least rain, the heaviest snowfall and regions where snow never falls, and the greatest as well as the least moisture. So another has put it, "Whatever statement you may make about California climate, it is almost always true."

According to Marston Kimball, horticulturist with the University of California at Los Angeles, the Golden State has agricultural areas that get colder in winter than some parts of Alaska and other areas that get hotter in summer than portions of the Sahara Desert. Since 1952 Kimball has been studying California climates and making "plantclimate" maps of various areas.

"I've mapped most of the differing climates by counties and according to plant behavior," Kimball says. "The first of their kind in the United States, these 'plantclimate' maps will help realtors, chambers of commerce, industries, and ranchers by telling them what plants will grow where. So far I've plotted plant behavior on 32 county maps at one inch to the mile. I plan to produce charts of all 58 counties eventually. Combined, they will form a state map 80 feet long!"

banks 400 to 500 inches deep, are frequent.

In the same mountain range—only a little over 100 miles farther south—is Ellery Lake, where the temperature drops to freezing and below every month of the year. This station, at an elevation of 9,600 feet, is east of Yosemite Valley. The average annual temperature is 36 degrees. Compare this with the annual average of 75 degrees at Death Valley.

As might be expected, the greatest air moisture is to be found at Eureka, where the relative humidity averages 77 per cent at noon for the year. The driest air is at Independence—26 per cent for the same hour and period. Pairing these stations meteorologically again, Eureka records sunshine 46 per cent of the time as compared with Independence, where the sun shines 83 per cent of the time.

On the northwest coast the temperatures are moderate and equable with northwesterly gales and fog. The interior valleys have warm summers, cool winters, and near the coast and the Oregon boundary the rains are the heaviest in the state. Frosts are frequent in the interior, and the growing season is relatively short. It is a region of marked climatic contrasts. The dampest region and some of the Temperatures that have soared up to 134 degrees F. have been recorded in Death Valley, yet the cool Pacific is not too far distant.

What's So Phony About Roller Games?

Sunday, August 26, 1962

By Jerome Hall

CALL IT ROLLER DERBY. Call it roller games. Call it phony. Call it fierce competition. Call it fake. Call it the best sport in the world.

It's boxin' and rasslin' and racin' all rolled into one.

No one could convince a roller derby fanatic it isn't the best. Where else, he will challenge, do you find men and women both competing in a rough-and-tumble sport?

Nowhere.

You think it's all phony? Don't tell that to Judy Sowinski. She just got out of the hospital. Still faces some time in traction. Fell during a mixup on the rink at Veterans Stadium, where the professional skaters are performing this summer.

If you criticize this skating game in the presence of one of its fans, he'll think you've got a roller loose, yourself. They're the most faithful band of sports followers anywhere.

THE CHIEFTAINS of roller games (they shudder at the mere mention of roller derby, a forerunner group which left these parts under threat of tar and feathers) are fighting the popular tendency to view the sport as something freakish.

In some parts of the country, the roller games people have won the battle. New York City is one. Herb Elk, their publicist, says he coaxed New York Daily News columnist Dick Young out to the games and Young became a fan. In his column, he said, "Now I know where all the people who used to go to Ebbets Field are going these days."

The roller game is popular all over the globe, most of all in Japan and Australia. And the largest crowd ever to see a roller game show was in Paris—25,000.

One of the questions most often asked Elk about the games is why the girls go into it. It doesn't look easy. They take some hard falls. Even if some of the fights are . . . how do you say it . . . arranged, you can't soften the fall.

"IT'S THE MONEY," says Elk. "The excitement is part of it, I guess, but mainly it's the money. They make about a hundred and fifty or seventy-five a week and that's a whale of a lot more than they could make waiting on tables in a restaurant or waiting on customers in a department store. That salary is in addition to all their expenses."

There's glamour to it, too. How many girls are there in professional sports? Count 'em. Not many. It's a quick way to get on television and gain a measure of fame. Not an easy way, but a quick way if a girl has any athletic ability at all.

The roller chieftains are always on the lookout for a pretty young candidate. They run a training school in Los Angeles where there is always a new crop learning the sport. Skating on the banked tracks is a lot different than skating on a flat surface. Some girls have trained for as long as a year without ever catching on. It helps if they're pretty. In fact, the pretty ones don't have to practice nearly as long.

THIS IS ONE sport where the men play a secondary role to the girls. In fact, most spectators have about the same interest in the men's competition as television viewers have in the station break or the commercials. "Bring on the girls!" they'll shout, even as some poor fellow is busting his britches to score a point or two.

When the roller games leave Long Beach after Labor Day, the skaters head up the Pacific Coast with one-night and one-week stops at towns and cities from here to Canada. Then, if plans work out, there'll be another foreign tour.

Maybe even Paris. And crowds of 25,000 shouting Frenchmen jammed into the Palais de Pairs. When the girl skaters take to the track and begin swinging, those Frenchmen go mad. Ooo la' la.

The gracious entry with a slate floor leads straight ahead to a family room, to the living room at the right, and to a hallway and bedrooms on the left. As is usually the case, the family room in the Heydlauff home is the most used room in the house, combining comfort with luxury in an exceptional manner.

The floor is of marble, the known elegance of which speaks for itself. It also wears forever, and requires little upkeep. The entire wall at one end of the room is composed of built-ins; there are eight spacious cupboards and eight drawers in addition to open shelves. One large recessed unit reveals a complete bar with a pull-out shelf for company entertaining. Slanted shelves in the center of the unit provide a display rack for records and for original paintings done by Pamela, the talented daughter of the family.

THE CURVED, used-brick fireplace in one corner extends around one wall and has a special hearth for the TV. Facing this is a conversation grouping composed of a round table designed with eight separate pieces which can be used as individual TV tables, surrounded with low black leather chairs. Nearby is a double drop-leaf cherry table which, when extended, seats fourteen persons.

Facing the TV grouping and at the far end of the room is a 10-foot, avocado-and-turquoise colored sofa with matching chairs. The room views the pool and patio through sliding doors, ideal for Southern California's indoor-outdoor mode of living.

The living room, a step up from the family room, has shuttered windows that face the front of the home. Delightfully formal, yet inviting, it is softly carpeted in champagne, and furnishings are subtly elegant, among them orange velvet chairs, a beautiful organ, a cabinet which encases treasures from far-away countries, and, most important of all, life-size paintings of children decorating the wall. A curved couch completes the picture.

THE KITCHEN in this home is a chef's delight.

Chef-of-every-week. Don Heydlauff is especially proud of the salad corner with its own sink and an ample display of condiments decorating the shelves above. The salad corner is on a center island which also has plenty of room for the stove on the opposite side and working area-plus on all sides.

At one end of the kitchen, viewing the family room, the dinette is a portrait in blue. The set was imported from Manila. Chairs are white wrought iron upholstered in royal blue; the table is glass topped and large enough to accommodate from six to eight people. The carefully selected wallpaper is a royal blue print with a slightly oriental motif.

The bathrooms are all luxuriously designed and decorated. The guest powder room is an example, with gold and crystal fixtures and grey roses for a wallpaper theme.

Fit for a princess describes the bedroom which belongs to Pamela, the aforementioned young artist in the family. The luxurious canopied bed, the built-ins along the wall, the feminine dressing table—are customized for the young occupant. A nearby bedroom is tailored in the same perfect taste.

THE MASTER bedroom has two corner wall-to-ceiling windows which face the patio and pool. A "closet" which adjoins the bedroom is actually a full room with fifteen wide, spacious, fitted closets within. As in the rest of the home, the woodwork is of alder, a luxury item among fine woods.

In the patio, pool, garden, and play area in the rear of the home are imported furniture units. Dining tables, chairs, chaises and end tables abound with adequate seating for dozens of guests. A golf putting green, a badminton court, and generous other play areas are available.

Tombstone's Historic Hill

By Grover Brinkman

WHY DO tourists go back time and again to Tombstone, Arizona's misnamed town nestled between the Dragoon and Huachuca Mountains? Is it because of its Boot Hill Graveyard; the O. K. Corral, the old Bird Cage Theater in which Jenny Lind sang—or the world's largest rosebush?

Maybe it's ghost riders in the sky, heading their footsteps to this town that was was once said to be "too tough to die." Whatever the magnetism, it grips everyone who stands on Tombstone's historic hill, with its 259 graves, cataloging the infamous men (and women) interred here.

The West is dotted with boot-hill graveyards. Many are phony as a three-dollar bill, merely lures for the tourist. But Boot Hill at Tombstone is far from phony.

This is the spot where Doc Holliday professed a wish he might be carried some day, boots and all. But Doc died in Cottonwood Springs, Colorado, of tuberculosis, and didn't get his wish.

are those of outlaws. Mrs. John P. Clum was the wife of the town's mayor. Clum also was a noted Indian agent.

But Tom and Frank McLowery, Billy Clanton, Red River Tom and Bronco Charlie were all outlaws. China Mary and Dutch Annie were two of the women who lived and died their scarlet lives here. But an old account in Tombstone archives says that "more than a thousand buggies" wended their way to Boot Hill, for Dutch Annie's funeral, so she must have had a good side, too.

Your Hobby?

Ing. Proud park-lake captains guide their model sloops, square riggers, clippers and cruisers while children gaze in wonder and admiration.

IMPROVED telescope and microscope kits, chemistry sets and built-it-yourself radio sets are capturing a large part of the hobby market. These educational and scientific kits not only fill leisure hours, but also help boost school grades and set courses toward rewarding careers.

Not only do hobbies make the hours alone more fruitful, but they bring families closer together and increase friendships.

There is no longer any reason for anyone to have leisure time hang heavy when there are probably a dozen suitable hobby interests just waiting to be discovered.

To Grow Berries

Cane berries are much less of a tangle to grow than many people think.

If you have an old planting which has been trained on a trellis, simply cut back all the old canes which have already borne fruit and remove them from the trellis. Then loosely wind the new growth (which is probably flopping on the ground) around the trellis. These canes will bear next year's crop and then be removed in their own turn to make way for next year's growth.

Putting toys away can be fun instead of a chore for youngsters who have this Toy Box Train as storage.

By Bill Meyerriecks

AS EVERY mother knows, the secret of enticing a child into putting his toys away mainly involves providing a place for him to store them.

We think this week's Sketchbook plan for a Toy Box Train is the ideal solution. Even the smallest toddler will feel more like helping pick-up the playroom when the summons is "Let's load the train!" instead of "Get that stuff off the floor, Buster."

Dimensions are scaled to toyland passengers. The locomotive is 34½ inches long over-all, with the storage section 16 by 17 by 14¾ inches. The cattle car is 16 by 16¾ by 23 inches. Freight car is 16 by 7¾ by 20 inches.

Each car is equipped with easily mounted flat plate casters to make movement easy under any kind of load. Hooks and eyes make it possible to link the whole train together.

Only substantial lumber expense is the price of one 4x8 sheet of ½ inch plywood, which yields plywood parts in all three units. The Sketchbook plan includes exact dimensions of all parts, half sized patterns on angled parts, complete assembly and painting instructions, and authentic railroad insignia.

TO OBTAIN Toy Box Train Plan S-69, send 50 cents with name and address to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif.

Home-Built Family Gym

Physical fitness is the purpose of this easily constructed home gym, demonstrated by NBC actress, Lois Lawson.

AS THE NATION takes stock of its physical fitness, today's project is appropriate—a gym device that enables the entire family to participate in a body building program right at home without costly membership dues of a gymnasium or athletic club. It's inexpensive, takes little space and has illustrated directions for more than 20 specific exercises.

Framework is of pipe and fittings cut at the plumbing shop and easy to put together with only a pipe wrench.

To build this family gym, send name and address and $1 in currency, money order or check for Pattern No. 387 to Steve Ellinson, Southland Magazine Pattern Department, Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif.

Cosmetics Go HIGH Fashion

Today It's a Change of Face

By Mary Ellis

Southland Fashion Editor

These days milady is facing the fact that her cosmetics must match her costume.

Once was when, no matter what her clothes, she wore the same old shade of powder, the same old shade of lipstick, the same old eye makeup, et cetera, et cetera, et cetera!

But not so 1962. Anyway, not if the lady is smart—from head to toe.

She knows a high fashion wardrobe demands a high fashion face!

FACING UP fashion... the new cared-for look to top elegance of couture gowns. It's American woman's newest approach to high fashion in cosmetics.

(Dress by Pettullo-Jo Copeland. Photograph courtesy of DuBarry)

THE SCIENCE of color in cosmetics has been raised to a fine art today: face powders come in nuances of shades formerly unheard of—from wispy-light champagne beige to sultry Morocco.

Pastel eye shadows in misty green, rare lilac, blue shimmer are boldly accented by jet mascara and deep brown pencil; reds of every hue from delicious apricot cremes to dramatic pink ices provide a lipstick for every costume, every occasion, every time of day or night.

NOT ONLY COLOR, but cosmetic "engineering" is important, too.

Illustrated charts for every shape of face, explaining how to flatter its specific contours, serve as "blueprints" for just-the-right lines.

It's a day when cosmetics complete the high fashion look...

AND a day when milady, with every change of costume, can have a change of face.

Historic Boot Hill

ate grave on Boot Hill is that of Mrs. Ah Lum.

Johnnie Blair, a young cowboy, is buried there, too. Johnnie contracted smallpox while at the home of an old Mexican. No one volunteered for the job of bringing his body into town for burial, dreading the disease. But Johnnie had a cowboy friend who solved the problem. He lassoed Johnnie's boots through the window of the shack, pulled his body outside, then atop his horse dragged him feet first to his waiting grave.

THE REDSKINS helped stock Boot Hill, too. One marker for two men, Ben Scott and Al Bennett says, simply, "Ambushed by Apaches."

George Johnson's epitaph is touching: he was hanged by mistake. Three other markers bear mention: Red River Tom—shot by Ormsby. (Ormsby was a law officer.) Bronco Charlie, shot by Ormsby. And lastly, Ormsby shot.

Tombstone itself is a misnomer. Before a single shack was built here, an old prospector, Ed Schiefflin by name, stormed into a nearby Army post with news that he had made a terrific gold strike. At the time Geronimo was on the warpath. He told the commandant that as soon as he could stock up, he was going back to find his fortune. The officer reprimanded him with: "You'll go back into Geronimo's hills and find your tombstone."

But Schiefflin was lucky. He found his fortune, and the men who followed him soon set up the rudiments of a town. Perhaps Schiefflin remembered the officer's reprimand as the place became known as Tombstone.

GRADE CARD

Beacon of Learning

By Harry Karns

Education Research Associates

"CURIOSITY killed the cat."

"Ask a silly question, you'll get a silly answer."
"Ask me no questions, and I'll tell you no lies."
"Children should be seen and not heard."

Although this is the 20th century, and supposedly the age of enlightenment, adults are still using these sayings to hush up the curious child who tries to get answers in the most direct and logical way—by asking questions.

When you squelch a child's curiosity, you rob him of the light that leads to learning.

"Knowing how to learn is the ability to ask the right questions at the right time," says Winfred L. Godwin of the Southern Regional Education Board.

But obviously a child will not ask the right questions at the right time if he is forbidden to ask questions at all.

The theory that a child learns by keeping his ears open and his mouth shut prevails not only in many families but also, unfortunately, in some classrooms.

LINCOLN STEFFENS, the great journalist and writer, was disturbed by it years ago.

"It seemed to me," he wrote in his famous Autobiography, "as I thought and talked it over with others, that curiosity was the beginning and the end of education and that if one could arouse that in the minds of . . . students, they might reverse their relations with their teachers. The students would be asking questions, not the professors; the students would be learning instead of the teacher teaching."

Answering a child's endless questions is, of course, time-consuming and even wearing on the nerves—especially if the adult does not know the answer. But the adult who takes the time to listen, who controls his feelings of impatience, and who helps find the answer when he doesn't know it himself, will enjoy a reward unrivalled. It comes with the knowledge that he has helped a human mind achieve its best.

(If you wish assistance in helping your child to do good work in school, mail questions and requests to Harry Karns, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12. Letters cannot be answered individually, but some will be answered in this "Grade Card" column.)

MEDICINE AND YOU

Needles Now 'On the Rocks'

By Ben Zinser
Southland Magazine Medical Science Writer

HERE'S GOOD NEWS for kids: Shots on the rocks, as adults have long known, can be painless. Seriously, if ice is held on the skin for a minute or so before an injection, it deadens the pain of the needle.

So says Dr. Robert W. Virtue of the University of Colorado Medical Center in a report in Public Health Reports.

DIABETICS who take the drug chlorpropamide sometimes blush violently after drinking an alcoholic beverage, notes the journal Diabetes. The phenomenon, when it occurs, starts 3 to 10 minutes after a drink and reaches its peak after 20 minutes. The combination of the drug and alcohol may also give the diabetic a headache and a feeling of breathlessness.

DRINKING lots of carrot juice won't improve your eyesight—but it may give you a yellowish or orange complexion. Researchers, reporting in Archives of Ophthalmology, describe two patients with yellowish discoloration of the skin. Both patients admitted drinking 1½ pints to 2 quarts of carrot juice a day for several years in the belief that it would improve their eyesight.

At the time of examination both patients had cataracts. The discoloration, a condition called hypercarotenemia, is harmless. The color disappears when the excess intake of carrot juice stops.

DOCTORS report two new types of splints:

1. An "air splint" for first-aid treatment of leg fractures. It consists of two layers of plastic sheeting sealed so that when inflated and laced to the leg it provides rigidity because of air pressure. It can be inflated by mouth.

2. A splint made from polyfoam, a plastic sponge material, glued to plywood. Known as S & H (Easy-Grip) Splints, they are easy to use, comfortable for the patient and adequate to handle injury to any part of the body, according to the Nebraska State Medical Journal.

HOW OFTEN do you swallow? It depends, says a Harvard researcher. Dr. Clement S. Lear recorded swallows in 15 subjects, using electronic gear. Findings:

Swallows while sleeping: 7 an hour.
While eating lunch: 48 in 10 minutes.
While sitting and reading: 34 in one hour.
While lying awake: 31 in an hour.

Dr. Lear told his findings to a meeting of the International Association for Dental Research. The report is in Modern Medicine.

Southland's Home Economics Editor

PUNCH is versatile, meeting the requirements for a refresher on many occasions, and Honey Blossom Punch is a specialty that wins immediate approval. It is a delightful blend of sharp citrus, tangy apple cider and sweet, golden honey makes it as precious to the drinker as the blossom's nectar is to the honeybee.

With the punch, serve dainty circles of date and nut bread spread with Honey Cream Cheese, tempting bits of sandwiches to be enjoyed with every sip of punch.

As well as being a thirst-quencher, the punch offers quick energy that is valuable when you and the children want to enjoy active summer frolic. Honey is easily digested and turns to immediate energy. As a bonus you receive a generous portion of vitamin C from the citrus fruits and from the honey.

Honey Blossom Punch

- 1/2 cup fresh lemon juice
- 1 1/2 cups fresh orange juice
- 1 1/2 cups apple cider
- 1/3 cup honey
- 1/3 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 4 cups ice water
- Lemon slices

Combine all ingredients except lemon slices; stir until well blended. Chill. Serve in tall ice-filled glasses. Garnish with lemon slices. Makes approximately 2 quarts, 10 to 12 servings.

Honey Cream Cheese Sandwich Filling

Soften cream cheese with enough honey to spread well. Add chopped raisins or nuts.

Navy 'Dive' Saves Dog

By Eleanor Avery Price

EVERY so often the content of my mail is so interesting I pass it along word for word. From C. Lydon Lippincott, publicity chairman of Orange Empire Dog Club, comes this information approved by Navy doctors and veterinarians:

"A new method of treatment for tetanus discovered by Dr. Pascale, a Chicago medical doctor, was written up in a recent issue of Time magazine. It consisted of placing a man stricken with tetanus poisoning in a decompression chamber where oxygen was forced into the body by pressure in order to kill the bacteria. This same therapy has now been used on an 11-year-old boxer female dog. The dog had experienced the muscle spasms so familiar to this infectious disease.

"W. L. Harter, D.V.M. of Los Angeles, who had the dog as a patient, called C. L. Lippincott, D.V.M. (son of C.
Lydon Lippincott) at his hospital nearby. Dr. Lippincott called the U.S. Navy at Long Beach explaining the problem. He asked permission to put the dog into the decom-pression chamber which is used by the Navy to treat divers with 'bends.' Permission was granted, and the two veterinarians rushed the dog to Long Beach Naval Shipyard.

ANNIE was placed in the chamber and 'lowered' to a pressure equal to 100 feet under water. She was accompanied by an experienced Navy diver. Before she made the 'dive,' she was given relaxants to ease the painful contractions and sedated to calm her fears. The pressure increases the amount of oxygen absorbed into the body tissues. Tetanus bacteria can only live where there is no oxygen.

"THE PRESSURE treatment took four hours; then the dog was taken back to the hospital in L.A. The latest report is that Annie is doing nicely. It took two weeks of 'around the clock' medical care by Dr. Harter and his staff, Navy Shipyard command, veterinarians, and everyone involved with many prayers to bring about Annie's recovery. This is the first time, as far as can be learned, that this treatment has ever been used on an animal.

"The entire dog fancy salutes these two fine guardians of our pets and show dogs.
Oh yes, the two veterinarians are members of Orange Empire Dog Club."

You Ask, We Answer

By Hoskin

Q. Has the entire Alaskan coastline been surveyed?—J. S.

A. Yes. The final section of coastline survey was completed in 1953, by a field party of 80 officers and men from the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey. This survey closed the gap between Point Barrow and Demarcation Point on the Arctic Coast at the Alaska-Canadian boundary. Part of this work had to be done in winter when tractor-drawn sled trains could carry the men and supplies across the frozen tundra near the coast.

Q. What winds are called the "roaring forties"?—A. N.

A. "Roaring forties" refers to ocean areas between 40 and 50 degrees south latitude, where winds blow unceasingly from the west at 40 to 50 miles an hour. Toward the 50-degree line they become the "howling fifties." These strong, steady winds are part of the belt of prevailing westerly winds which circle the earth, especially battering in these regions because they are not impeded by large land areas. The rough part of the westward passage from Europe to North American ports between 40 and 50 degrees north latitude has also been termed the "roaring forties."

Q. What nationality is Leon Uris, author of the book "Exodus"? Did he live in Israel before he wrote this book?—R. I.

A. Uris was born in Baltimore, Md., on August 3, 1924, son of William and Anna (Blumberg) Uris. The Uris family is of Polish ancestry. After reading about 300 books on Israel and the Middle East, and traveling in Europe, Uris went to Israel in March 1956. From headquarters near Tel Aviv he spent months traveling 12,000 miles inside Israel. He visited Arab and Jewish towns, frontier farms, and co-operative settlements, and in the course of these travels he interviewed about 1,200 persons.

Man of Controversy

By Vera Williams

Southland Book Editor

LEWIS L. STRAUSS' public career has been one of distinction, but risk, controversy, boldness have been its hallmarks. The former head of the Atomic Energy Commission tells in "MEN AND DECISIONS" (Doubleday, $6.95) inside stories of Hoover, whose secretary he was, and of the Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower administrations. Einstein, Fermi, Millikan, Teller are the most appealing in his real life cast of characters, for these are the scientists who had most to do with carving out the nuclear age. What should arouse the most discussion in this book is the chapter on the case of J. Robert Oppenheimer. Strauss was damned by some for the decision that denied Oppenheimer access to defense information vital to the nation's security, but, says Strauss of those who made the decision: "Their oath of office . . . left no choice." "It was not taken to mete out punishment" and was "agonizing to those who made it."

tails." They are, as Colin M. Turnbull shows in "THE LONELY AFRICAN" (Simon and Schuster, $4.50) even as you and I, these Africans.

The author of "The Forest People," a penetrating study of the Pygmies, Turnbull, in a series of biographies of individual Africans, shows the clash of old and new among the Africans. He studies, among others, a tribal chief and a mission school-educated youth, who is regarded by his tribe as too European and by the Europeans as too African for acceptance.

Hotel Space in Hawaii

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

JUST ABOUT everyone, it seems, is going to Hawaii this year. You might think that this would pose a problem of securing suitable hotel or motel accommodations in the Islands.

Or, following the law of supply and demand, face rising prices in these accommodations.

Not so, assures the Hawaii Visitors Bureau which does a fine job of keeping its fingers on the pulse of such things.

Thanks to Hawaii's recent phenomenal construction sprint, you can, on a few hours' notice, obtain hotel space of your choosing, says the Bureau. What's more, the prices start at only $5 and $6 for modest single rooms to $8 and $10 per night for more luxurious rooms, with brand new housekeeping units for around $12 per day double on Waikiki beach, including all modern conveniences, dishes and linens.

THE WAIKIKI area is what most first-time visitors shoot at. But, it is pointed out that since Waikiki beach—and all Hawaiian beaches—are open to everyone, you need not worry whether your hotel is on or off the beach. In fact, there's not a single hotel in Waikiki that's more than a 12-minute walk from choice public swimming and water sports areas.

Housekeeping units are becoming more and more popular at Waikiki because nearby supermarkets offer such exotic foods as fresh coconuts, mangoes and papayas, coffee grown at Kona, macademia nut pastries, mahimahi and poi, guava juice, provolone, passion fruit sherbet—even smoked octopus!

But it must not be overlooked that the resort islands of Maui, Kauai and Hawaii each is only a few minutes' flight from Honolulu International Airport. It's a fact that they are becoming more and more prominent in Hawaii's overall tourist scene.

CURRENTLY, the largest and most luxurious resort complex under construction is the 212-room Sheraton-Maui, Kaanapali beach on the west coast of Maui. The Sheraton-Maui will have 150 rooms ready for occupancy in late November.

On Kauai, northernmost of the Islands, 28 beach lanai units have just been completed at Kauai Surf. Fifty-five de luxe rooms also have been added to the Coco Palms Hotel.

South of Kauai, Oahu and Maui—on the big island of Hawaii—the resort area of Kailua-Kona is looking forward to an influx of convention groups with the recent completion of the Kona Convention Center whose big hall has a seating capacity of 800.

SPEAKING OF Waikiki, steady patrons of the Halekulani Hotel will be interested to know that Henry K. Rittmeister, long resident manager, now heads the hotel as general manager. He replaces Richard K. Kimball, who resigned to devote his interests to the Waiohai Hotel which he and his brother, George, opened as a counterpart of the Halekulani a few months ago at Poipu Beach, Kauai.

HONOLULU will be a port of call on six Christmas and New Year holiday cruises scheduled to the Orient by American President Lines.

These cruises, incidentally, will feature a 25 per cent reduction in round-trip fares with all four APL transpacific liners participating—the Presidents Roosevelt and Cleveland, two each; and the Presidents Wilson and Hoover, one each.

WEEDEND GADABOUTS:

Don't fail to save a day for the Los Angeles County Fair—with many innovations—Sept. 14-30 Pomona.

Another big event coming up is the West Coast Surfboard championships Sept. 22-23 at Huntington Beach.

WHAT YOU WANT is Capt. Mike Burke's Windjammer Cruises, Inc. Write him for a folder. P.O. Box 1051, Miami Beach, 39 Florida.

There are three sizes of charter schooners—ranging from $800 a day in the February-August season to $500 between September and January.

The largest sleeps 40 ($600 per day in the off season. The smallest sleeps 26—($500 a day in the off-season). This includes everything—food, crew, port fees. If you stay out more than 10 days, you can cut the rate.

"Can you give me information on a reliable shopping service in Hong Kong? I am interested in teak wood and camphor wood chests..."

There were a couple of American girls doing this in Hong Kong. But I haven't heard from them for some time. I bought a camphor wood-lined, teak chest from a store in Kowloon. You could write to them—I think they have a folder. N'gai Fat Co., No. 5 Carnarvon Road, Mirador

TRAVEL REPORTS

You'd have to pay duty on this (10½ per cent on furniture). Small chests about 2x3x3 ran $35, as I remember, and were handsomely carved. (Better write Commissioner of Customs, U. S. Treasury Dept., Washington, D.C. See if they do rate this as furniture. And what the duty is exactly.)

"We enjoy driving and will rent a car in Mexico City for 10 days. Do you recommend the drive from there to Acapulco?"

WELL, it's the standard tourist route—Cuernavaca, Taxco, Acapulco. You can shut off the engine and coast all the way down. It has the advantage that they are used to tourists. Plenty of hotels and American food. I think it's good for the first time in Mexico. But I am not high on this route.

A pretty, less tourist drive: Mexico City to Morelia, one short day's drive.

A half day over to Patzcuaro. Nice with a beautiful plaza shaded by Indian laurels and a lot of street market action. Two good hotels there.

A half day north to Guadalajara. Big, pretty town with plenty of good hotels.

Then go south on the route from El Paso, Texas—sliding off the highway to Guajuato and San Miguel Allende. San Miguel has the best hotels and there are fine historic Mexican towns close by.

If you are strong for some beaches, take the highway to Manzanillo—between Morelia and Guadalajara.

Going Places

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

WIND-DRIVEN sand and tumbleweeds have scratched some of the paint from the sign — there are more signs than buildings today — marking the main street of Virginia City, Nev. The sign begins: "Within sight is all that remains..."

It isn't much. A movie set of wooden-planked sidewalks, hitching posts and ramshackle brick and redwood buildings. There are souvenir shops and saloons in them now, and from one of them the forlorn sound of a honky-tonk piano beats on the summer air. Beyond, only the eternal rocks and scrub of the Nevada desert.

In 1849 the magic word "gold" rang far across the deserts and prairies, and the prospectors followed the echo into these forbidding mountains that did not yet have even a name.

For 10 years they picked and dug their way towards the heights, founding Silver City and Gold Hill in their path. In Silver City, William Randolph Hearst's father built the first steam-operated ore-reducing mill, and became a millionaire.

THE GROSCH brothers, Hosea and Allan, were the first to suspect there might be silver as well as gold. Using a new process, they had a secret assay made and found they were right. But the man to whom immortality went was named Comstock.

Gold and silver, more than a billion dollars worth of it, ultimately came from the wildly rich Comstock Lode.

And what a city gold and silver built. At its peak in the 1870's Virginia City, tucked away in this mountain fastness, had 30,000 inhabitants, as many as Reno today.

Jenny Lind sang in the

opera house (there was big-name entertainment in Nevada even then). There were 110 saloons, and there were fandango houses and banks and a stock exchange and a race track and a French hairdresser. Bat Masterson and Kit Carson and Mark Twain, who was robbed, all passed through. And there is a Boot Hill Cemetery where many of the notorious gunfighters wound up.

A remarkable quantity of memorabilia remains from these days of glory, most of it junk, but all of it fascinating.

THE SALOONS and souvenir shops are decorated with monstrous Victorian chandeliers. There are organolas and pianolas, the juke boxes of their day.

Still visible on the hillsides are tailings, the piles of dirt the prospectors picked laboriously out of the rocks. Gray and abandoned, the shacks where they lived still stand, as do their sluices and shafts, paths to heartbreak or wealth.

"Matson is the Vacation Way to Hawaii," says Charles Farrell

"I'm an up-and-at-'em sort. I like 'things' happening from sun-up to sun-up. And I find what I like on Matson. Take golf. I've played with the big names on the best courses. But I hadn't gone the distance until I drove my first bucket of balls off the ranges on a Matson resort-liner.

"You stand there. Way back on the ship. You swing. The ball flies out over the rail, up into the world's bluest sky, and hangs there for a second before dropping into the sea far behind. There's no sensation to match it.

"But then, that's not surprising. Because Matson seems to have a sixth sense for doing the distinctive. You'll find it in the food, the entertainment, the facilities, and the service. Especially the service.

"In fact, I can't think of an easier way to get that great VIP feeling than a stay on a Matson resort between Hawaii and California. Take Matson and you'll agree."

There's more for all in Hawaii this fall! This is the season. The Islands are never lovelier. All the attractions of summer remain, but the surge of crowds is gone. The surf, sun and climate couldn't be more inviting. Hunting and fishing are at their best. There's pageantry and celebrations — Jamed Aloha Week and the new Festival of the Pacific. Plan now to enjoy Hawaii's most inviting season and a Lurline cruise for the best fall vacation of all.

Lenten rose is a hardy evergreen that blooms strongly in winter months. It likes shade but needs some sun.

YOUR GARDEN

Color for Winter

By Joe Littlefield

OF THE TWO most colorful of winter-blooming perennial plants, Helleborus orientalis, the lenten rose, and Saxifrage (Bergenia) cordifolia, the lenten rose has an interesting range of colors.

The single cup flowers stay fresh on the plants for some time, then the petals lose their original colors, change to a chartreuse shade and stiffen as if starched. They dry slowly till the seed pods burst. Petals finally brown and casually drop off. Plants continue to send forth new spikes of blooms.

Plant lenten roses in areas where they get hour or so of early morning or late afternoon sun, in a loose, well-drained soil. They are good as pot plants, too.

Where helleborus needs mostly shade, Serbian bellflower, a Canterbury bell type, grows in shade, also where it gets more sun than shade. This year we saw several handsome Serbian bellflowers at the shade garden show in Long Beach, grown in pots. The small, light blue, bell-shaped blossoms literally smothered the plants.

These are also grown as edging plants in partial shade. The spreading branches encroach into flower beds like the oxalis weed, but the bellflower is easily controlled by cutting back the spreading branches to form a mounted edging.

Tips on Gardening

GARDEN TIPS for the week... Deep watering is essential in August to keep lawns and shrubs happy. Hand held sprinklers are seldom held long enough to do the most good. Lawns should be checked for water penetration. Poke a stick in to a depth of several inches and see how much of it comes up dry. You might be surprised at how little moisture is getting down into the soil.

Renew overgrown and rangy privet hedges by cutting them back drastically. They won't look their best for a few weeks, but in the long run such treatment benefits them.

Set out annuals for late summer and fall bloom. Nurseries have a good supply in August.

Many indica azaleas are getting set for a fall bloom. Be sure to water them frequently and feed them this month with an acid fertilizer.

Take long stems when cutting roses to renew the bushes. Feed roses if it's been three weeks or a month since the last time.

All container-grown shrubs and trees may be set out in August. It is a good month, especially, to plant citrus.

If you need a handsome parkway covering, try Aaron's Beard (Hypericum calycinum). In summer it's a mass of bright yellow bloom.

Quick color can be found this month from the lantanas. Give them the sunniest exposure you have.

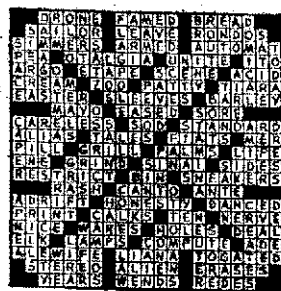

Spray It All

When spraying roses, it is important to soak the undersides of leaves as well as the tops.

If you spray from directly on top of a bush, the leaves act as buffers to shield pests and fungus spores on the undersides. Therefore, work the spray in from bush level and leave no part of the foliage untouched.

JACK TOWNSEND

Many Different Sounds

With that in mind, restaurateur George Heinrich is in the process of enlarging his elegant Sea Winds restaurant, located on the waterfront at the foot of Magnolia and Golden Avenues. The restaurant's upper deck dining room is being remodeled to include 10 more tables placed near windows presenting scenic views of the ocean, Navy Landing, seaplanes and large and small ships. In addition, the restaurant's west entrance stairway is being enclosed in glass, carpeted and glamorized with hanging lanterns. The restaurant is open as usual while the work, due to be finished within three weeks, is going on.

Among the items on the Sea Winds' menu are such epicurean treasures as flaming rack of lamb, giant Spanish prawns which are lobster-like in size and flavor, a 14-ounce teriyaki steak with an exotic gingery sauce, plus smuggler's stew, chicken Calcutta, Port of Spain shrimp creole and several special steaks. Priced from $3.75, they are served with marinated garbanzo beans as a delicious appetizer; bowls of rich soup; big salads; baked potatoes, dark and light breads, a pot of coffee kept warm on a special table heater and colorful after-dinner mints.

Entertainment at the Sea Winds is in the capable hands of Jack Townsend, who produces a variety of unusual and pleasing musical sounds on the chamberlain and celeste additions to his Hammond organ. Versatile Jack is the central attraction in a wood-paneled cocktail lounge which is one of the most luxurious in Long Beach.

The view deck restaurant is closed Mondays, but the Sea Winds coffee shop is open every day.

Germany and Jim Garner Don't Mix

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

MUNICH (NEA) — Behind the barbed wire of a German POW camp built for a movie, "Bret Maverick" was his usual charming, larcenous self.

But away from the set, in the new Germany, things were a little different, James Garner admitted. It was "Maverick" who was being "taken."

Garner was in the uniform of the Eagle Squadron, a caged birdman, but his tricks in the POW camp were right out of the Maverick television series. A Nazi guard even laughed at his jokes while he "liberated" his wallet and ID card for a scene in "The Great Escape."

But the pride of Norman, Okla., wasn't laughing as he dug into his lunch on a day off from the set. He could hardly wait, he said, to get back to the good old U.S.A. Even Warner Bros. studio, he inferred, would look good to him. That's the studio from which he made his own great escape out of Maverick and into movies.

He drove us to the little German cafe in his new black and red upholstered Porsche. The German pronunciation of Porsche rhymes with Portia and that's how James Garner sounded.

It was "Porsche Faces Life." He had been pushed around by German police in Schwabing, the Greenwich Village area of Munich. He was an innocent bystander to student riots over a police edict that there could be no more late hour group singing on the streets. By the time the story reached headlines, it sounded as if Garner had squared off against the whole German Republic.

He said he had tried to find a little night life in Munich but: "All of the places were so beat you had to breathe the prewar air."

HE HAD BEEN quoted by a German newsmag on things

JAMES GARNER

he didn't expect to see in print. He had rented a home near the Bavaria Studio while working in "The Great Escape"—"and the other morning I found $400 missing from my wallet."

Garner repeated the words,

"I'll be very happy to get back to Hollywood."

He was delighted, however, with his role in the film, the true story of a group of Allied prisoners who tunneled their way out of a World War II German POW camp under the noses of Nazi guards. It was the largest and most effective mass breakout of war prisoners in military history. The story is based on the book by Paul Brickhill, one of the prisoners, and is being directed by John Sturges as a Mirisch-Alpha Production for UA release.

GARNER PLAYS the role of Hendley, "The Scrouger." Costarring are Steve McQueen as Hilt, "The Cooler King," and England's Richard Attenborough.

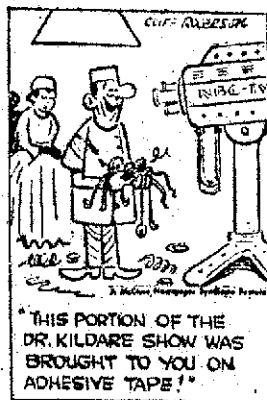

The latter is the mastermind behind the "impossible" escape. Also featured, from Hollywood, are Charles Bronson and James Coburn.

RIDDLE OF THE LUSITANIA—John Chancellor probes a 47-year-old mystery of what caused the ship to sink in only 18 minutes (the Andrea Doria, split nearly in half, remained afloat for 12 hours) and why, if she was hit aft, did she go down by the bow? The 10 p.m. hour, ch. 4, asks also about the absence of usual evasive maneuvers.

STEVE ALLEN—KTLA gives up its 45-minute advantage over "Tonight" and moves Allen's madcap 90 minutes up to the same 11:15 p.m. starting line. Singers Barbara McNair and Bill Carey are week-long guests on the ch. 5 outing, with The Vagabonds featured tonight, plus a volleyball game.

'Conscience of TV Industry' Speaks Up

(Editor's Note: The following was written by Gerald Green, author of the novel "The Last Angry Man." He is also an NBC news producer.)

By GERALD GREEN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Q: Mr. Filmtape, you are a producer of television news and documentary programs?

A: I'm the conscience of the industry, the little island of integrity in the vast wasteland, the...

Q: Just answer the question, Mr. Filmtape.

A: Yes, I'm a producer of actualities, a witness to real happenings in a real world, to the dramatic surge of history...

Q: That's quite enough, Mr. Filmtape. Now, sir, how would you describe the new science series you are producing?

A: As an entirely new concept in television journalism.

Q: And the interview series you did last year?

A: An entirely new concept in television journalism.

Q: And the children's show you're working on?

A: An entirely new concept in television journalism.

Q: You deal in nothing but new concepts?

A: Yes.

Q: AND HOW would you describe a new concept?

A: We stand the commentator up. For the next new concept, we sit him down. For the next new concept, we put him on a stool. I'm working on one in which the commentator is suspended in mid-air by piano wire.

Q: I see. What about the content of your programs?

A: We examine subjects in depth.

Q: How deep do you go?

A: We probe beneath the deceptive veneer, we put things in focus, we give dimension to the news.

Q: And how do you know you have gone deep enough?

A: By the number of times the commentator says, "But there is yet another aspect to the problem..."

Q: How do you feel about sponsors, Mr. Filmtape?

A: They are a necessary annoyance.

Q: You are in favor of them?

A: Would I ask you if you're in favor of a winning ticket on the daily double?

Q: Mr. Filmtape, suppose someone wanted to get a public affairs series on older people on the air. How would he go about it?

A: Have Newton Minow make a speech to the Senior Citizens Club of Staten Island, suggesting such a program.

Q: And a series on urban renewal?

A: Get Mr. Minow to make a speech in a slum.

Q: How would you describe a good network foreign correspondent?

A: He's a man with access to the corridors of power, a fellow who knows his way around embassies and political clubs, a hard-working, hard-nosed guy who speaks the language like a native, and is a friend of Nehru.

Q: AND YOUR feeling about network executives?

A: They back us 100 per cent. They give us a free hand. They know we have the know-how and so they flash the green light.

Q: When you are stuck for a program idea, what do you do?

A: Call Krishna Menon.

Q: And if he isn't available?

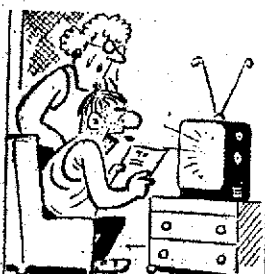

A: Call Walter Reuther.

Q: Finally, Mr. Filmtape, what exactly does a producer of news programs do?

A: He acts as the conscience of the industry, the island of integrity...

Q: Thank you, thank you sir. Don't forget your airmail edition of the Manchester Guardian.

A: Thank you.

No More Commercials for Julia

By DICK KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA) — Ed Sullivan's loss is Chicago's gain. Or, to put it another way, Julie Meade has quit her spokeswoman job on Sullivan's show to return to the stage, and is headed for a long stay in Chicago as the star of the national company of "Mary, Mary."

"I just couldn't take it any more," says the tall, reddish-haired Miss Meade. By "it," she means delivering commercials which, she says, "don't say anything any more."

She says she was exhausted—"when you're bored, you get tired"—and decided that the time had come to cease and desist.

"SO I WENT to see Ed," she says. "He's such a clear

thinker. I laid my cards on the table. And he said that it broke his heart to lose me, but that if her were I he'd quit, too."

Although she cast aside some lucrative commercial jobs — she reportedly made $150,000 a year—Julia has no regrets. She's happily not been out of work since her big decision — except for a two-week vacation and glories in her plum role, the Barbara Bel Geddes part in the hit comedy, "Mary, Mary," which hopes to settle down in Chicago for a long run.

Miss Meade is very optimistic about her stage future, primarily because she thinks that her forte—light comedy—is understaffed at the moment.

"THERE ARE so few light comedienne's around," she says. "After Barbara Bel Geddes and Nancy Olson, who is there? And they are different types from me too. I think I'll always be able to find work in that area."

She got into commercials in the first place when she found that the New York acting market was drying up as television shows moved to Hollywood. And she didn't want to move with them. Actually, she has had several chances to appear in television series, but has turned them down firmly.

"I wouldn't do a series," she says. "That's worse than doing commercials."

Perhaps you can settle a problem for me.

Every week when we watch Perry Mason, there is a running battle between my mother and dad.

Daddy says:

"His name ISN'T really Raymond Burr. He lives in Van Nuys."

Mom says:

"His name IS Raymond mond Burr and he lives in Beverly Hills."

Which is right? If both are wrong, what is the real name and in what area does he live?

I'd rather listen to the show!

Terry Vought, Lakewood
And you're going to get a chance to.

His name REALLY is Raymond William Stacy Burr, so that makes both your parents right.

He lives in Malibu when he's not sleeping over at the La Brea Studio set four-room living quarters especially set up for him. That makes both Mom and Dad wrong.

I wish you pleasant listening—to the program for a change.

In connection with the International Beauty Congress, I would like to stay this:

If the commercials referring to cigarettes were a bit more absented from the picture they would be far more enjoyable to many of us.

They've got it up front. They've got it on this end. They've got it on that end.

But, as yet, they haven't got it in the middle. How come?

Frank A. Winslow, L.B.
They ran out of tobacco.

NINA SHIPMAN plays the role of a mountain girl transplanted to the relatively progressive civilization of the Cartwrights' ranch during a "Bonanza" repeat at 9 p.m. Sunday (today), channel 4.

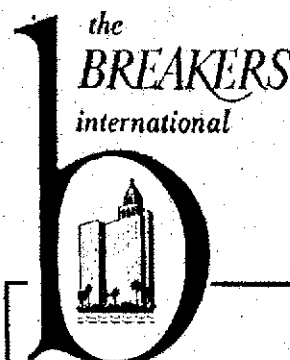

What happened to the Hathaways Friday at 8 p.m.?
—Mrs. M. A. Walker, Bellflower.

The series, currently being repeated by channel 7, has not been renewed for the fall. Too much monkey business and not enough viewers.

ACCENT — Cameras trace the birth and history of our newest state, and of the hula which originated in ancient religious ceremonies. Hawaii is viewed at 7:30 p.m., ch. 2, with more on next week's show, including visit to Pearl Harbor shrine.
ARIAS & ARABESQUES — Last in four informational specials has Met tenor Jan Peerce introducing a satirical opera and a ballet choreographed expressly for TV, at 10 p.m., ch. 2 Martha Wright, Laurel Hurley and Ronald Holgate are featured in "Galantry," operatic take-off on a daytime soap opera, while the ballet "Parallels," choreographed by John Butler, follows man's basic needs from primitive to present. Alfredo Antonini conducts for both.
SIGNAL 30 — It's deliberately late at night (10:30 p.m., ch. 11), and you'll be warned at the beginning of the contents. Its the film which attracted national attention when a Santa Monica traffic judge agreed to reduce fines for those who would watch it, being shown on television in an attempt to frighten viewers into driving safely over the Labor Day weekend. In court, women fainted and became ill watching a driver burn to death on sound film.

EVERYBODY LOVES a WARM BATH and a PROFESSIONAL MASSAGE

Now your whole family can enjoy both... for only a few cents a day!

Imagine a trained masseur at your beck and call 24 hours a day... that's what you'll have with a JACUZZI WHIRLPOOL BATH. You and your entire family can enjoy beneficial water massage in your home bathtub—every day, several times a day.

You relax in the tub of water. The Jacuzzi causes moving water filled with millions of bursting air bubbles to massage every part of your body. The agitated water whirls away sagging tiredness, nervous tension, relieves daily aches and pains.

You know how good a muscle-kneading massage feels. A warm water massage is the ideal way to relax after a tough day... to prepare you for sleep... or wake up the blood stream, the brain and the ambition. You adjust the Jacuzzi for stimulation or relaxation.

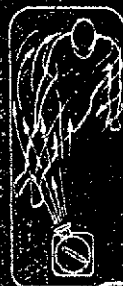

The kids will love it, too. Like older members of the family, the youngsters will clamor for their daily whirlpool bath. There'll be no fight to get them into their tub with a Jacuzzi. For calming the children at bedtime—or anytime—use genuine whirlpool massage.

SPECIAL FOR WOMEN

Last of five prime-time repeats of daytime specials deals with an antisocial, defiant child and the unhappy parents who are trying to cope with him. Darren McGavin plays an investigator for the children's court, with Simon Oakland and Norma Crane as the parents at 9:30 p.m., ch. 4. Using the "Rashomon" technique, the child is not seen, but described from different points of view by others in the cast. (Repeats of the Hospital Ship Hope and Will Rogers specials will wind up summer series, with "Don't Call Me Charlie!" and "Jack Paar" debating 9-11.)

Efrem Gets Away from Them

By EFREM ZIMBALIST JR. OF "77 SUNSET STRIP"
(Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—Not too long ago a man driving on the Hollywood Freeway came face to face with reality. In truth, reality overcame him. Surrounded by speeding demons, blinded by smog and beset by troubles seemingly unbearable, he stopped his car on the nation's busiest freeway, got out and walked away.

He hasn't been seen or heard from since. I recite this pathetic tale only as an example of what can happen to people if they are pushed too far, either by circumstances or by their surroundings or by the grinding verities of life itself.

It is something that could happen to any of us, living as we do in a frantic era marked by atom bombs, frozen dinners, heated diplomacy, soft muscles and the hard sell.

And people ARE being pushed too far.

ONE HAS ONLY to read a newspaper to realize that minds are snapping like rubber bands all over the world and in every walk of life. In our own country, mental health is a national concern, the word "juvenile" is almost inevitably coupled with "delinquent," and tranquilizers are being dispensed and swallowed by the carload. People are jumping off bridges, clouting their spouses, snarling at their betters, reviling their inferiors, drinking incredibly and, in general and all too often, behaving as though life were a terrible irritant instead of a marvelous joy.

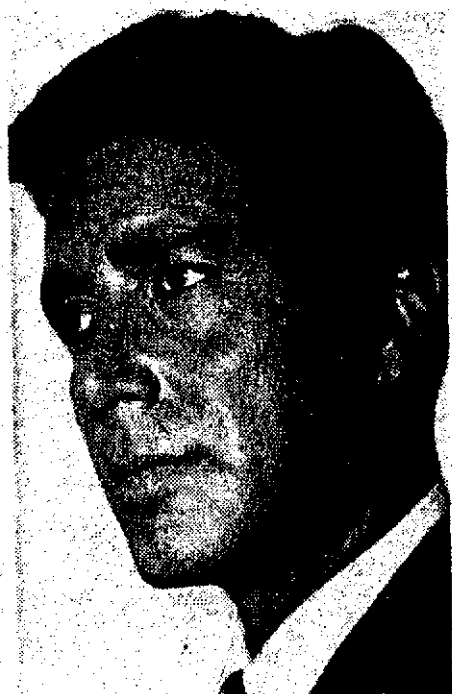

My particular solution—yes, actors are being pushed, too—is a cowardly retreat to a small farm I own in Connecticut.

I suppose not everyone can own a small farm in Connecticut, although lots of people do and certainly mine is not expensive, especially when judged by the fantastic prices of California real estate.

I THINK ONE of the conditions of a retreat such as mine—or, if you prefer, a mountain cabin, or a desert shack, or a beach shack—is that it not be located near a freeway, expressway, thoroughway or whatever the local name is for these concrete and asphalt ribbons that are opening rural America to the boer can throwers.

Thereby you are not only off the beaten path but it is unlikely that enormous subdivisions will be built around you for the benefit of commuters from some nearby city.

My farm, small as it is, has a running brook and a meadow, both of which are much better than tranquilizers when one is seeking tranquility.

EFREM ZIMBALIST JR.

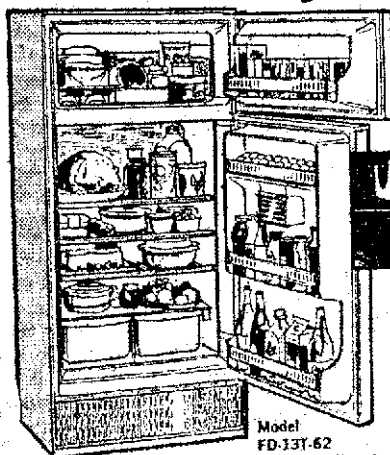

TELSTAR SHOULD FIRST CARRY NEWS

NEW YORK (UPI)—News programs instead of westerns and mystery shows will be the "grist" of international television via Telstar, according to Robert W. Sarnoff, board chairman of the National Broadcasting Co. Sarnoff said that the likely predominance of news telecasts made it essential to guard against "government tampering with free expression."

"I believe the maintenance of free expression is of transcending importance even if there were any real reason to fear that America's image abroad would be injured by our programs," the network executive declared.

Week's Top Shows

Sunday—Samples of American humor, from the tall stories about David Crockett to such new comics as Shelley Berman, will be featured on a repeat of "Laughter, U.S.A." at 10 p.m. on channel 4. George Burns narrates for film footage and radio tapes including such personalities as Weber and Fields, Eddie Cantor, Laurel and Hardy, the Marx Brothers, Buster Keaton, Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis.

Monday—"The Riddle of the Lusitania" at 10 p.m. on channel 4 is an hour-long documentary probing what caused the reportedly torpedoed ship to sink in 18 minutes. The sinking was a rallying cry for America's entry into World War I.

Tuesday—"Talent Scouts" at 10 p.m. on channel 2 has Jim Backus hosting Robert Goulet, Harry Belafonte, Joan Fontaine, Jack E. Leonard and Allen and Rossi.

Wednesday—"Howard K. Smith" at 7:30 p.m. on channel 7 takes a look at the nation's changing landscapes and wonders "Is America Ugly?" Architects discuss what can be done to eliminate blights and keep the rest of the countryside's natural beauty from being visually polluted.

Thursday—"Signal 30" shows the driver in an automobile accident being burned to death. The 30-minute film, which airs 10:30 p.m. on channel 11, is normally shown to erring motorists who have their fines reduced by Santa Monica Judge W. Blair Gibbens for consenting to watch it. Very strong stuff, but a timely safe-driving reminder for the upcoming Labor Day weekend.

Friday—"The Problem Child" at 9:30 p.m. on channel 4 is the last of five prime-time repeats of "Special for Women." This one concerns a youngster who is a bully, has no friends his own age and associates only with younger children he can pick on.

Saturday—"A Night With Della Reese" is a 90-minute session with the popular songstress. It airs 9:30 p.m. on channel 9. Among her selections will be "The Lady Is a Tramp," "Stormy Weather" and "After You've Gone."

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

She wore yellow capris.

"I call them pants," said Mary Tyler Moore. "My husband likes me in them."

Whatever you call them—capris or pants—they have become a feminine trademark for the lovely actress.

Rare is the domestic scene on CBS' "Dick Van Dyke Show" when Mary, in her role as housewife Laura Petrie, is not seen in capris.

Which is perfectly OK with Mary.

"I just don't believe women wear high heels and dresses in the kitchen," she said. "Pants are much more comfortable."

Mail to Mary from viewing wives back her pants' stand. In general, they emphasize their joy at finally seeing a wife portrayed and attired sensibly.

SOME WOMEN, concedes Mary, make a mistake in wearing poorly fitted capris.

"Too tight," she said. "So tight that they wouldn't properly fit their 10-year-old sister."

Mary's capris—ready-made, not tailor-made—fit properly and becomingly.

"I suppose," she said, "that if a wife is the domineering type, her wearing pants would be one more symbol her husband would resist."

"In my own home this is no problem."

"My husband is the boss and there's no question about it."

Her husband, Grant Tinker, has been the boss for 12 weeks, the length of time they have been married.

IN THE DOMESTIC capriciousness of "The Dick Van Dyke Show," there is some question as to who is the video boss of the household.

Some question, but not much. Usually it is wifey who knows best.

But some of last season's ending episodes and more of the upcoming season's have wifey knowing best in a more humorous fashion.

"I started out at the beginning of last season as a straight man," said Mary.

One look at her would convince even a cigar-store wooden Indian that any casting of the curvaceous Miss Moore as a straight man had overlooked a few major points.

Her "straight man" reference, however, was to lines—verbal—that she fed to her TV hubby.

"As the season progressed," she said, "the scripts were changed so that I'd have more funny lines, too."

HER ABILITY to do the "funny lines" has provided her the most satisfaction on the show. But it is the unfunny part of her domestic portrayal that has brought her the most mail, surprisingly, from teenage girls.

The girls ask her for advice on such matters as how to handle their boyfriends and how to fix their hair.

Wives who write frequently ask her for recipes.

"That's funny," said Mary. "Because if I'm not the world's worst cook, I don't know who is."

"About the only thing I can cook is a poor man's beef stroganoff—made of hamburger."

When it comes to another field, dancing, she definitely is not the world's worst.

"I'M A PHYSICAL NUT," she said.

"I started out to be a dancer—and dancers are very active people. They lunge for a cup of coffee instead of sedately walking over to get it."

"They're liable to break out in a wild cha-cha in the midst of a political discussion, still holding up their conversational contribution."

"It's just that they—including me—have to be limber all the time."

To help keep herself limber, Mary still practices ballet.

For the practice, she makes one concession.

She doffs capris and puts on a leotard.

Come to think of it, what would he wrong with housewives wearing nice comfy leotards around the kitchen?

Especially if the wives looked like Mary Tyler Moore.

Q. I would like to find out how many times Dominquin, the great Spanish bullfighter, has been gored. Also, is he married?—Anna Banks, Toms River, N.J.

A. Dominquin, 36, has been gored 11 times, is married to the former Lucia Bose, Italian film star. They have three children, are expecting a fourth.

Q. What happens if Sophia Loren and Carlo Ponti are convicted on charges of bigamy? I understand they have been ordered to trial in Rome.—K.G., Minneapolis, Minn.

A. If convicted, the Italian actress and her husband could get up to five years in jail. They were wed by proxy in Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, in 1957, three years after Ponti obtained a Mexican divorce from his first wife, Giuliana Fiastra, a lawyer. Italian law does not provide for divorce, and Ponti's action is not recognized by the Italian courts as legal. The charge against Sophia Loren is concurrence in bigamy.

Q. How old is Irving Berlin? Has he retired? What are his hobbies? Is he worth, as I've read, $50,000,000?—Louis Flowers, Detroit, Mich.

A. Berlin is 74. He tried to retire several years ago but discovered such hobbies as painting and fishing unsatisfactory. He turned again to music and composed a musical comedy, Mr. President, which will open on Broadway this October with an advance sale of $1,600,000. Berlin is a millionaire many times over. Best guesstimate of his fortune: $25,000,000.

Q. Can you tell me if Princess Margaret of England has had her hair bleached orange?—Doris Llewellynn, Baltimore, Md.

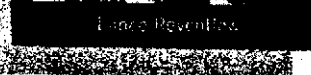

A. It's been tinted orange on occasion to blend with her clothes.

Q. How old is Merle Oberon? What's happened to her? She used to be the most beautiful woman on the screen?—M. Mentone, Chula Vista, Calif.

A. Merle Oberon is 51. Now married to her third husband, Mexican industrialist Bruno Pagliai, she plans to star in a forthcoming movie, Love and Desire, with Curt Jurgens. It will be her first film in six years. She lives alternately in Mexico and Hollywood.

Q. The cigars which Winston Churchill smokes—what kind are they?—B. Kerns, Racine, Wis.

A. Havanas.

Q. Conrad Hilton, 74, is building hotels all over the world. Where does he get the enormous sums to finance construction?—Mark Porter, De Land, Fla.

A. Says Hilton: "I get other people to put up the money for our hotels. Then we run the hotels and pay back the money over 20 or 25 years."

Q. If a husband leaves his wife or refuses to live with her, can the courts force him to? I have reference to the well-known Chinnery case now in the British courts.—V.T., Salem, Mass.

A. Mrs. Irene Chinnery, married to Wing Commander Henry Chinnery, former equerry of Prince Philip, recently asked the divorce court to grant a decree for restitution of her conjugal rights. Such a decree was granted, and her husband was ordered to return to his wife. No court, however, can compel him to fulfill his conjugal functions.

Q. Please answer this question: The five leading colored female singers, Lena Horne, Eartha Kitt, Pearl Bailey, Shirley Bassey and Dorothy Dandridge, are all married to white husbands. How come?—G.P., Washington, D.C.

A. Their show business careers put them in contact mostly with white men.

Q. Does Arnold Palmer's wife play golf?—K.M., Fort Worth, Texas.

A. "Just enough," she says, "to make me realize that I'm not very good."

Q. Can you tell me if Bernard Baruch, 92, goes to Switzerland to be treated by Dr. Paul Niehans, the rejuvenator?—Charles Fortes, New York, N.Y.

A. He does.

Q. How much alimony is Janet Leigh receiving from Tony Curtis after 11 years of marriage?—S. Lauren, Oakland, Calif.

A. One dollar.

Q. Why can't film stars stay married? Look at Jill St. John married to millionaire Lance Reventlow. She has everything money can buy. Why does she want out?—Kathy Lemoyne, Omaha, Neb.

A. Jill wants her husband to give up car racing which is his occupation. Reventlow refuses. Says Jill: "I do not intend to finish second to any racing car." Says Lance: "She is an actress, and I am an auto racer. We have separate lives and that's that."

HOW TO SAVE YOUR LIFE ON THE... MOST DANGEROUS WEEKEND OF THE YEAR

I AM ADDRESSING this article to you, Mr. and Mrs. Motorist, in the hope that you will not be among the thousands killed or injured next weekend.

All signs point to the fact that Labor Day 1962 could be the worst holiday for traffic deaths in the history of the U.S. That's the grim assessment of our U.S. Bureau of Public Roads, which recently completed a study of accident records. Over the years, it was discovered, Labor Day weekend has been the most dangerous holiday of all.

This year's Labor Day is even more ominous because it will be the only long holiday weekend in 1962. Every other major holiday falls in mid-week. That means thousands of Americans—perhaps you too—have been waiting all summer for Labor Day to hit the highways.

As chairman of President Kennedy's new Interdepartmental Highway Safety Board, I've been directed to throw the full weight of the government's scientific and engineering resources into reducing the staggering annual totals of auto deaths.

Driver Register Started

We're working, for example, to build into the great new Interstate Highway System life-saving features that will prevent 2000 deaths in 1962 alone. And we've started a Driver Register, a permanent list of drivers whose licenses have been revoked. If a violator tries to get a license in another state, authorities can ask us for his record and act accordingly.

We're sure these new programs will help. But in the last analysis, safety is still your job. You and your fellow motorists are the only ones who can reduce the number of Americans killed and injured next weekend—now predicted at 60,000.

To help you help yourself, we have selected the following 10 watchwords for safety from the research findings of the Bureau of Public Roads. These are the most important things to do. Read them; check yourself against them. Then use them on the road this weekend.

by LUTHER B. HODGES

U.S. Secretary of Commerce

Before you start:

1. SAFETY-CHECK YOUR CAR. At the very least, make sure your tires, brakes and lights are fully serviceable. I've put safety belts in my own car, and advise everyone to do so.

2. PLAN YOUR TRIP. Get good maps and information; lay out your trip thoughtfully. Estimate realistically how far you can go each day by staying within the speed limits. Plan to drive not more than eight hours a day; if that is impossible, include plenty of rest stops.

3. SAFETY-CHECK YOURSELF. Too often drivers take better care of the car than themselves. They'll run themselves ragged trying to clear everything up at the office and at home, staying up much too late the night before leaving.

While en route:

4. STAY ALERT. Some tips: eat lightly so you don't become drowsy. Abstain completely from alcohol at least until you've stopped driving for the day. Stop periodically to stretch your legs.

5. OBEY THE SPEED LAWS. Serious accidents increase drastically at speeds above 65 mph. High speeds pay off poorly for the risk involved. On the New Jersey Turnpike, for example, you can observe the legal limit of 60 and travel its length in 118 minutes. If you gamble and go 70 the most you'll save is just 17 minutes.

6. USE JUDGMENT. The law sets limits, but within those limits you have to use common sense. On a good dry, 60-mph highway, for instance, driving at less than 40 is actually dangerous. But on a wet road at night, you should stay under the legal speed.

7. MAKE COURTESY A HABIT. Psychological studies show that accident repeaters tend to be overly aggressive. Don't work off your tension on the highway. You'd do better to tell off your boss—it could cost you your job, but not your life!

8. EXERCISE SELF-CONTROL. We all know the "big George" type of driver who weaves in and out of line, cursing everyone else on the road. Remember you're traveling for enjoyment. Relax.

9. COMMUNICATE. We must cooperate with other drivers to stay alive. Let the fellow behind know what you're going to do. Use all four kinds of signals—not just left turn or right turn, but "slow down" and "pass me." If your car breaks down, warn other drivers by tying a handkerchief on the traffic side of the car or, at night, keeping dome and tail lights on.

10. BE IMAGINATIVE. Imagine yourself in that other car in the next lane, for example. Think what you would do if you were its driver, and guide your own car accordingly. Of course, you can't anticipate everything; expect the unexpected and be ready to act promptly.

Every driver can and should add items to this list. But I guarantee that if each of us concentrates on these 10, we'll soon make a change in the present intolerable situation, where it's at least 50 per cent more dangerous to drive a car than to ride an airliner, where almost five million people are injured each year—equal to the combined population of Los Angeles and Philadelphia.

Labor Day is a time to work for safety. Let's put these 10 watchwords into practice then—and every other day too. ■

Two young Americans meet, marry and serve mankind on a

PEACE CORPS

HONEYMOON

by ED KIESTER

KORAT, THAILAND.

MOST YOUNG AMERICANS want to start married life with a nice family car, a full array of appliances, roomy living quarters, and a comfortable income.

Bill and Sally Davis are different. They live here in two rooms with a hot plate, boil all their drinking water, get around on bicycles, subsist on $150 a month—and love every minute of it. Their only complaint is that life isn't rough enough. "How," says Sally, "can you feel you're serving mankind when you live in a house with a shower?"

Bill and Sally, as you might have guessed, are members of that modern army of secular missionaries, the Peace Corps. They met and fell in love in its ranks and have been married just five months. Now, like three other couples and 37 single Americans here—and 3,200 more Peace Corps volunteers around the globe—they have voluntarily turned their backs on the comforts of home to help less fortunate peoples achieve a better life. And they can't think of a better beginning for a marriage than that.

"This is the life," says Sally, an athletic, 23-year-old blonde from Summit, N.J. "Doing something that really helps people, doing it with someone you love—there's nothing like that feeling." Her husband, 6-foot-1, crewcut, quiet, echoes her: "We get a feeling of accomplishment from our job here that we couldn't get in any other way."

The Peace Corps' mission in this Southeast Asian land of jungles and temples, undertaken at the request of the pro-Western Thai government, is to teach in the colleges—mainly English but also technical subjects. The project has been in operation only since January. Yet already it is rated a whopping success—so much so that the Thais have requested a second wave of volunteers, due here next month.

Here in Thailand's arid, scrubby Northeast, where Bill and Sally and four others are assigned, the Peace Corps' work is of special importance. As the nation's most depressed region, the Northeast is most susceptible to Communist penetration. Education—as symbolized by the Peace Corps—is seen as the region's great hope to bring prosperity and save democracy.

The Davises and four other volunteers are assigned to two small colleges here to aid the Thais in this struggle. Bill gives lessons in basic English at Northeastern Technical Institute. He also instructs classes in electricity and electrical wiring. His bride is an English instructor at Nakorn Rajasima Teachers College. Neither ever had taught before, but already both are favorites with their students. The reasons are: ability, personality—and the fact that everyone is charmed by the story of their romance.

The saga of Sally and Bill does read like a movie plot. A year ago Sally Maclay was fresh out of Wells College, Aurora, N.Y., looking for a job with a publishing house. Bill Davis of Ipswich, Mass., had just finished studies at Franklin Technical Institute, Philadelphia. One day Sally had a squabble with her family and on impulse went out and signed up for the Peace Corps. About the same time Bill, who had previously volunteered to go to Chile and been turned down, got a hurry-up call to come back for reconsideration.

Their paths crossed at the University of Michigan, where the Peace Corpsmen went for training. They had a few dates, nothing serious. At the end of training in December both went home on visits. Then came the flight to Thailand.

"Just by accident we happened to sit together," Sally remembers. "We didn't pick each other out or anything, it just happened that way. Well, naturally, we started to talk. And the more we talked the more we liked each other. I hadn't realized there was so much to Bill—and I guess he felt the same way."

"When night came we slept on each other's shoulders. When it was day we just stayed where we were and didn't talk to anyone else. The whole trip took three days, counting a stopover in Hong Kong, and the closer we got to Bangkok, the harder it became to think of being separated. Finally, a couple of hours before landing, Bill blurted, 'Well, why don't we get married?' When the plane landed we had our plans made."

"I CAUSED quite a stir," Bill adds. "I was supposed to go down to Songkla, down near Malaya, and Sally was to come up here. That all had to be rearranged. There was no place for a couple at Songkla and I had to trade with another guy. We got all that squared away and I got a bad case of sunburn and was hospitalized. Finally we went out to a nai aphur—he's like a justice of the peace—and got married."

The Davises were the fourteenth couple to meet and marry in the Peace Corps. The Thais were delighted when they turned up as newlyweds. Everyone fawned over them. They were put up in a lavish guest house and to their embarrassment treated like royalty. The red-carpet treatment lasted several days until space was found for them in the faculty housing.

Today life for Bill and Sally is nearer normal. During the school term, they follow a routine of about five classes a day each. They serve mainly as English conversationalists, helping the students to repeat words again and again until they get the pronunciation right. Bill also voluntarily teaches English to nurses at Nakorn Rajasima Hospital, and both give spare-time help to students trying to improve their English.

However, starting married life in a strange land has meant some tricky adjustments. For instance, there is the Thai custom of separating the sexes. Husbands and wives don't sit together at social gatherings here, nor do they touch one another in public. Volunteers are urged to abide by local custom. Hence Bill and Sally don't hold hands in public view.

OR TAKE their living quarters. Most people back home think Peace Corps volunteers all live in grass huts. The Davis home is anything but that—a two-story structure with a soaring roof line, designed in the best contemporary style by Wadanya Nathalang, the school's headmaster and a graduate of Cornell School of Architecture. The upstairs is a huge, window-walled bedroom. The first floor is a cement-floored kitchen. The Davises enjoy such luxuries as a bath and shower, a patio and a refrigerator.

For all its modernity, however, the house is without electricity half the day. The water—as in most of Southeast Asia—is unsafe to drink without boiling. Meals must be cooked on a one-burner hot plate. The area crawls with insects and the Davises dare not sleep without mosquito netting.

Also, the Thai diet leans heavily toward fiery dishes which have given both Davises digestive upsets. And the new bride can't get accustomed to shopping by the haggle system. "They see me coming," Sally says ruefully of her trips to Korat's market. "They spot my blonde hair and they say: 'Here comes the farang [foreigner] again,' and the prices all go up 100 per cent." Hence Thai friends often shop for them.

But these are mere inconveniences. Bill and Sally agree, such as you might meet in putting down roots in any new place. Offsetting them is the relationship between the volunteers and their students. The Thais yearn desperately for education, and they feel that somehow the Americans can impart it almost by magic.

PALL MALL

Smoke "travelled" through fine tobacco tastes best. Pall Mall's famous length travels and gentles the smoke naturally... over, under, around and through the finest tobaccos money can buy. Makes it mild... but does not filter out that satisfying flavor!

The idealistic young Americans fear they never can live up to these expectations.

"They have unbelievable faith in us," Bill says. "Some students came to me and asked if I would teach a course in air-conditioning. I said, 'But I don't know anything about air-conditioning.' They were puzzled. 'Of course you do,' one said. 'You went to school in America, didn't you?'"

And since they are just 23 and right out of school themselves, the Davises can't see themselves as omniscient personages worthy of the most exalted treatment—which is the kind of status a teacher enjoys here. They can't get used to students leaping to attention when they enter a room, or greeting them with a bow and a wye—the Thai palms-together gesture of respect.

On this point, there is just beneath-the-surface friction between the volunteers and some Thai faculty members. These Thais resent the way the Americans engage students in informal chatter and treat them as equals. Nor do they understand why the volunteers encourage students to ask questions. In Thailand the teacher's word should not be doubted.

Some of the Thais were shocked when Bill and Sally didn't want to hire a servant. They wouldn't hear of a teacher doing her own housework. They sent a steady procession of applicants around to apply for the job. Finally Bill and Sally got the idea and hired a young girl to clean and iron—for a little over $6 a month.

THE DAVISES have made a host of friends here. "We have a great big love affair with Thailand and the people," Sally says. They find the Thais polite, shy and restrained, but full of good humor. Sometimes they're invited to Thai homes for Sunday dinner, a traditional feast served amid jokes and laughter.

Fellow faculty members are their best friends and most frequent guests. Bill and Sally have taught several to play bridge. Thai women often are disappointed in the apartment. "They've heard so much about American homes," Sally says, "and they can't understand why ours doesn't look like something out of Better Homes and Gardens."

One thing the couple expected, however, has never come to pass. Almost no one asks questions about the Cold War, about U.S. foreign policy, or about such issues as atomic testing and segregation. When U.S. troops moved into this region during the Laos crisis recently, there was much discussion of world affairs, but very little of it was anti-U.S.

"The people here are very sophisticated," Sally says. "They know the issues very well. They understand what's going on in the world." The Davises are, however, frequently bombarded with questions about colleges in the U.S. The goal of many students here is an American diploma, which they regard as a sure passport to success.

Both Bill and Sally say they are pleased with the way their Peace Corps stint is turning out—despite the letdown of living in what they call "luxury." They're paid $75 a month each and find this more than enough for simple living, without frills. (Another $75 is banked for each at home, as a kind of mustering-out pay.) The Peace Corps also provides medical care, vacation pay, counseling, and regular bulletins on what's going on back home.

The Davises think they may stay in the Peace Corps after their present two-year term ends. The Peace Corps now has projects going in 17 countries, (see box) and several sound alluring to Bill.

"At any rate, I think I'd like to stay in some kind of government service," Bill says. But neither of the Davises have really made up their minds about the future. There's too much to occupy them in the present—too much to learn about each other, too much to see in a new and wonderful country, too much pleasure to be gained by helping other members of mankind. ■

Pronouncing English, Bill Davis teaches Thai nurses.

Want to join the Peace Corps?

A FEW WEEKS AGO Congress approved virtually without opposition a bill increasing both the size and the budget of the U.S. Peace Corps. Among those who praised the organization in speeches before the vote were several early critics, including Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona and Rep. Howard Smith of Virginia.

Probably no organization in U.S. history has been so acclaimed—nor so captured the imagination of so many Americans—as this new and idealistic effort to aid the downtrodden of other lands.

In the Peace Corps' 16 months of existence, thousands of Americans have volunteered. But many more still are needed. In special demand are nurses, agricultural experts, mechanics, plumbers, electricians. Teachers are always needed because many Peace Corps projects are in education.

The Peace Corps operates in Ghana, Sierra Leone, Tanganyika, Nigeria, Somalia, Malaya, Thailand, the Philippines, St. Lucia, Colombia, Chile, Brazil, Venezuela, Pakistan, India, Jamaica and El Salvador. Volunteers get a monthly living allowance (from $70 to $180, according to the local economy) which covers food, housing and other essentials. A "mustering-out pay" of $75 a month is banked at home.

To volunteer, you must be at least 18 and have a high school diploma. (For some projects, however, a college degree is necessary.) Married couples are eligible if both qualify and they have no dependents under 18. And there is no maximum age limit. For details, write Peace Corps, Washington 25, D.C.

Cycling along, the Davises follow Thai-powered "pedicab" down main street of Korat, Thailand. Bicycles are furnished them by the Peace Corps. At rear are local restaurant and tire repair shop. One Korat restaurant specializes in hamburgers and sodas. Peace Corps volunteers frequently get together there for an American dinner and chat.

Playful pet, a baby gibbon from Northern Thailand, yanks at Sally Davis' blonde hair. Gibbon—named "Gib"—has run of the couple's apartment. Sally bought him for $7.50 on visit to Chiang Mai. Davises hope to have children, aren't sure how this will affect their Peace Corps status. Another American couple is attempting to adopt a Thai baby.

The bear facts

by B. SHIRVANIAN

INCREDIBLE KING. Ibn Saud, 64, king of oil-rich Saudi Arabia, claims he's the happiest man on earth. A few days ago, six of the king's 94 concubines gave birth to five boys and one girl, all on the same day. Saud already has 38 sons by his four wives and an estimated 100 offspring by his concubines. Girls are not included in this number. Saud's father, who founded the dynasty at the turn of the century, had 108 sons at the time of his death. The present monarch receives approximately $300,000,000 in oil royalties each year and treats his women lavishly, keeping them in kingly splendor in his various mansions in Riyadh, his capital city. Saud, who is 6-foot-4, calls each of his children "prince" or "princess" and is considered a truly generous man. Frequently, he gives away those of his concubines who bear him no children, hoping that they will become more fertile with another sheik. When Saud tours Europe, his retinue generally includes half a dozen of his favorite women, many of whom dress in European style, have their hair done à la Jackie Kennedy.

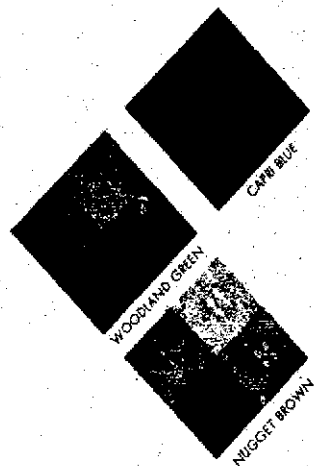

STATUS SYMBOL. Do you know what the average teenage girl today regards as her most important status symbol? A steady boyfriend. If not a "steady" then at least a sometimes boyfriend. Girls nowadays are maturing earlier than ever. According to one medical officer at a recent doctors' convention, "The general opinion is that there is more sexual experience and experiment by the adolescent than formerly. It is now clear that the incidence of venereal disease in adolescents and of pregnancy in teenagers under 16 is increasing." Parents! Take over!

CLOSING BASES. By the end of 1963, the U.S. will close out its B-47 bomber bases in Great Britain, sending 40,000 Americans home, and saving the U.S. Treasury $100,000,000. These bases are useless. Targets originally assigned the B-47 bombers are being rapidly shifted to Polaris submarines and land-based missiles. The British who griped about the "invasion by American forces" a few years ago are now griping that the departure of the GIs will "mean the loss of all that money they spent here."

EDUCATIONAL HELP. Information on the financial help college students can obtain is now available in a new pamphlet issued by the U.S. Office of Education. Entitled "Financial Assistance for College Students; Undergraduate," it lists the number and amount of scholarships, closing dates for scholarship applications, amount of aid provided, and other pertinent matter. It sells for $1.25 a copy, can be ordered from the U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C.

My favorite jokes

by EDDIE FOY, JR.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Eddie Foy, Jr., who stars in a new TV comedy series, Fair Exchange, this fall, is a member of a show business family that dates back almost 100 years. Foy made his stage debut in 1911 at age 5 in the act billed as "Eddie Foy and the Seven Little Foyes." The act continued until 1928 when the elder Foy died. Eddie was the only one to stay in show business, appearing in many hits on Broadway and a dozen movies.
A widower, Foy lives in Beverly Hills with his son, Eddie Foy III, a studio casting director.
Here are some of Foy's favorite funnies:

A woman received her bill from the doctor for treating her young son for measles.
She thought the bill too high and called the doctor to complain.

"You forget," the doctor reminded her,
"that I paid eight visits to your house while your boy was sick."

"That's right," the mother said, "but you forget that it was he who infected the whole fourth grade!"

During World War II a massive flight of Allied bombers set out to spread tons of propaganda leaflets over Germany. All the planes but one returned to base safely.
Everyone scanned the skies anxiously as the hours passed without a sign of the missing plane. Finally the plane came in for a landing two days later. The frate operations officer dashed out and demanded, "Where have you been?"

"Delivering leaflets," said the pilot.

"How long does it take to drop a few leaflets?" asked the officer.

"Drop them?" the pilot exclaimed. "We pushed them under people's doors!"

Definition of progressive jazz: Instant noise.

This is a favorite up in Minnesota among the Scandinavians. A bank president was strolling through the cashier's cage when he noticed a teller skillfully counting out thousand dollar bills.

"You look like a bright young fellow," said the banker. "Where did you get your financial training?"

"Yale," replied the teller.

"And what's your name?" asked the banker.

"Yohnson," was the reply.

Description of the oddball actors who hang around Schwab's Drugstore in Hollywood:
"The Uncastables."

Did you hear about the French horn player whose toupee fell into his instrument?
He spent the rest of the evening blowing his top.

Kids today have a lot more self-confidence than I did as a boy. The 5-year-old son of a friend of mine was busily drawing a picture, and his mother asked him what it was.

"I'm drawing a picture of God," the boy said.

"That's foolish," the mother replied.
"No one knows what God looks like."

"They will," said the boy with conviction, "when I get through."

ANECDOTE of the WEEK

When President Kennedy recently arranged for refugees from Red China to enter the U.S., it wasn't the first time he had solved a refugee problem: Fanny Holtzman, noted U.S. lawyer, tells of another occasion.

"It was in 1939, and I was in London working to help refugees escaping from Nazi Germany," Miss Holtzman recalls. "Neither Britain nor the United States would relax their strict immigration laws to accept them.

"One day I ran into Jack—his father was then ambassador to Britain—and told him my problem. He had a few ideas, but nothing worked. Then one day Jack had an inspiration.

"Why not send them to New York as visitors to the World's Fair?" he suggested. "They can get visas for that. Then once they are there, no one will have the heart to send them back."

The scheme was tried—and it worked. Kennedy's idea thus became the formula by which thousands hounded by Hitler escaped to freedom.

ZONE STATE

THIS IS THE STORY of a town and of 61 school children who saved it from disaster.

The town is Berwick, Pa., and the children are fifth- and ninth-grade pupils at two of its schools. Last fall they started something that has changed the history of their home town and provided an inspiring example for American communities everywhere.

It began last November 8, when Berwick's peace and quiet were shattered by a sudden announcement. The huge American Car and Foundry Company, the town's biggest industry, broke the news that it was going to close down its Berwick plant in late 1962.

The townsfolk were stunned. American Car and Foundry employed nearly half the city's manpower. When these men were thrown out of work, what would they do? What would happen to their wives, their children?

Strange New Words

The children themselves caught the fear in their parents' faces. They watched the adults gathering grimly to discuss the news; they overheard strange new words like "ghost town," "hard times," "depression." There was tension and gloom in many of the households of this pretty little community of 15,000.

The next morning, in two different classrooms in two schools on opposite sides of town, the children came trooping in for their lessons. The classes were Mrs. Martha Kershner's fifth grade in the 14th Street School, and Andrew Soback's ninth-grade civics class in the Orange Street School.

Mrs. Kershner recalls how upset the children were.

"They gathered in the classroom at the window facing the plant," the teacher relates. "Some of them were crying. They knew, young as they were, what the news meant."

Soback says of his students, "Some of them had already planned to go to work for ACF after they graduated. And they realized this would mean they'd lose close friends whose families moved out of town, maybe even have to give up a college education for lack of money."

President's Pen Pals

Both Mrs. Kershner's young fifth-graders and Mr. Soback's older pupils wanted to do something. But what? By a strange coincidence, a single idea occurred to both classes at the same time: Why not write a letter to President Kennedy?

It happened that letter-writing exercises were the regular lesson in Mrs. Kershner's class that morning. Each of her pupils composed a letter to the President. Then Mrs. Kershner put stamps on them and mailed them to the White House.

What did the letters say? Here's a sampling:

Wrote Paul Jaffin: "Mr. President will you please try to do something about them closing down the American Car and Foundry Co. of Berwick, Pa.? You see my father and grandfather won't have any work and then they will want to move."

Wrote Barbara Ann Dietz: "If [the plant] closes up my father will have to quit and then I won't be able to have any Christmas and we won't have any money to buy food to eat."

The kids who saved a town

Lynn Garrison: "The people of Berwick need a new place for working." Yvonne Yohery: "Would you please send another Co. to fill its place?"

Meanwhile, across town in Mr. Soback's ninth-grade civics class, students were attacking the problem from a more adult angle. The kids decided to deal directly with the President, because, says Soback, "they felt in a democracy they had the right to go to the top. About 10 of them formed a committee to draft the letter. They did a lot of research on Berwick and its advantages and resources."

Schoolchildren who wrote President Kennedy pose with teachers near Berwick's factory.

The committee finished the draft at student Donna Hummel's house one evening. "We felt sure President Kennedy would pay attention to us," she says. "ACF had helped our country win World War II and was important enough to stay where it had been for so many years."

Another ninth-grader, Mary Ann Nickle, commented: "I read in the paper a while back that one poor little boy—in New York, I think—addressed a letter to God asking for $5 to buy Christmas presents for his family. Kennedy received the letter and sent $1. I thought if he could answer something as trivial as that he was sure to answer something as big and serious as our problem."

Their letter pointed out Berwick's advantages—the town is flood-free, on a main highway with access to three airfields, enjoys a skilled-labor supply. "During the past two world wars," the letter added, "Berwick has been one of the chief suppliers of arms to our fighting forces overseas." This letter, neatly typed, also made its way to the White House.

Meanwhile, Berwick's adults were also getting busy. The mayor, businessmen and labor leaders went to ACF, did their best to persuade the company to change its mind. But ACF officials shook their heads, argued that the centers of railroad traffic growth have shifted to the South and West. As a result, there was not enough business to support a railroad equipment plant in Berwick. The company had to get out.

Enter Planners

From Harrisburg, the state capital, came planners to talk about ways of attracting new industry to Berwick. A new group—the Berwick Industrial Development Association—tried to raise some $2,500,000 to buy the ACF property, preferably with a U.S. government loan from the newly-formed Area Redevelopment Administration.

But progress on all these fronts was discouragingly slow, and the local newspaper urged the town to keep its chin up.

Now the scene shifts to Washington.

There the letters had come to President Kennedy's personal attention. He read them carefully, passed them on for "positive action" to William Batt Jr., Area Redevelopment Administrator. One day the phone rang in Berwick school headquarters. It was Batt. He wanted to meet the kids who had written the letters.

The result was a special assembly on December 18 in the local high school. Guests of honor were Mrs. Kershner's 29 children and Mr. Soback's group of 32. Present also were Batt and Pennsylvania's U.S. Senator Joseph Clark, who had driven up from Washington in a snowstorm. In Batt's briefcase were the original letters from the kids.

As the meeting got under way, Batt asked each letter-writer to stand up, assured them individually that no one in Berwick was going to starve. Then he said to the entire audience:

"There's a lot to be done and most of it will have to be done by you people in the community, but we will see what we can do to help. If the initiative shown by these children of yours is any guide, I'm sure you will do it."

New Business

That meeting was the turning point. Since then, Berwick has received $1,555,000 in loans from Batt's agency, plus another $350,000 from the Small Business Administration. The town will use the money to buy the ACF facilities, then attract new industries to use them. Already, the Berwick Forge and Fabricating Co. has agreed to occupy about one-sixth of the old ACF area.

Berwick isn't out of the woods yet, but there is new hope and pride among its people. A high government official summed it up in a statement to PARADE. He said:

"What has happened in Berwick is the result of many people working together—private enterprise, the community, the state, and the federal government. But the impetus for all of this activity came from the school children of Berwick. The concern they expressed for the future of their community and their families served as the spark for this joint effort. America can be proud of the children of Berwick."

"Come back in eight or 10 years," adds the mayor, Wayne Schugler, "and you'll find a bigger and a stronger Berwick than even when ACF was at its peak. We'll have some tough times, but we'll make it. And God bless our kids—the ones who wrote the letters."

THE THREE ATTRACTIVE young women at left are the happy winners of PARADE's first annual Majorette Award—given for excellence in fashion design. The honor is shared by their school, the University of California at Los Angeles, which receives PARADE's first $1500 fashion scholarship.

PARADE's new Majorette Award has been established to encourage college students with fashion promise. Each year a $1500 grant is given to a major U.S. school of design. Students then compete for Majorette Statue awards for the best fashion designs. Eventually, every accredited school of design should receive the scholarship award, which will be used to help a design student. UCLA School of Design was selected as 1962 recipient.

Our first prize winner Stephi Green was always interested in fashion but never had much confidence in her ability until she won her prize. Gayle Chamberlain was "ecstatic" about her award and Maja Zuber was happy for the "vote of confidence." All will go on in the design field.

Shoplifting by Juveniles Here Soars

An explosive increase in juvenile shoplifters has created an emergency in Long Beach, police and business officials said Saturday.

A special task force of private detectives has been mustered to combat the problem which has reached epidemic proportions.

Prime target of many of the shoplifters is airplane glue, officials said, which delinquents sniff for thrills. In many stores the glue has been removed from public display.

Glue-sniffing, Dr. Jacob Sokol said, virtually guarantees permanent damage to children's blood, liver, kidneys, upper respiratory tracts and can result in permanent brain damage. Dr. Sokol is chief physician for Juvenile Hall in Los Angeles.

Officials said glue-sniffing and shoplifting by children from 9 to 18 years old has grown alarmingly in the past year.

Long Beach police and Downtown Long Beach Associates have combined efforts to reduce the problem.

"Shop theft, as we call it, amounts to a $1-million-a-year loss in Long Beach, and involves people of all ages, of which teen-agers represent a sizable percentage," said Charles Charleston, chairman of the DLBA committee on shop theft.

"The fad of glue-sniffing has prompted an alarming rise in the theft of airplane glue," Charleston said. "In many stores the glue has been removed from display, and is sold only on request."

Capt. Paul Landsdowne, head of the Long Beach Juvenile Division, said that 100 children in Long Beach will be arrested this year because of glue-sniffing. An additional 2,000 will be discovered throughout the county.

"The problem is not unique to Southern California. Every city in the country is experiencing its hazardous results."

Police Chief William Mooney said that unless the problem is realized by parents as being extremely serious, more and more young people will be trapped in the habit.

"We need a strong public-education program stressing the dangers of glue-sniffing combined with a real awareness by parents that their children could be engaged in the glue-sniffing habit," Chief Mooney said.

To combat teen-age and preteen shop theft, the DLBA has hired a number of private detectives and shoplifting specialists who will work with specially trained juvenile officers to patrol stores frequently hit by sticky-fingered children.

DLBA Executive Director Vito Romans said his group intends to stamp out shop theft in Long Beach, and will prosecute anyone caught stealing.

"All stores have instructed their employees how to detect shoplifters quickly, and what to do to assist in their arrest," Romans said.

"We are tired of losses, and of dealing with those people who are arrested, released, and return to shoplift again. The city's judges are behind this program, and promise to enforce sentences, to the letter of the law, against anyone convicted of shop theft."

Chief Mooney said parents can help combat shoplifting if they are more suspicious when a son or daughter comes home with an item claimed to be borrowed from a friend. Frequent checks of dresser drawers also deter a child's desire to steal, he said.

"The problem is big, but if everyone gets behind it, I am confident the problem can be licked," Chief Mooney said.

Exile Describes Raid on Havana by Two Launches

MIAMI (UPI)—The Student Revolutionary Directorate said Saturday that two launches manned by Cuban exiles took part in the shelling of two buildings on the Havana waterfront.

It said that one of the targets, a theater, was attacked while a meeting of "technicians," presumably presided over by Prime Minister Fidel Castro, was in progress.

Juan Manuel Salvat, a member of the directorate and coordinator of the attack, later gave an eyewitness account of the shelling in an interview. He said the United States "had nothing to do with our mission."

Probing of Venus Delayed

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—Eleventh-hour technical troubles forced U.S. scientists to postpone a planned attempt to shoot a payload of instruments 181 million miles early today to probe the secrets of the planet Venus.

The difficulties cropped up during the last part of the all-day-Saturday countdown. The delay will be for at least 24 hours.

The problems were centered in the 10-story Atlas-Agena space rocket which carries the gold-and-silver-painted instrument package—an electronic explorer named Mariner-2.

EARLY indications were the problems were not serious, and that the shot possibly could be rescheduled for early Monday morning.

As planned, the 447-pound payload would arrive in the vicinity of Venus Dec. 14 and then perhaps answer one of the oldest and deepest mysteries of the universe: Is there atmosphere surrounding Venus that would sustain life.

AVALON AMOUR Boy Jumps Ship for Sake of Love

By SHERM WILLIAMS

A massive sea, air and land search for a missing Downey boy, Donald Heller, 15, ended happily for everyone but Donald Saturday evening when an officer found him walking down an Avalon street. Donald had been missing since 12:30 a.m. Saturday when the SS Catalina sailed from Avalon for San Pedro. When found, Donald had a strange light in his eyes...

It is an impossibly long way from Downey to San Diego if you are a 15-year-old boy whose special girl lives there.

Especially if you aren't sure she is your girl friend.

And it is just a jump from the deck of the SS Catalina to the dock at Avalon. The big ship is still next to the dock and the big screws are just starting to push her away toward San Pedro. The deck hands are pulling in the stern lines.

A LINE from a song ripples across your mind. "Rita, your mind says, and then the song cuts in:

"I left my love in Avalon, beside the sea..."

Donald wasn't going to leave his girl in Avalon. When the love bug bites, man, you move.

MONEY CAN BUY HER MODESTY Miss IBC Deceived Us on Cheesecake

By CHARLES RIDGWAY

Copyright 1962 by the Independent Press-Telegram

Australia's Miss International Beauty was on her way home today after admitting she really doesn't mind posing pictures in bathing suits after all, provided there is a good reason—money.

Dark-haired Tania Verstak, who says she wants to be a church-sponsored refugee worker, haughtily refused to pose for the usual swimsuit picture requested by photographers during this year's International Beauty Congress competition here.

IT WOULD VIOLATE her religious principles and "be completely out of character," declared the 21-year-old college co-ed during the contest.

Billed as a serious-minded student of Chinese philosophy, Miss Verstak carefully neglected to mention a two-year career as a part-time model which included modeling for a swimsuit manufacturer.

Her non-academic activities came to light Saturday, a week after her triumph in the beauty pageant, when a news feature syndicate distributed two publicity pictures released weeks earlier by the Australian Tourist Bureau. Because they identify Tania only as a former Miss Australia, the pictures almost escaped notice.

One shows Miss Verstak frolicking in Australia's mountains, scantily clad in skin and a brief, two-piece bathing suit made of a peck-a-boo eyeliner material. The other has her throwing snowballs, displaying her 34-23-35 figure with equal clarity.

TRUE FACTS BARED by Australian cheesecake picture of Tania Verstak, Miss International Beauty, were that Tania, despite her refusal to pose in bathing suit during IBC contest, will pose that way for what she terms "good reasons."

to show visitors they could ski and sunbathe at the same time," she explained.

Why pose in a bathing suit in the mountains and not at the beach?

"That was different," said Tania calmly. "That was a job I was being paid for. There wasn't any reason to pose in a bathing suit in Long Beach."

Before she realized her suit secret was out, Miss Verstak declared she

Carl Rowan, Negro, to Be Delegate to U.N. Assembly

WASHINGTON (AP)—Carl T. Rowan, deputy assistant secretary of state for public affairs, is to be named a member of the United States Delegation to the new United Nations General Assembly, informed sources said Saturday night.

The 17th General Assembly will convene next month.

Formal announcement of Rowan's selection is due to be made next week.

Rowan, 36, is top ranking Negro in the State Department. He was named to that post by President Kennedy on Jan. 25, 1961.

When he joined the State Department, Rowan left behind a 12-year span as copy editor and reporter for the Minneapolis Tribune, plus lucrative sidelines as author and lecturer.

Rowan, a native of Ravenscroft, Tenn., became in 1944 one of the first 15 Negroes to win commissions in the Navy's V-12 officer training program. In 1951 he was the first Negro to win the "Outstanding Young Man" award of the Minneapolis Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Names of other members of the delegation were not disclosed.

CHARITY QUESTIONED Patman Suspects Hughes Tax Gyp in Complex Plan

L. P. T. Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—A tax-exempt foundation set up by Howard Hughes may have saved his financial empire millions of dollars in federal income taxes and renegotiated profits on defense contracts, House investigators say.

Details of the Hughes transactions are contained in a report by Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman of the House Small Business Committee. Patman is engaged in a study of the huge growth of tax-exempt foundations and their impact on small businessmen.

Patman's investigators recently completed a lengthy examination of the operations of the Howard Hughes Medical Institute of Miami Beach, and are engaged in further studies.

IN HIS FIRST report on the Hughes foundation, Patman questioned whether it served as a tax-saving device. He expressed an opinion that it may have indirectly boosted government defense costs as well.

The Howard Hughes Medical Institute was set up, primarily to perform medical research. In 1955, the Internal Revenue Service called the institute a tax-dodging device, but changed its mind two years later. In 1957, the institute was granted tax-exempt status.

The Patman report, delivered to Congress early last week, was the product of a study of tax returns and financial reports of the medical institute which never before have been revealed. These show that the Hughes institute is an elaborate connecting link between two major Hughes holdings. The sole trustee and absolute head of the medical institute is Howard Hughes.

THE MEDICAL institute was set up when Hughes Tool Co., wholly owned by Hughes, turned over the Hughes Aircraft Corp. to the medical institute. Hughes Aircraft employs about 28,000 workers and has annual sales of about $500 million.

Tool-company assets turned over to the institute were carried on the company's books for $37,000. The

Wyman Blasts Gibe at Brown

By BOB WELLS
L. P. T. Staff Writer

SACRAMENTO—The California Democratic State Central Committee will elect officers here today to lead their party through the coming campaign.

Eugene Wyman, a Beverly Hills attorney, is expected to be named Democratic state chairman without opposition.

Saturday, Wyman got his party's campaign off to a running start by charging that the John Birch Society, "working hand-in-hand with organized backers of Richard Nixon," is mounting a "scurrilous" campaign against Gov. Brown.

His reasoning, he said, was that charges of being soft on communism or being "pink the John Birch Society," always seem to happen to people who run against Richard Nixon in California. It goes all the way back to the Jerry Voorhis and Helen Gahagan Douglas campaigns.

THE DEMOCRATIC leader, who has served as Southern California chairman the past two years, exhibited bumper strips reading "Is Brown Pink?" which, he said, have been appearing in increasing numbers all over Southern California.

However, he admitted that he had no evidence tying

THE BUMPER strips, he said, were being sold by bookstores which specialize in John Birch and other right-wing publications.

"I think you will admit this is the most scurrilous campaign piece that has been issued to date," he said.

L.A.C. Says: AFL-CIO and Brown to Oppose Nixon

The line of attack on Richard Nixon was clearly defined this past week at the convention of the AFL-CIO held here in Long Beach. Gov. Brown was the keynote speaker followed by other Democratic candidates. Their major attacks were on Nixon whom they attacked as being antilabor as compared to the all-out subservience to unions as exemplified by Brown and his fellow candidates.

There were no specific instances that showed Nixon as antilabor. But by innuendo he was pictured as an enemy to the working man. In particular, his campaign was condemned because it was charged employers were encouraged to give their views to their employees. It was called a back-door approach because it did not come through the union leaders.

As could be expected, Nixon quickly replied by labeling Brown as "a rubber stamp for everything the union political bosses want—right or wrong." This of course, brought outraged comments from union leaders who were running the convention. They said Nixon was invited to go before the AFL-CIO political action committee but ignored the invitation. They did not comment on the fact he was not invited to speak before the delegates at the convention.

Since Gov. Brown used the AFL-CIO convention to start this controversy it is evident he places his hope for re-election on the power of that organization. By contrast, Nixon is appealing to the rank and file union members over the heads of their leaders. His refusal to go before the AFL-CIO political action committee was thoroughly justified. That organization was committed to the support of Brown and other candidates who have virtually a 100 per cent record of support of union demands. Had the union leaders been nonpartisan they would have invited both candidates to present their views to the 2,000 delegates at the convention.

We know of no antilabor sentiment by Richard Nixon. But a candidate with less than a 100 per cent union voting record has virtually no chance of union endorsement. In our opinion, Nixon's attitude is one that the rank and file members would approve if given the opportunity to hear it. But the union leaders with their paid campaign workers and newspapers do not give that opportunity. For this reason his campaign to inform workers in their places of employment is sound and practical.

Coming directly from being the main speaker for the state CDC, Richard Richards was also an honored speaker at the convention. He called for changes or repeal of the Taft-Hartley and Landrum-Griffin antilabor racketeering acts. These two federal laws restrict the power of the unions to some extent. They outlawed Communists from holding office in unions. They have been under attack by union leaders ever since their enactment—which came about only after some union leaders had been proven guilty of harboring Communists and arrogantly denying the right of nonunion workers to get a job.

Mr. Brown has drawn the line. He has gone all out to make himself the champion of unions. In the attacks on Nixon the union leaders and Brown are attempting to make this another "right to work" fight. That issue is not involved. What is involved is whether a governor is to act for all the people of California—or is he to be the willing tool of union leaders who demand and expect undemocratic control of their members' lives and their freedom of choice of candidates. It was Brown—not Nixon—who raised the issue—and who has made himself the union leaders' candidate. But we doubt he has gained the confidence of a large segment of the rank and file members.—L.A.C.

Boy Tells Slaying of Sailor

Formal charges were lodged late Saturday in Norfolk, Va., against a youth who admitted slaying the sailor-husband of a Long Beach woman.

Killed Thursday was Gordon Ross Holm, 27, whose wife, Kathy Dorothy, lives in Long Beach. Her street address was not immediately available.

Murder-robbery charges were brought against Carl Matthew Powell, 14, who allegedly beat the third-class machinist mate to death with a chair leg.

Det. F. C. Bruce said Powell, who lives with his mother near the murder scene, a Norfolk street corner, admitted the slaying in a signed statement.

Holm, stationed aboard the attack cargo ship Uvalde, also is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wiggo Holm, Viborg, S.D. He joined the service in February 1956.

Road Deaths 300 Monthly in California

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Highway accidents in California killed people at the rate of more than 300 a month during the first seven months of 1962.

The California Highway Patrol reported Friday that 2,261 persons died in traffic accidents between Jan. 1 and July 31.

That's 174 more, or an increase of 8.3 per cent over the same period in the previous year.

Teen-Age Boy Dies of Fumes

The body of a teen-age boy, who apparently committed suicide Thursday was found Saturday by his mother, according to Downey police.

George Paul Hogenmiller, 16, was found by Mrs. Leah Mae Hogenmiller, 49, in the family car in the garage at 12329 Blodgett St. Downey officers said he died of carbon monoxide poisoning. Mrs. Hogenmiller was unable to give police a reason for the boy's action.

Downey Boy, 15, Jumps Ship All for Sake of Lovely Rita

Helicopters can fly out over the ocean looking for your body and Coast Guard cutters can drive through the waves while their lookouts scan the sea. Your name can be on every news broadcast and your name can be in all the newspapers. But you don't know.

YOU KNOW one thing. Her name is Rita. And she is staying at Avalon. Pretty soon she will be going home to San Diego and you won't even know her last name or where to find her in San Diego. You won't even know whether or not she wants to write.

It is that bad.

Donald walked over to where his mother and father sat on the Catalina and borrowed $2 from his mother. Then, with a box containing his swim fins and swimsuit, he jumped off the ship and hurried back into Avalon.

THERE WASN'T much to do. Just wait for morning. And it was hard to sleep outside.

On the ship, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Heller of 9054 Adores Ave. missed Donald.

They couldn't find him at the Wilmington terminal either.

Worried, they went to police. They recalled Donald hadn't wanted to leave Avalon and remembered him mentioning a girl's name, Rita.

Quickly the theory developed that Donald had jumped overboard after the Catalina put to sea in an attempt to swim back to Avalon. He is a strong swimmer, the Hellers said.

BUT THEY feared the worst. Forces were mustered for a sea search. Helicopters, the cutter Morris and two seaplanes began searching shortly after dawn.

The Hellers maintained a lonely vigil in the lobby of the police station in San Pedro.

While the seaplanes circled over the channel, Donald found Rita and they spent a happy day together.

LONELY VIGIL is kept in San Pedro police station lobby by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Heller of Downey. Much later they were told their missing son, Donald, 15, had been found in Avalon.

L.B. Woman Identifies 'Miss X,' 21

He learned her last name, Roveyno and he learned she was just the right age for him—13. They decided to see each other again Saturday evening.

NEWS STORIES told of the missing boy and reports trickled in to deputies. Five persons remembered seeing a handsome boy get off the Catalina just before she sailed.

The search centered in Avalon.

At 6:15 p.m. Saturday Robert was walking down Summer Street killing time until he could see Rita again.

He was completely, blissfully unaware of the search being made for him.

Officer Fred Petersen saw him and checked the picture he had in his pocket.

It was Donald. The search ended.

DONALD WAS taken to headquarters and his parents called. Arrangements were made to put him on the Catalina at its midnight sailing.

Father and son talked on the phone.

Afterward, the father said, "He'll get a lecture, but that is all."

"Like most smears, it is almost impossible to trace. There is no union label on it, no printer's name and nothing to indicate what organizations or individuals are circulating it."

He said the Democratic Party is contemplating legal action to force the bookstores handling the bumper strips to reveal their origin.

The Democrats spent most of their biennial state convention Saturday hailing the record of the state administration.

CONVENTION delegates heard speeches by Lt. Gov. Glenn Anderson; Controller Alan Cranston; State Treasurer Bert Betts, and Don Rose, candidate for secretary of state.

A major theme of the speeches was California prosperity and Democratic "fiscal responsibility." Gov. Brown sounded the keynote with his speech noting a $35-million surplus and calling for elimination of state income taxes for 840,000 low-bracket taxpayers.

Cranston said Republicans had tried to paint Democrats as wild-spending, fuzzy-headed idealists.

"Since January of 1959, with Democrats holding all but one constitutional office and with working majorities in both houses of the legislature, we have proved that we can be fiscally responsible and humanitarian at the same time," Cranston said. "We have handled the state's finances with acumen and responsibility and have kept the books balanced. We have lived within our means."

BETTS CLAIMED that since August 1961, restoration of competitive sales of California bonds had saved California $25 million in interest costs.

"Prior to my restoration of competition," he said, "California was paying a rate above the national bond buyers average. This rate has dropped to below the national average."

In addition, Betts said, the fact that all bonds sold competitively "have been quick sellouts demonstrates that investors do indeed have confidence in the future of California."

THE STATE committee today will consider a resolution by Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh declaring the Communist Party and the John Birch Society to be totalitarian groups, and establishing a committee to recommend within a year means to deny membership in Democratic Party organizations to any member of the Communist Party or the John Birch Society.

Sen. Clair Engle will be the keynote speaker for today's meeting. State Sen. Richard Richards, nominee for U.S. Senate, also will address the committee members.

Miss IBC Sort of Deceived Us

didn't mind wearing a swimsuit to the beach but "not for photographs."

AS SHE AND her chaperon, Mrs. Howard Dumm of 1052 Andrews Lane, packed for Tania's departure, they joked about the bright red, single-piece bathing suit she brought with her. "This is the one she didn't wear," said Mrs. Dumm.

"It's wonderful to have such a fine, seriousminded girl win the contest," the chaperone said.

Miss Australia, who won her nation's title nine months ago, said she didn't think her refusal to pose in a swimsuit aided her score in the judges' minds.

"As Miss Australia, I had been asked to keep up the standard of the quest," she said. "Since we were judged in play-suits, not swim suits, I could see no reason for posing."

SHE ADMITTED that her then-secret experience as a model for magazine and television advertisements, along with two previous beauty titles, had given her the poise and assurance to help her chances.

Tania's biography, released at the beginning of the contest, carefully avoided reference to her modeling career.

It notes she speaks English and Russian, was born in North China and escaped with her parents from Communist persecution in her native land.
Her parents had earlier escaped from Russia.

Tania is completing her second year at Sydney University studying English, psychology and Chinese history and philosophy—which latter she calls her favorite subject.

The biography also failed to include the fact that Miss Verstak earlier had been judged "Miss Movie Ball" in a contest among Sydney theater usherettes in 1960.

AT THE TIME of her IBC win, Miss Verstak said the only reason she had entered the original Miss Australia contest was because it was a benefit for spastic children. Indicating she didn't quite approve of beauty contests in general, she turned down a world tour for the IBC but said she would carry out a commitment to tour Australia because it would benefit crippled children.

Just before her departure, however, she admitted she had become used to the idea of being judged the world's most beautiful girl.

"I came here feeling I had not the slightest chance," she said, "and it took me a while to get adjusted."

The reigning beauty said, however, she had enjoyed her stay here and "found the people just as warm and friendly as they are in Australia."

Tania contends she still intends to seek a career helping refugees in Europe to reach Australia, which she says still has plenty of room and opportunities for immigrants.

SHE SAYS SHE "never took modeling seriously."

"I just took the modeling jobs—most of them television commercials for American firms—because they paid well and I needed the money to attend the university, which is expensive," she explained.
"I never did clothes modeling because I'm too short (5-foot 5½ inches)."

She said she couldn't earn enough money working in an office. "But the life of a model doesn't appeal to me. Your face soon becomes too well known and people get tired of seeing it."

Earlier, she had said she worked for her father as an advertising consultant. He owns an insulation manufacturing business. She intends to invest some of her $10,000 IBC prize money in the company.

Tania admitted her modeling had "made life more interesting for me."

"I MET A VARIETY of interesting people," she said. Miss Verstak plans to return to college in January following her tour and hopes to graduate in about a year. "I have to get more schooling in order to get the kind of job I want, helping immigrants," she added.

Miss Australia said modeling, even in a bathing suit, never embarrassed her. "I picked only the jobs that appealed to me," she reported.

Leaving International Airport Saturday, Tania said she was taking very few souvenirs with her except for the wardrobe she won in the contest, which completely jammed a large pile of luggage.

Her only real souvenir, she said, is a tin of chocolate-covered ants which she bought in an American supermarket. "I just wanted to show my friends you could actually buy them."

Miss International said she planned to stay a few days in Hawaii with friends before going on to her homeland.

Miss Verstak arrived in Hawaii Saturday on her way home from California.
She had a black and white stuffed panda under one arm. A hatbox swung from the other.

Two hours after landing in Honolulu she flew to Kauai Island for a three-day stay to "catch my breath." She is scheduled to leave for Sydney Tuesday.

What does she intend to do in Hawaii?

"I plan," she said, "to do nothing here except lie on a beach in a bikini."

Holdup-Loot U.S. Faces Search Fails Problems at Oceanside in Azores

ST. LOUIS (AP)—St. Louis police said Saturday a tip from one of the men implicated in the $17,200 Anheuser-Busch Credit Union holdup in St. Louis led Oceanside, Calif., police to dig up a large vacant lot in a futile search for buried money.

Detective Fred Grimes directed the search. He said Oceanside authorities scraped two feet of earth from the lot with a road grader but nothing was found.

A large part of the money taken in the Aug. 3 robbery has been recovered and five men are charged in the case.

Police said one of the five,
Robert Elroy Williams of St.
Louis, told them he buried $3,000 in a leather sack near the home of relatives in Oceanside.

4,000-Year-Old Temple Found in Holy Land

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI)— An American archaeological expedition has discovered a 4,000-year-old temple at which the Biblical patriarch Abraham may have worshipped, it was reported Saturday.

A spokesman for the Drew-McCormick School of Oriental Research expedition said the temple was found within the ruins of ancient buildings at the site of the city of Shechem, a religious center of the northern Israelite kingdom in the period from 1,900 to 1,100 B.C.

He said it was believed the small temple room had been used as a place of worship by Abraham because of knowledge of the whereabouts of the patriarch during his later adult life and the pre-temple importance of what is now called Tel Balatah.

Hunger Strikers Help Union Fight

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—The six hunger-striking members of the Chula Vista International Association of Machinists union ended their week long demonstration Friday night at the request of their union.

Ray Bryant, business agent for the IAM local in Chula Vista, said Saturday their strike had helped. He listed the tentative agreement between the union and Rohr Corp. on the arbitration section of their new contract as an example of the effectiveness of the strike.

LISBON (AP)—Portugal has handed the United States a memorandum that indicates negotiations for a renewal of U.S. bases in the Azores will be long and difficult, informed sources said Saturday.

Under terms of a renewed lease of 1957, the United States must withdraw from its huge Lagens Base and the Santa Maria standby base within six months after Dec.
31 of this year if no new agreement is reached. The United States has spent $100 million on the bases.

HIGH Portuguese officials said the memorandum proposes an agenda of items Portugal wants to discuss at the time negotiations for the Azores renewal agreement come up.

Once friendly relations soured when the United States supported U.N. criticism of Portuguese colonial policy in Africa. They deteriorated further when the United States stood aloof as India seized the Portuguese enclave of Goa.

Portuguese officials refused to disclose what the proposed agenda contained. It is believed to include a request for greater U.S. understanding—if not support—of Portugal's position in combatting U.N. efforts to force this country to abandon its African territories.

U.S. Embassy sources said
Ambassador Charles Burke
Elbrick will fly to Washington shortly to confer with the State Department on the various questions raised in the Portuguese memorandum.

A PORTUGUESE official said: "In response to suggestions from Secretary of State Dean Rusk (who visited Lisbon June 27-28) and in accordance with a new approach by the two governments, an agenda has been submitted by Portugal. This includes all outstanding problems of a bilateral interest which the Portuguese have declared themselves ready to discuss."

"It is now up to the United States government to make the next move in response to this agenda, in which we have shown on our side a high degree of understanding and flexibility. We hope the Americans will match this."

Catholics Plan Sainthood for Jewish-Born Martyr

COLOGNE, Germany (AP)— Roman Catholic Church authorities in West Germany have initiated canon-law proceedings to elevate to sainthood Edith Stein, a Jewish-born nun who was slain by the Nazis in the Auschwitz concentration camp.

Joseph Cardinal Frings, the archbishop of Cologne, issued an appeal to Catholics to submit any letters, diaries or sermons by Edith Stein in order to advance her case.

Church sources said the nun born in 1891, was converted to the Catholic faith after studying philosophy in the early 1920s.

She was arrested by Nazi secret police in August 1942.
In the same month, she died in an Auschwitz gas chamber.

Shipyard Engineer Loses U.S. Documents

A briefcase containing government documents was stolen Saturday from a table in the first-floor lobby of the main Long Beach
Post Office, Long Beach
Boulevard and Third Street.
The theft was reported to police by E. Alex Laurrell, 65, of 1334 Bennett Ave., a fire-control engineer at the Long Beach Naval Shipyard.

LAURELL SAID he put the government briefcase on a table and turned away from it "for about 10 seconds." When he turned back to the table the brief-case was gone.

He told police it contained government papers and blueprints "which would be valuable to a spy."

The theft was also reported to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

CAIRO (AP)—The United Arab Republic recently fired its "Zafir" rocket in a night experiment, the newspaper Al
Ahram reported.

The paper published a picture of the "giant rocket soaring skyward in the darkness" but gave no date or other details.

On July 21 President Nasser watched the first test firing by the U.A.R. armed forces of four single-stage rockets from an unidentified base in the western desert.
Nasser stressed then, in effect, that the rockets could hit any target in Israel.

The rockets were identified as "Khaer" (Conqueror) and the smaller "Zafir" (Victorious).

40th consecutive day in a face in a bid to set a 1,000-hour record for endurance cave dwelling.

Organizers said Siffre already has surpassed the previous record set by an Italian team which spent 700 hours underground.

NO 'SENIOR CITIZEN'

Gene Biscailuz Hates That 'Ex-Sheriff' Tag

By GEORGE C. FLOWERS

At the age of 79, E. W. (Gene) Biscailuz finds there are two things wrong with retired life:

1. He doesn't feel retired.
2. He doesn't feel old.

A remarkable man nearing the end of a remarkable career, Biscailuz says:

"I just can't get around to feeling like a senior citizen. I suppose I don't get around as much any more. I suppose I am slower than I used to be—but I just don't feel that way."

GENE BISCAILUZ, a living link to California's Spanish ancestry, served in the sheriff's department of Los Angeles County from 1907 until 1960. From 1932 to 1960 he was sheriff. From 1930 to 1932 he was on leave as undersheriff, to organize the California Highway Patrol.

No man ever held such a law-enforcement office so long as Biscailuz, who frankly says he's never quite gotten over the feeling of being sheriff.

FOR MANY thousands of people — perhaps millions — he was the sheriff who rode the richly-trapped horse in the Rose Tournament Parade. In the field of law enforcement, however, he is known for some other things. They include:

Pioneering the honor farm system for prisoners.

Organization of a crime prevention bureau.

A phenomenal record as an enforcement officer.

The latter record is based upon the fact that his department, in his later years, made as many as 173,000 arrests a year, and achieved 96-per-cent convictions.

THE CALIFORNIA Highway Patrol is one of his proudest achievements.

"I had to take a year and a half off to do it," he recalls. He was asked by the state to perform the chore.

This slowing and greying man has been fiercely proud of his Spanish ancestry.

It stems from his maternal grandfather, William Warren, a Yankee who sailed around the Horn to California and married Juana Lopez, daughter of

CHECKING GROWTH OF FRUIT on a backyard tree, former Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz says he doesn't feel like a senior citizen although he is 79.

Spanish don.

THEIR SON, William Warren, was the first Los Angeles City marshal, in 1870, and was killed in a gun battle where the present city hall stands.

Gene's father, Martin Biscailuz, of Basque ancestry, was a city councilman and lawyer.

"I guess I joined everything worthwhile that came along," Biscailuz said. He lists the Masons, Native Sons of the Golden West, Elks, Shrine, Moose, Eagles, Foresters, Jonathan Club, Athletic Club, American Legion . . . and a dozen more groups.

This gregariousness, and a devotion to the chicken-and-salad banquet circuit, paid him off at the polls. When Sheriff William Traeger was elected to Congress in 1932, Biscailuz was appointed successor, then won whopping majorities in the elections of 1934, '38, '42, '50, '54 and '58.

GENE ALWAYS won in the primaries, once by the all-time-record vote total of 766,000. When a state law forced him to retire — and he's still grumpy about that — he virtually named his successor by endorsing his undersheriff, Peter J. Fitchess, the present sheriff.

"When I started this business," Biscailuz recalls, "I was studying law nights and needed some money for beans. So I hired on as a sheriff's deputy."

He was one of 27 such officers when hired Jan. 7, 1907. When he retired Jan. 1, 1960, he was leaving the command of 3,300 regular and 1,500 reserve officers, men and women.

HIS FAVORITE joke is: "I was the biggest hotel keeper in the world."

By this, he explains, he means he operated the County Jail, which houses 3,000 "guests" and processes more than 55,000 persons annually.

Biscailuz says he can't settle down to the quiet life. He and his son, Warren, live in the family home at 332 Euclid St., Santa Monica. Their home since 1926, Mrs. Biscailuz died in 1950.

The ex-sheriff (how he detests that phrase) fairly snorts when he discusses the state's compulsory retirement law (70 for sheriffs).

"AS FAR AS I am concerned, I'd like to keep serving the people—that is, as long as they want me. I don't go along with the idea that a man in this job has to be young. As you get older you naturally learn more. There is no substitute for experience."

A director of the Pueblo Association of Los Angeles — a group concerned with restoring a section of the city to its appearance in the pioneering days — he has an office at 125 E. Sunset Blvd., spends Tuesdays and Thursdays there.

For 23 years Biscailuz has been county campaign chairman of the March of Dimes. He keeps busy at this.

"I STILL DO a little speaking at the luncheons," he says ruefully. "but I don't care much for it. I've been to so many of those things . . ."

Biscailuz was born on Boyle Heights, never has lived outside Los Angeles County.

When he retired, he says, "I was a little sick—the doctor says it was hypertension. I got that licked."

"But I refused to be a retired man. I don't like it."

"The other day I was called to speak at a Senior Citizens' Day doings."

"I felt out of place."

Humphrey Viewed as Senate Leader if Mansfield Quits

By WILLIAM BROOM
L.P.T. Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—The ground is being prepared for a change in Senate leadership next year.

Concerned about public reaction to their disjointed performance in the current session, Senate Democrats appear willing to exchange Sen. Mike Mansfield's brand of laissez-faire leadership for a firmer hand.

Odds-on choice as his successor next year is Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, No. 2 in the present Senate command and party whip. Also slated for a high post in the new leadership lineup is Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine. He could wind up as the new whip.

Sentiment for a change is only in the development stage at present. It is based on an opinion held by many senators that Mansfield will step down voluntarily. Highly respected and liked by his colleagues, Mansfield can have the job as long as he wants it.

Nevertheless, some discontent with his leadership exists. Part of it is based on a human tendency to blame the leader for the deficiencies of his followers. Part results from the very quality senators admire in Mansfield, which is his willingness to accommodate all points of view. Part stems from his lack of toughness and inability to make his decisions stick. "He's soft on people," said one Democratic senator. "He overaccommodates other people to the detriment of carrying out the Senate's business in orderly fashion," said another.

IN FAIRNESS to Mansfield, another senator pointed out that he has been the victim of some erratic demands from the White House in steering its legislative program to the Congress. At times, the administration has followed student-council tactics, overloading its program with all kinds of demands. Certainly, the White House hasn't made it easy for Democratic leaders in Congress to sort out the must legislation from that which is not urgent or is impossible to obtain.

Mansfield's job has not been made easier by White House aides in another fashion.

"When things go wrong," said a third senator, "they blame Mike. When things go right, the administration takes the credit."

Sen. Humphrey's position at the threshold of leadership is the product of a steady rise in esteem among his colleagues. Southern conservatives long ago gave him their stamp of approval. He is an elder statesman among progressives and liberals, largely because they recognize that he has mastered the parliamentary arts many of them find so incomprehensible.

The present ferment for change started shortly after Democratic senators recovered from a heady binge of freedom from the autocratic rule of Lyndon B. Johnson.

AFTER JOHNSON became vice president, Mansfield moved up to the leadership from his whip's post more or less reluctantly. He was the logical successor, and nobody else at the time was in a position to offer competition.

Operating on the premise that senators were adult, responsible people, Mansfield seldom cracked the whip. This has proved to be a faulty premise. Free in an orchard of legislative green apples, the senators proved capable of no more restraint than the average schoolboy.

Student Tells Forced Study of Russian

COPENHAGEN (UPI)—A student refugee from Communist East Germany said his classmates back home were being forced to study Russian.

The student, one of a group of 12 who fled East Germany and are here under an exchange visit from the Free University of West Berlin, said 29 or 30 students in his class chose English as their foreign language they wanted to learn.

"But after two weeks all were being taught Russian," he said.

"The large volume of traf-

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Algiers Rebels Oust Ben Bella

ALGIERS (AP)—A junta of guerrilla colonels forced Ahmed ben Bella's Political Bureau out of power Saturday and Ben Bella was reported planning to flee Algiers.

HASSEN

Thus only 23 days after the leftist deputy premier wrested control from Provisional Premier Ben Youssef ben Khedda, the eight-week-old nation faced a new and dangerous crisis.

All available reports indicated Ben Bella and a handful of followers were planning to leave the capital. Some reports said they would go to Oran, others to Tlemcen in Western Algeria.

The colonels' junta, consisting of the general staff of the guerrilla Wilaya (Zone) No. 4 which occupies Algiers, had no political program and the extent of its influence elsewhere in Algeria was unclear. It is reportedly directed by Col. Si Hassan, 27.

Rains Sweep Across Mid-U.S.

A drought-breaking, heat-chasing cold front moved across the parched midcontinent Saturday.

Torrential rains poured down on Austin, Tex., breaking the longest drought in 41 years. The city measured 4 1/2 inches of rainfall between midnight and 8 a.m., the first moisture in 55 days.

Showers and general rains broke out along a cold front extending from lower Michigan to the Texas coast. Some northern Michigan areas had 1 to 2 inches of rainfall.

Senate Votes $5-Billion Farm Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate Saturday voted almost $5 billion to finance the nation's farm programs for another year and urged that new ways be found to combat the problem of enormous surpluses.

The measure goes back to the House which approved a different version. If it accepts Senate changes, the bill will be sent to the White House.

Four Killed as Bus Rams Car

FLORENCE, N.J. (AP)—Four persons were killed and 20 injured Saturday when a bus apparently rammed the rear of a car on the Pennsylvania extension bridge over the Delaware River.

The car burst into flames and a man, a woman and two children in the car perished.

The car registration listed the owner as Roslyn Gabor of Brooklyn, N.Y. The bus driver and 19 women passengers were injured, none seriously.

$10,000 Missing in "Suicide" Mystery

NEW YORK (AP)—Police disclosed Saturday that about $10,000 in cash and certified checks was delivered to a millionaire business executive the day before he plunged 11 stories from a hotel room in what police tentatively had called a suicide. The money has not been found.

An autopsy also left unanswered the question whether 67-year-old Herber Segal's death Friday was homicide, suicide or accident.

Shah Asks, Gets Straight Talk

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—The Shah of Iran asked for some cowboy-style "good plain talk" with visiting Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson Saturday and he got it from the Texan, informed sources said.

Johnson spelled out President Kennedy's policy of eliminating defense support in all but a few countries, a cut that will reduce Iran's army by at least 15 per cent. Iran will continue to get military equipment under the aid program.

One East German Flees, One Caught

BERLIN (AP)—Despite new gunfire on the Communist side of the wall, tension in this tinderbox city appeared to be receding Saturday night after eight days of bitter East-West wrangling.

One burst of gunfire in the early morning darkness apparently was aimed at an East German People's Army soldier who made it uninjured into West Berlin. Eastern guards also halted an East German trying to swim the Landwehr Canal to West Berlin with shots from tommyguns and hauled him into a police boat.

Shipyard Jobs Cut Slightly

Long Beach, San Francisco and Mare Island Naval shipyards are expected to trim payrolls slightly but "permanent workers" are not likely to be affected, the Navy announced.

Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel said the Navy expected to cut the work force at the three yards from the 25,106 employed on July 31 to between 23,200 and 24,500 by the end of December.

Rear Adm. R. K. James, chief of the Bureau of Ships, said the Navy will cut job rolls about 2 per cent or 1,700 individuals nationally during 1963, Kuchel announced.

"In California, the bulk of the separations will be student trainees and short-time workers engaged for the summer peak activity," said Kuchel.

Employment forecast for California yards the last quarter of this year as compared with the July 31 figure: Long Beach, between 6,100 and 6,600 compared with 6,722; San Francisco, between 7,100 and 7,600 compared with 7,527; Mare Island, between 10,000 and 10,600 compared with 10,857.

Brothers Paddle Kayak to Fair From Alaska

NANAIMO, B. C. (AP)—Peter Knight, 22, of Cleveland, Ohio, spends his evenings studying Arabic grammar. In the daytime he and his brother Chris, 19, paddle a kayak.

They've been doing this since June 29, when they left Skagway, Alaska, on a 1,200-mile trip to Seattle. They expect to get there Monday.

The youths stopped here and said they're having a great time although they have battled head winds very day but one and haven't seen the sun for weeks.

Peter hopes to enter the U. S. Diplomatic Service, which explains the Arabic grammar.

Ex-Convict Quizzed on Mail Holdup

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (AP)—A 37-year-old Worcester ex-convict was questioned by investigators Saturday night in the $1.5 million Plymouth mail truck robbery following his arrest in a Brockton hotel.

Walter H. Stone was arraigned here before U.S. Commissioner Luke Smith on a federal charge of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for possessing burglary tools.

He was held in $20,000 bail and was taken to Bristol County House of Correction. Stone has served time at the Concord Reformatory for sales may hit 3.3 million by year's end, according to an article in Printer's Ink Magazine published recently.

MAYOR WADE AT FAIR

L.B. Officials Survey Seattle Fair Operation

SEATTLE, Wash.—Forty city officials, Fair Association officials and civic leaders from Long Beach spent Saturday giving the Seattle World's Fair an intensive look-over and talking to Fair officials here. Their purpose was to pick up vital information for use in planning the 1966-67 Long Beach World's Fair.

Led by Mayor Edwin Wade, development at the Long Beach Harbor Commission President H. E. Ridings and Long Beach Fair Association President Nelson McCook, the Long Beachers were given royal treatment by Seattle Fair officials. They were greeted by a band and an official welcoming party when they arrived by plane from Long Beach.

Specialists from Long Beach spent hours with their counterparts of the Seattle Fair organization.

THEIR inspection of the Alweg monorail, which connects the Seattle Fairgrounds with the central business district, led to front page stories in Seattle newspapers to the effect that monorail was being studied for possible development at the Long Beach and New York World's Fairs. The Long Beach visitors voiced enthusiasm over what they saw at Seattle and were impressed by reports of attendance and income which show the Seattle Fair exceeding expert predictions and estimates in these departments.

After a breakfast at the famed Space Needle this morning, the Long Beach group will enplane for home, arriving at Municipal Airport at about 5 p.m.

Discounts Anti-U.S. Trade Talk

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy's special assistant on trade policy Saturday discounted the oft-repeated contention that the United States cannot compete with low-wage countries in world markets.

The White House aide, Howard C. Petersen, said the best proof to the contrary was that this country exported $20 billion worth of goods last year while importing about $15 billion.

Petersen said the $5 billion excess of exports over imports "means profits for employers and investors and it's also an enormously important contribution to that very worrisome balance of payments problem we have."

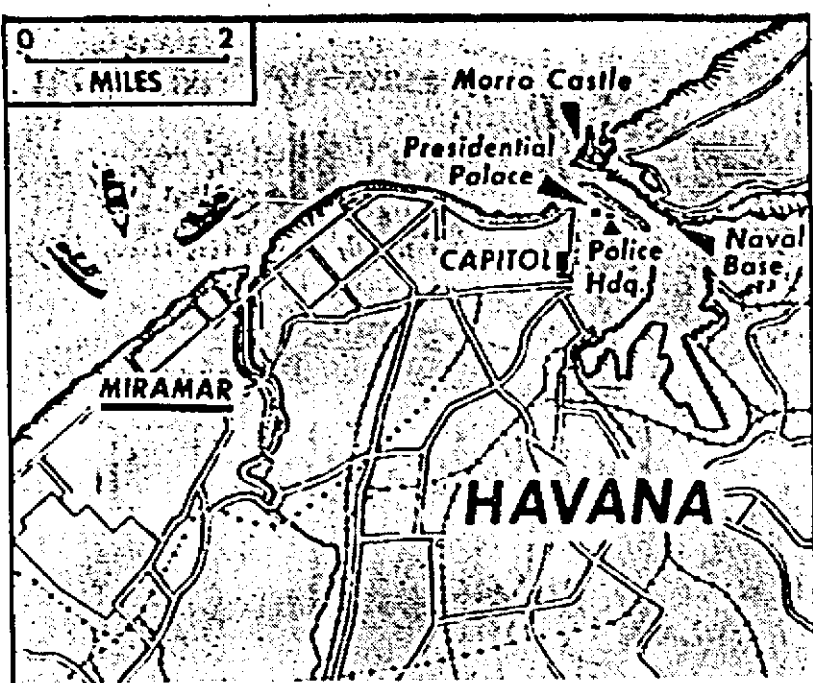

THE Philadelphia banker, on leave as the President's trade assistant, made the comments in a television interview with Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J.

Petersen said passage of the administration's trade expansion program was vital if this country is to maintain access for its goods in the rich European Common Market area.

Petersen said the trade program is aimed at finding markets on a nondiscriminatory basis.

WILLIAMS noted that Japan recently had sent missions to Red China and Russia to seek new markets for its expanding production.

The bill to give the President authority to cut or eliminate tariffs in return for similar concessions from other countries has passed the House and is pending in the Senate Finance Committee.

MIRAMAR SUBURB (AT LEFT) IS AREA SHELLED BY CUBAN REBELS

Salvat said they fired 19 shots with the cannon and several bursts from a 50-caliber machinegun.

SALVAT SAID the first 14 shots from the cannon were fired at the Hotel Icap and the other five at the Chaplin Theater where the meeting was believed in progress.

The first hits lit up the front of the hotel and the surrounding buildings and we could see chunks of wall coming down," he said.

"When we saw on our radar screen that one of the (Cuban) ships nearby was 15 in one boat and eight in breaking away from the group and moving toward us, we decided to retreat because a fight was not the objective of our mission."

HE SAID his launch was pursued for 35 minutes by the Cuban coast guard patrol and in order to lighten the launch "we had to throw overboard one of our gasoline tanks."

The Cuban patrol, he said, "couldn't shoot at us because we got into the merchant shipping lane and it was too dangerous. We gradually pulled away from them till they gave up."

Salvat said there were 23 persons involved in the raid, including himself. There were the other, he said.

In Havana, it was reported that damage from the raid was slight, but near-panic swept the hotel Icap as sleeping guests were shaken out of bed by the bombardment. Among the hotel guests were Soviet bloc technicians who are in Cuba to help the Castro government.

Prime Minister Fidel Castro promptly blamed the United States and "mercenary agents (Cuban exiles) . . . who operate with impunity from the coasts of Florida."

CASTRO charged that several other buildings besides the hotel were hit by the shellfire. He made no mention of any casualties.

MIAMI (UPI)—Two launches used by Cuban exiles in the shelling of two buildings on the Havana waterfront were impounded Saturday at Marathon Key, the U.S. Coast Guard announced.

No one was aboard the boats, a Coast Guard duty officer said. He said they were taken into custody "for possible violation of federal laws."

Numerous federal officers, FBI and Coast Guard officers, flocked into Marathon Key to take part in the investigation.

Marathon Key is off the tip of Florida among a string of islands reaching down toward Key West.

MEXICO CITY (AP)—A Cuban student exile leader said anti-Castro units landed in Cuba before and during Friday night's naval bombardment of a Havana suburb by student raiders.

He gave no estimate of the size of such landings, but said a growing force is being aided in Cuba by farmers and workers.

Angelo Gonzalez, head of the Cuban Revolutionary students Directorate in Exile, called the naval operation the beginning of a major movement to oust the Castro regime.

Seattle's Boeing Set to Strike

SEATTLE (AP)—Estimated 10,000 Boeing Co. workers of the Seattle area rejected a company contract offer Saturday and authorized leaders of the Aero Mechanics Union to call a strike "if necessary."

Other units of the union in Boeing operations elsewhere in the nation voted previously, also favoring rejection and strike.

More than 46,000 workers are involved nationally, many of them at Boeing's Wichita, Kan., plant and some at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

ABOUT 35,000 in the Seattle area would be covered by the proposed contract, of whom 24,000 are union members.

The union did not reveal the total vote but said 98.75 per cent gave approval on this ballot.

"I agree with the negotiating committee's action in rejecting the Boeing Co. proposal and authorize the committee to take strike action if necessary."

The employees involved are hourly-paid production and maintenance workers.

HUGHES MEDICAL INSTITUTE UNDER FIRE

contribution included patents, trademarks, and good will of Hughes Aircraft. At the same time, the tool company leased to the medical institute for 10½ years certain real estate and fixed assets used by Hughes Aircraft, which had cost the tool company $26 million.

The tool company then sold to the medical institute the $74-million book value of its holdings in Hughes Aircraft. These assets consisted of cash, receivables on government contracts and inventories.

THE INSTITUTE also assumed $56 million of liabilities against the assets, most of which was for renegotiation of government contract prices. The difference, $18 million, was covered by a note the institute gave to the tool company, payable in three years at 4 per cent.

The institute then subleased to Hughes Aircraft assets it had leased from the tool company. Aircraft was to pay rent totaling $33.6 million over a 10½-year period.

In the next step, the institute transferred to Aircraft the $74-million book value of assets bought from the tool company. Aircraft assumed the $57 million of liabilities owed on those assets, and for the other $18 million, issued stock to the medical institute. This stock was to serve as collateral on the note owned to the tool company by the institute.

AT THE END of these transactions, all of which took place on Dec. 31, 1953, the institute wound up in the following position: Its "capital" was the $37,000 initially contributed by the tool company. It carried at $1 the leasehold from the tool company. The institute also had the aircraft stock, carried at $18 million, but pledged against a corresponding note liability to the tool company of $18 million.

In the ensuing years, the tool company claimed a tax deduction of $2 million because of these transactions. The $18-million note payable to the tool company was not paid and has since been extended on a year-to-year basis.

From 1954 to 1961 there was a stream of payments from Hughes Aircraft to Hughes Tool Company for the leased assets, with the Hughes Medical Institute, controlled solely by Howard Hughes, acting as the middleman.

ACCORDING TO the medical institute's tax returns, it has received $25.9 million in rent from Hughes Aircraft. Out of this, it spent $5.7 million on research, 23 per cent of its income. It accumulated $3.3 million in reserves, 12 per cent of its income. It paid to Hughes Tool Company $16.9 million, 65 per cent of its income. Included in the latter figure is $6 million in interest on the $18-million note.

Rep. Patman questioned the whole arrangement in his report, from which the above figures were obtained. As a by-product of the transactions, Patman said, national defense costs were raised by $15 million. That happened, he explained, because Hughes Aircraft paid $15 million more in rent to the institute than it would have been able to deduct for depreciation on the aircraft plants had these still been a part of Hughes Tool Company. The rent counts as a cost in figuring out the renegotiated price on Hughes Aircraft's defense contracts.

REP. PATMAN said the whole arrangement was a "ring-around-rosy" that "sounds more like high finance to me than charity."

"It doesn't look to me as if the institute met the requirements of the law that it must be organized and operated exclusively for charitable purposes," he said. "Meantime, $3.3 million of earnings have piled up in the institute on which no tax has been paid, and Toolco has gotten a $2-million charity deduction that saved it over $1 million in tax."

The Hughes Medical Institute conducts its research operation in its own laboratories associated with the University of Miami and Jackson Memorial Hospital, Miami. It employs 66 scientists and technicians. It also finances research projects in other laboratories. Most of its work has been in the fields of biochemistry and microbiology.

Algiers Assets Gradually Wasting Away

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

ALGIERS (AP)—Several billion dollars of French assets in Algeria are gradually wasting away in the post-independence chaos and stagnation. These assets represent 132 years of French investments and colonial efforts in what used to be one of the most thriving of French overseas territories.

Nearly two months after the proclamation of independence, little is being done to put Algeria back on its feet.

SOME APPRAISALS evaluate business and economic activity at a fifth of what it was a year ago. If true in some parts of Algeria, the estimate is high for most of the interior, where economic life has come virtually to a standstill.

In the Rouiba-Reghaia industrial zone east of Algiers, two of 32 French-owned factories are working. One says it stays open only to keep 180 workers in jobs. The French Embassy believes some 300,000 Frenchmen are left in the country.

Hundreds more are leaving daily, chased out by continuing lawlessness and uncertainty.

THE ONCE thriving city of Oran looks like a ghost town, though perhaps 30,000 of 200,000 Europeans remain.

Vineyards and farms are going to waste in the rich western Algerian belt from which most farmers have fled. Many of their Moslem managers were assassinated by guerrilla troops for working with colonial masters.

In the fertile Mitidja plain south of Algiers, the situation is better. Many farmers stayed behind to pick grapes in September, but most are planning to leave after the harvest.

Perhaps half Algeria's average annual wine production will be met this year. The country normally produces more than a billion dollars. Much of the stock and equipment was looted in the early post-independence days.

Buses and other vehicles were requisitioned by guerrilla troops. Some enterprises succeeded in shipping shock and tools to France but later such shipments were banned. The new Algerian authorities appeal to Europeans to return and "help us make Algeria prosperous." Despite the avowed good will, the chaos gripping the country prevents most Europeans of a European causes added from trying. Every kidnapping

Little, Important Things Department Urged for Long Beach Government

By GEORGE ERES
One of the hazards of new found political office is the inheritance of the office slogan: THINK BIG.

But, as any guy under 5 feet 7 inches can tell you, "It's the little things that count, too."

We're not knocking the Big Thinkers, but we think what's badly needed around here is a city Department For Handling The Little Things That Are Important.

THERE ARE a couple of things the city could turn over to a DFHT-LTTAL.

Motor boats are running onto the beach on the Peninsula where children swim. People are running about with petitions. We need an act of council to know that motor boat propellers and swimmers don't mix? Obviously, a case for the DFHT-LTTAL.

ITEM: The contractor who dug up the beach at the bay to install sewer lines forgot to put back the shower and restore the drinking faucet. As the result of a 12-year-old girl's imitation, the matter was taken directly to City Engineer Jess Gilkerson who got the shower and drinking fountain installed pretty darn quick. Jess was a whole DFHT-LTTAL in himself.

THEN THERE is the problem of fees for use of items in the public library.

The library people are partly to blame for this. They started charging fees for new books a long time ago. The city manager took the bait and installed fees for borrowing phonograph records, pictures and films.

In the year ending June 30, the circulation of records, films and pictures went to pot. The circulation of records was down 47,617 and for films 6,653 compared to the previous year. The city didn't get what it expected in income from fees and even City Manager John Mansell, who started the mess, admits that it isn't working out the way he thought it would. He just hasn't had time to do anything about it.

A DFHT-LTTAL would handle the problem in no time—just admit it was all a mistake and toss the fees into the discard—the ones for new books, too. That would get the library back on the right track—a free public library.

YOU MAY remember the story about the boss who walked into the office one day and saw everybody busy but one guy with his feet on his desk. He turned to his assistant and said, "That's what I like to see, a man who thinks."

The DFHT-LTTAL will make all the city's department heads look good. They can sit back and Think Big, while the head of the Little Things Department watches the store.

Air Fair Schedules Pint-Size Plane Race

The National Air Fair at Chino Sept. 1 through 3 has scheduled a revival of closed-course midget air races.

The pint-sized planes must meet specifications originally set up for the Goodyear Trophy Races of 1947-49.

The four-cylinder engines were restricted to 190 cubic inch displacement and delivered from 90 to 125 horsepower.

Guarantees and prize money totaling $5,000 have been assigned for participants in the midget air races. Fair events include air races, flying clowns, aerial dog fights, parachuting, wing walking, aerobatics, plane-to-plane transfers, antique and experimental aircraft, spot jumping contests, para-kiting, aircraft displays and marching bands.

AVIATRIX Shirley Robinson "checks out" G. (Pappy) Boyington, retired Marine ace and official host for the Chino National Air Fair, in a de Havilland biplane. The craft will be flown in a demonstration flight at the Fair, Sept. 1-3.

Plumber Permit Fee Hike to Be Debated

Proposed increases in Long Beach plumbing permit fees are scheduled for consideration soon by the City Council's ordinance committee.

Recommended by City Manager John R. Mansell, the revised fees are now being incorporated in the amendments under preparation by City Atty. Gerald Desmond's office. Then they will be referred to the ordinance committee for possible hearings at a date not yet set.

Average increase in the various charges is 25 per cent. Added annual revenue to the city is estimated at $12,000. The basic permit cost will remain unchanged at $2. But most of the supplementary fees levied for each plumbing fixture or outlet will go up, typically from $1 to $1.25.

Mansell said that although the fee schedule was revised in 1960, the Uniform Building Code published in 1961 suggests higher charges which are being placed into effect by most other public jurisdictions.

Laguna Beach Gets Fine Performance of 'Carmen'

By RACHEL MORTON
If every city in the United States would put on a "Festival of Opera" with performances as good as the one heard of "Carmen" in the Irvine Bowl in Laguna Beach Friday night, our country would very soon become opera conscious, and there would be opportunity for our abundant American talent.

Our little enterprising neighbor city of Laguna, always championing the arts, is presenting "Festival of Opera" for three weekends. The fact that the bowl was sold out is evidence that Americans do love opera, even opera that is not exactly of Metropolitan status. The performance Friday night was most commendable in spite of weaknesses.

WILLIAM OLIVIS was a very professional and convincing Don Jose, torn with jealousy and love. His powerful tenor voice had a tear in it, and it was produced expertly. He sang the Flower Song with passion, abandon and beautiful quality of tone.

A petite vixen of subtle charm and allure was Margaret Roggero as Carmen. She, too, showed familiarity with the part that came from much professional experience. Her voice, a rather light one for the low range music of Carmen, had a lovely high register. But in the card scene it lacked power to convey the morbid foreboding of death. Her acting was at all times sincere and depicted truly the capricious Carmen.

John Lombardi has been heard as Escamillo with the Los Angeles Opera Co. His light baritone voice lacked bite, which weakened a role that should have been strong.

MICHAELA is a naive, shy little maid, and Marilyn Interlandi made her that, but her singing was wholly inadequate. The big aria, "Je dis que rien m'empourante," was tonely bad, as was her blonde, where Miss Interlandi was brunette. I can never understand why the lovely voice and acting ability of Carol Todd is wasted in the role of Frasquita when she would make such a lovely Micaela. (Los Angeles Opera Co. and Laguna Opera take note.)

The quintette was delightfully sung and the large chorus looked well and sang with great gusto and excellent tonal quality.

Wouk's 'Nature's Way' Given Funny, Frantic Presentation

By ROBERT C. WYLDER
As a playwright, Herman Wouk is a pretty fair novelist. The management at the Magnolia Theater, which opened with Wouk's "Nature's Way" this weekend, fully realized that fact and went about making up for his deficiencies. The result is a frantic and funny theatrical presentation that is most amusing when it depends least upon the script.

The story is a mixture of satire on natural childbirth and straight comedy on natural marriage—just seven months before the baby is due. It involves a song writer, his new wife, his lyricist, his mother-in-law, and assorted theatrical types. It never really gets anywhere or makes much of a point, but it allows a lot of vigorous comies to ham it up all over the place.

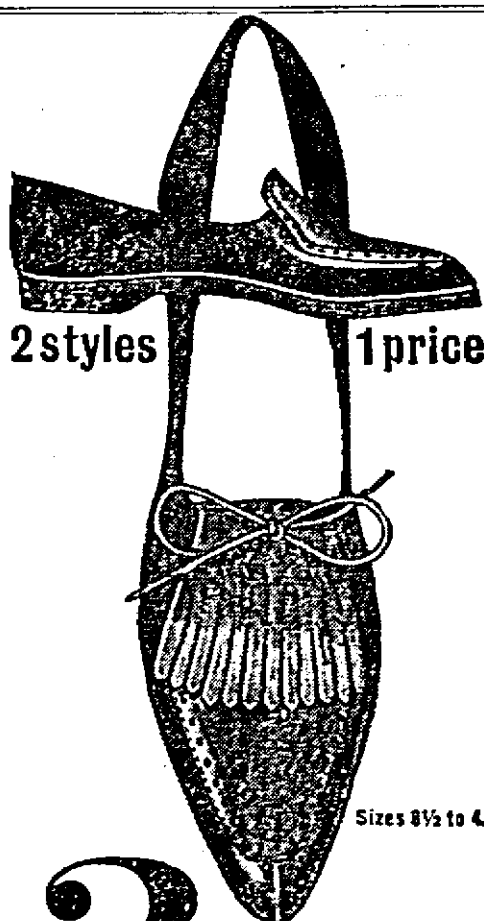

Among those most adept at the hokum are a couple of old hands, Eva Raber as the wife and Pat Brown, who also directed the show, as her mother. Even when they stick to the lines of the play, they are funny, a real tribute to their talent.

GEORGE AUGUSTSON as heard as Escamillo with the Los Angeles Opera Co. His light baritone voice lacked bite, which weakened a role that should have been strong. MICHAELA is a naive, shy little maid, and Marilyn Interlandi made her that, but her singing was wholly inadequate. The big aria, "Je dis que rien m'empourante,"

The minor players add a good deal to the whole performance.

Others in the cast are Vern Thomas, Ric Larson, Edward Williamson, and Patricia Halterman. Leon Derr designed the minimal set.

"Nature's Way" lacks something as a play, but the local production certainly doesn't lack laughs. As long as the cast can keep up the pace, the play promises to stay lively and even hilarious. Performances continue on weekends through September.

Swiss Banks Deny They Knowingly Assist Crooks

INDEPENDENT PRESS-TELEGRAM—A-11
Low Beach 12, Calif., Sunday, Aug. 26, 1946

By RICHARD H. HOENIG
NEW YORK (AP)—Every time a wizard of finance runs afoul of the law and flees the United States or a businessman is uncorked as the mastermind of some multi-million-dollar scheme, the law.

Just how much American money has been salted away in the scenic land of the Alps never will be determined—and that's the major reason it is there.

When world tensions increase, the flow of funds into Switzerland for safekeeping invariably mounts. There are reasons besides Swiss banking secrecy for this basic monetary fact of life.

THEY INCLUDE, the soundness of the Swiss franc since World War II, the neutrality of the Swiss, the land's political stability, its convenient central European location, the investment know-how of the Swiss bankers, the absence of currency convertibility problems and fears of possible devaluation of the dollar.

But supersecrecy is likely the chief attraction the Swiss banks have for foreign investors. The Swiss banking Secrecy Act of 1934 makes it a penal (not civil as in many countries) offense for anyone connected with a Swiss bank willfully to violate the discretion he is required to observe.

Also liable for a fine is anyone who induces or tries to induce a bank employee to break the secrecy code.

SWISS BANKERS in New York City politely decline to speak for attribution on any phase of the topic, especially the famed numbered accounts of the Swiss.

A numbered account is one that is listed by number alone in bank records rather than by name of customer.

Under the Swiss law, a bank is obliged to disclose details of a customer's account only upon a court order and these orders are usually limited to bankruptcy or criminal cases.

Earnings Increase

GARDENA—Earnings of Burgmaster Corporation, manufacturer of turret drilling machines, increased 15 per cent to $295,749, equivalent to 66 cents per share on the 449,417 shares of common stock outstanding for the nine months ended July 31. President Joseph L. Burg has announced.

THE BASIS for the accusation is the famous Swiss banking system policy of supersecrecy which protects agency Tanjug.

East German Red Boss Will Visit Romania

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—East German Communist Boss Walter Ulbricht will pay an official visit to Romania, probably next month, in an effort to boost trade between the two Red countries, says the official Yugoslav news agency Tanjug.

'SEE THINGS, DO THINGS, GO PLACES, BE FREE'

Two Men, Woman Arrive From Japan in Small Ship After 57 Days at Sea

A briny trio of seafaring adventurers, including a pretty Australian nurse from New Guinea, docked at Terminal Island Saturday after a 57-day non-stop trip from Yokohama, Japan, in a 39-foot schooner.

Skipper Josef Pachernegg, 39, a native of Austria and former German submarine pilot, declared: "The trip was so easy an old woman in a rocking chair could have done it."

REASON for the trip—"We just wanted to see things, do things, go places and be free men." He has spent the last three years in the Australian part of New Guinea running a government patrol boat.

With him is his fiancée, Benita E. Burge, 38, an Australian-born nurse from a Wewak, New Guinea, hospital where the pair met.

"Joe said come and go around the world with me, so here we are," said the dark-haired nurse, her hair coiled in tight braids against the damp sea air.

THIRD member of the barefooted, adventure-loving crew is William R. Gasson, 29, Tokyo correspondent for Britain's Reuters News Service. Bill says he went to the Tokyo docks to write a story about the trip Joe and Benita made from New Guinea.

"They said come along. I had three months of leave owing me, so here I am," said the New Zealand-born journalist.

Gasson will leave the other two here in time to take a new Reuters post in London Oct. 1. Joe and Benita plan to head for the South Seas in about a month—perhaps Tahiti.

MEANWHILE, the skipper is looking for an inexpensive dock as a refuge during their Southern California stay.

Benita said she spent a fair share of her time cooking meals on the Okeanos' tiny galley, one of three semi-separate compartments below deck. The little blue-bottomed vessel has four bunks and a deck barely wide enough to traverse on either side of the cabin.

The little twin-masted ship made the 4,500-mile voyage with no mishaps, only a heavy load of bar-nacles to show for the trip.

THE CREW, except for slightly weather-worn chin whiskers on the men and wind-blown hair for Benita, also came through the voyage without a scratch.

"We ran a little short on milk and biscuits," Benita reports. "But there's plenty of water, potatoes and onions left."

There was also an ample supply of New Guinea "jungle juice on hand. The little ship followed the 43rd parallel all the way across, Skipper Pachernegg reports. "It was bloody cold at times. Seems quite warm here though," he said as he pulled up to the quarantine dock at Terminal Island Immigration headquarters.

The crew was granted six month visitor permits by the U.S. Immigration Service.

"WE GOT quite a greeting as we neared land yesterday," Gasson said. "Rockets started going out over our heads (apparently from Pt. Mugu missile launch sites). We could see their trails right over us and later heard loud explosions."

The crew managed to catch fish nearly every day during the journey to supplement their food supply.

The journey was in sharp contrast to Skipper Pachernegg's last attempt to go around the world. His 32-foot ketch, Viking, wound up on a Galapagos Islands beach, on the equator off the coast of Ecuador.

"SHE DRIFTED on one night and was wrecked. I had to walk 50 miles to civilization," the skipper recalls. "It took me over five days and I had to drink goat's blood to stay alive."

Raised in Austria, Pachernegg joined the German merchant marine at the age of 14, transferred to the German Navy in 1940 and served aboard patrol boats and one-man submarines in the North Sea during the war.

After the war, he sailed aboard Swedish freighters for eight years before going to New Guinea.

"I work long enough as a skipper to make enough money so I can keep sailing my own boat," said Joe. I hope I can get another couple to sail with us to the South Seas—to share expenses you know."

FOR MOON TRIP

Must Moonmen Learn Russian?

By ALVIN B. WEBB JR.
CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—"Vi gavarreetye par-rooskie?"

This is a phonetic phrase, passed along for the benefit of future U.S. astronauts. It means, "Do you speak Russian?"

At the rate the space race is going, it could be the first question American explorers will have to answer when they reach the moon.

The implication is that the world's leading producer of television sets, swimming pools and electric can-openers may lose the No. 1 prize in space to a nation that only a few years ago had many soldiers who thought toilets were indoor drinking wells.

Fifteen months ago, President Kennedy officially squared off the United States against the Soviet Union for the most spectacular and costly "prestige" struggle in history—a no-holds-barred race to land the first men on the moon. America's goal: 1967, and 1970 at the latest.

THE FIRST huge chunks of a 20 to 40 billion-dollar "pledge" for the moon project sent U.S. industry into action. The first of a manpower force that eventually will reach 500,000 was brought into harness. "Paper" projects poured off drawing boards like confetti from New York skyscrapers during a parade.

And from behind the iron curtain there was a year of comforting silence, broken only by the occasional launching of an unmanned Soviet "scientific" satellite. U.S. hopes rose on the tacit interpretation that the silence denoted trouble in the Russian scientific camp.

In a way, America itself had gone into a sort of "orbit" about the moon project named "Apollo"—and was jolted rudely back to earth when a pair of silvery spacecraft streaked from the Russian heartland into the skies on the mornings of Aug. 11 and 12.

FOR THREE days, Soviet "space brothers" Andrian Nikolayev and Pavel Popovich soared round and round a stunned world which had for weeks anticipated a new Russian "spectacular," and had expected almost anything but this.

Dramatic as the performance was, its implications for the future of the race to the moon were even more so. For the first time, there was a hint of a Soviet target date for a manned lunar landing—1965, anywhere from one to five years ahead of the U.S. goal.

Although dubbed a "propaganda stunt" in many quarters, the Soviet twin-orbit feat actually was a solid scientific accomplishment that demonstrated an equally solid Russian lead in man-in-space techniques.

1. The performance indicated Soviet scientists have mastered the difficult precision launching of large rockets. The ability to fire these giant boosters, apparently within seconds of the planned launching times, still evades their U.S. counterparts.

2. The extremely close orbits of Vostoks 3 and 4 demonstrated precision in guidance techniques that closely approached the accuracy needed for flights toward the moon. The United States is a full two years away from any comparable test.

3. Many free world scientists interpreted the nearness of the spacecraft to one another to mean this was a first step toward rendezvous, a technique by which capsules and propulsion units could be hurled into separate orbits and there be assembled for flights to the moon.

It was a startling revelation—the Soviet Union apparently has decided against tackling the troublesome technical problems of building a single gigantic rocket for a "direct" shot at the moon and has shifted to the "rendezvous" principle that would permit use of smaller rockets.

This is the track that U.S. space experts, after months of shuffling around among ideas, decided upon. But for some unexplained reason, they failed to anticipate that Russia might do likewise. At least, there was little, if any, advance speculation that the Soviets would attempt a twin-orbit flight.

JFK Confident U.S. Will Catch, Pass Reds in Space Race

By HARRY SHARPE
WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy candidly told Americans last week the United States trails Russia in the space race and it's going to take time to catch up.

"We are second in long-range boosters," he said, "mindful of the Soviet Union's historic orbiting twin cosmonauts. We started late and we're behind." But he was confident we will catch up and go ahead.

to the principles of humanity."

The President disclosed that two U.S. nuclear-powered submarines—the Skate and the Sea Dragon—made a historic rendezvous under the North Pole ice cap, last Aug. 2, then surfaced.

The Skate had come from the Atlantic and the Sea Dragon from the Pacific in a sort of cat-and-mouse electronics maneuver demonstrating revolutionary underwater defenses against Russia's rocket-carrying submarines.

The United States and the Soviet Union agreed to open direct negotiations on a treaty banning all nuclear tests. Both sides appeared to be anxious to break the existing deadlock before the United Nations General Assembly meets in New York Sept. 20.

Khrushchev has hinted he would attend. The President said if he does, "I would hope to have a chance to talk with him."

Chairman Glenn T. Seaborg of the Atomic Energy Commission, said the United States still leads in atomic weaponry, despite new Soviet tests.

Congress had adjournment fever, but Kennedy urged it take favorable action on his farm, drug control, anti-poll tax, trade and United Nations bond measures before quitting. At the same time he was reported preparing a government economy directive to ease the way for the tax cut he has promised for next year. The defense secretary has already taken steps to save $3 billion a year for five years and lower defense costs by $750 million this year.

The Senate passed a Kennedy's farm bill but its fate was uncertain in a hostile House. The Senate also reversed itself and passed a strong drug control bill in the wake of the thalidomide malformed-baby tragedy.

Senate GOP leader Everett M. Dirksen who had vigorously opposed all drug legislation, joined in the unanimous vote. Early and favorable House action was expected.

Kennedy's congressional leaders promised action on other "must" bills but it was evident some would perish in the adjournment crush. Most legislators want to go home and campaign for re-election.

The chief executive said he was considering another "non-political" trip — this time to big cities. He was in California, Colorado and South Dakota last week and had kind words for Democratic candidates. He said he was considering visits to major metropolitan areas in connection with the 25th anniversary Sept. 1 of the federal house-

ing programs. He also said he would spend some time in late September and October on the campaign trail.

Vice President and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson arrived in Tehran, Iran, on another leg of a Middle East goodwill tour. Their first stop was Beirut, Lebanon. Johnson's mission was to assure America's friends of continued economic aid while unproductive military assistance is being reduced.

THE PRESIDENT told newsmen this year's space appropriation was greater than the combined total spent in the eight years of the Eisenhower administration. He said the government was working hard on the biggest obstacles to gains—more potent rockets and guidance and navigation systems.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara was equally candid and indicated he would expand military space spending even more next year to close the gap. He has just ordered development of the huge Titan III booster.

The Titan III will have three times the million-pound thrust of Russia's biggest booster and is a radical departure from rockets used to orbit American astronauts.

RUSSIA'S newest cosmonauts — Maj. Andrian Nikolayev and L. Col. Pavel Popovich — told a Moscow press conference that before floating to earth by parachute they were ejected from capsules which in turn had been ejected from their five-ton space vehicles. They said they didn't try to rendezvous in orbit, as reported, but at one time were only three miles apart.

The Soviet Academy of Sciences boasted that the twin flights would be followed by "automatic interplanetary stations, and then man's direct participation."

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and all Moscow accorded the cosmonauts a tremendous reception.

U. S. officials reported that Russia had resumed large scale deliveries of military technicians and equipment to Cuba, possibly including surface-to-air missiles.

THEY SAID the situation was being watched with concern, Kennedy had said earlier at a press conference that so far as he knew, no Russian troops had been landed although Cuban exile sources claimed thousands had disembarked.

The Central Intelligence Agency presumably was keeping a close check on developments.

Communist Premier Fidel Castro has been comparatively silent recently but Radio Havana often repeats charges that Cuba must prepare for invasion by the United States.

As many as 20 Russian cargo ships have reached Cuba in the past month. Officials said much of the equipment appeared designed for building up Castro's coastal and air defenses.

BERLIN became a cold war hot spot again after West Berliners rioted along the Communist "wall of shame" protesting the East German killing of a young refugee.

Russia withdrew its military commandant from four-power treaty control of the Red-encircled city and installed an East German general as military commander of East Berlin.

Allied leaders saw this as another force play to compel American, British and French occupation authorities to deal with the puppet East Germans.

President Kennedy declared forcefully that the Big Three would uphold their treaty rights. They in turn accused Russia of trying to destroy those rights. They also called on the Soviets to meet with the Allies in Berlin to discuss ways to prevent more serious incidents which might spark war.

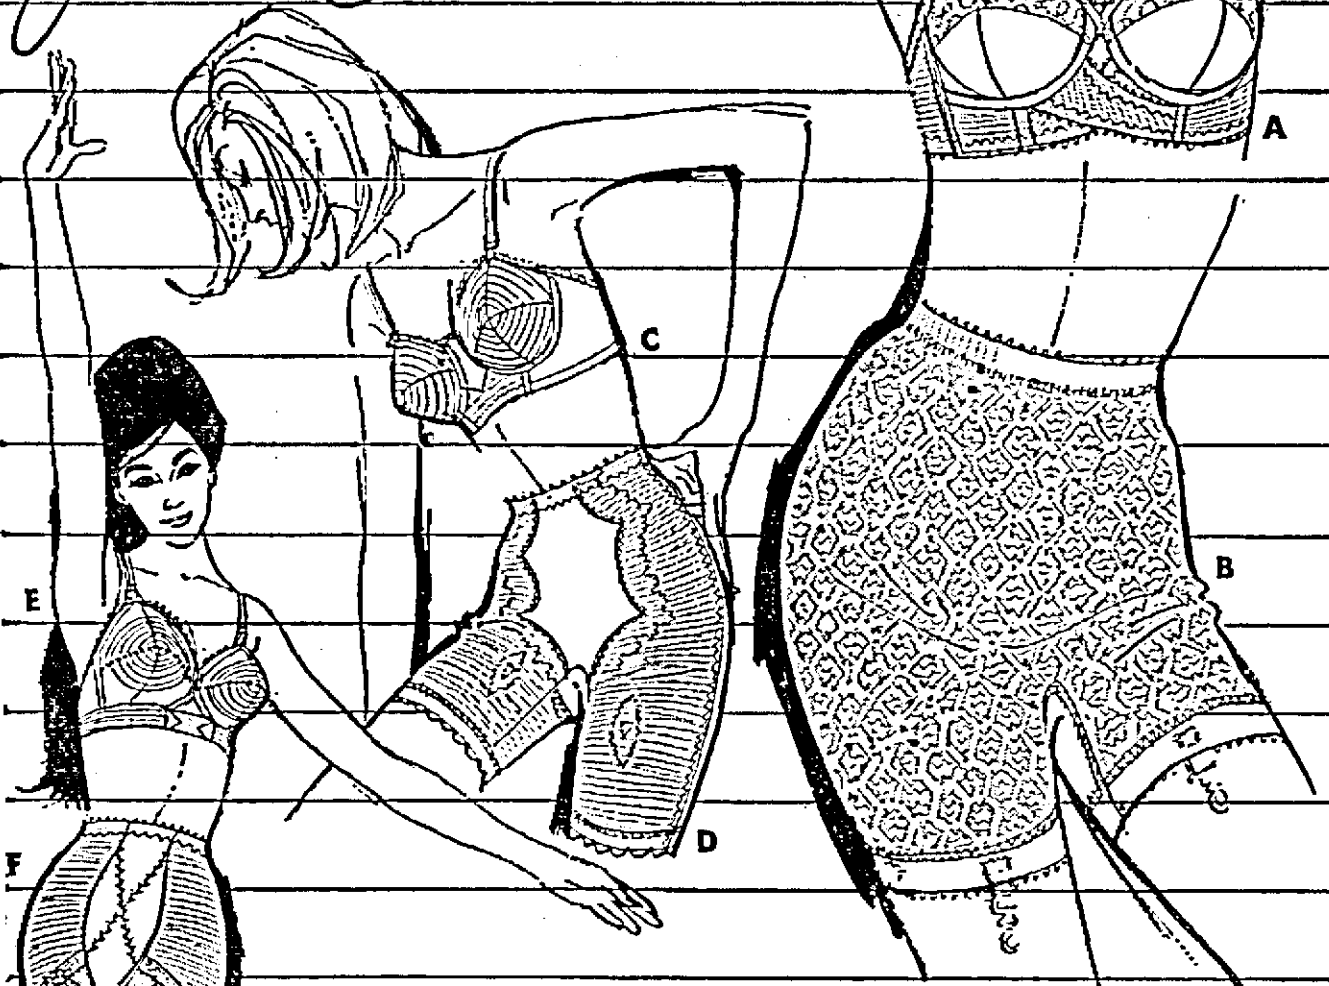

They branded the refugee killings as "particularly revolting" and "contrary

Committee of Congress to Probe Mail Robbery

BOSTON (AP) — The slick, Monday in Washington, precise job of a professional band of white-gloved shotgun said his government activities subcommittee, which is investigating internal efficiency of government agencies, wants to determine what protection the Post Office gives large shipments of money.

Key witnesses will include Philip Schena, driver of the mail truck, and Patrick Barrett, the guard who rode with them. Their truck carried 16 sealed bags of cash from Cape Cod banks—en route to the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston—when it was held up by highwaymen.

William F. White, chief New England postal inspector who is in charge of the investigation, said:

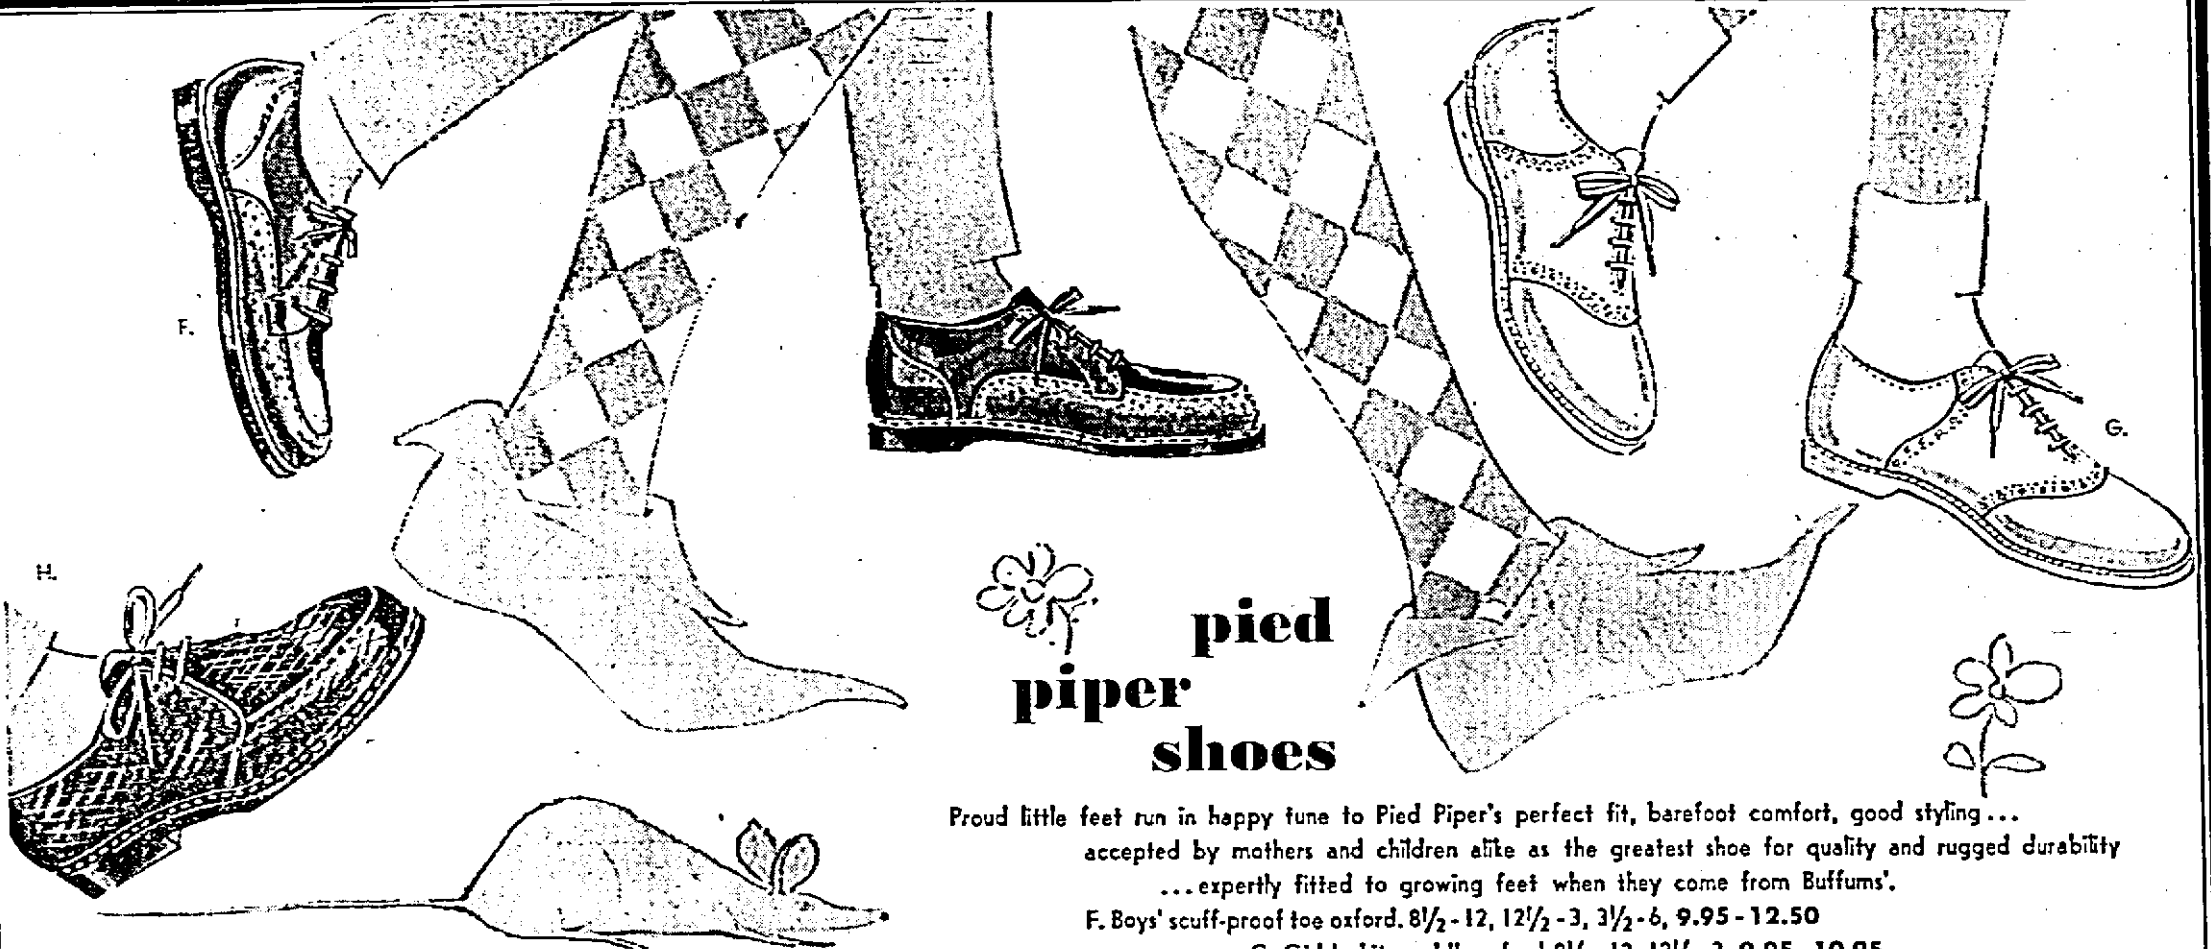

It is believed the robbery gang consisted of five men and a woman. The gunmen apparently used nine automobiles, alternately. None of the moneybags has been found.

The light rope and tape used to tie up Schena and Barrett are of such common variety they cannot be traced. No postal employee is suspected. White said recently many people have been questioned

Champion's No Lumberjack

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Grizzled lumberjacks, guiding floating logs toward the mill stared in amazement as a well-dressed man jumped from an out-of-state car and began skipping across the treacherous logs.

Then they waited for the city dude to fall.

"You better know how to swim," one bewhiskered veteran shouted.

The man they watched was Ray Heideman, 42, of 12834 Barlin St., Downey.

With apparent ease, Heideman skipped from one wet log to another and—with a twinkle in his eyes—tossed in a little trick step that puts the log to twirling.

HIS JAUNT through the maze of logs completed, Heideman introduced himself to the men working at the mill along the Washington highway.

"Been doing this since I was a boy," he said—and it was the understatement of the year.

Heideman, who has been twirling logs since 1935, was then a three-time international log-rolling champion on his way to the 1962 Hayward, Wis.

Now he's a four-time champion.

HEIDEMAN, a native of Eau Claire, Wis., is back home with another trophy—and $660 in cash—for placing first in the men's senior division.

Logrolling contestants are paired off and each steps onto an 18-inch-diameter log. Each wears spiked shoes. The object is to twirl the log until the opponent falls.

If after three minutes, neither has fallen, they move to a 16-inch log for eight minutes, then to a 14-inch log for 10 minutes. If there still is no winner, they move to a 12-inch log with no time limit.

"Most of the decisions—two out of three falls—come on the 14-inch log," Heideman said. "Only two of us went on to the smallest log this year."

Heideman's sons competed, too, this year and the family trophy case now needs enlarging for certain.

Ray Jr., 12, took third in the junior division, and John, 9, garnered a fourth-place medal in the 11-year-olds-and-under competition. Said Heideman, who is athletic director at Pius X High School here: "I guess we did pretty well—considering we don't get any logrolling practice between meets."

Mrs. America Thrives On Weekend Widow Role

Mrs. America of 1962, Mrs. Lila Masson, 39, of Detroit, Mich., has been on the go another of her sponsors—ever since she won the title last November and is thriving on her experiences. She's gained four pounds.

"I was 119 when I won the contest," said the red-headed mother of three. "Now I'm 123."

It all looks good on her, but Mrs. Masson says she'll have to take off a few pounds. That shouldn't be too tough for her. One of the things she won the title of the nation's No. 1 homemaker for was an essay on weight control.

MRS. MASSON is something of a weekend widow. Her personal appearances—on weekends—carry her thousands of miles. She's one of the prizes, you get a chance to see Mrs. America and judge for yourself if her eyes are really green as publicized.

"They're really green," said Mrs. Masson, "but sometimes they're more green than other times. It depends on what I'm wearing."

Leaving the family, husband Cleve, daughter, Diane, 18, and sons Tom, 13, and David, 10, for long weekends has "brought us closer together," said Mrs. Masson.

"We include the children in all our plans and tell each other our experiences. They all have a certain pride in what's happened," she said. "All of a sudden they ceremoniously assist me to my chair and open doors for me—in public anyway."

"I really believe that these separations when I must leave for an appearance alone have actually made us a closer-knit family."

LILA MASSON
On the Go

IS THERE such a thing as a Southern Californian? Byron Fish, columnist for the Seattle Times, rather doubts it.

He has written an interesting piece on the subject, inspired by the somewhat unfavorable reaction to the Seattle World's Fair attributed to people from Southern California.

He notes, at the outset, something which has been commented upon here: That Southern Californians, accustomed to Disneyland, Knott's, Las Vegas shows, etc., are a pretty sophisticated lot and for that reason were not so impressed, as some others, with what Seattle has to offer.

Going on from there, Bro. Fish has made an analysis of people around here that people around here should find interesting, regardless of agreement. From here on out, I quote Fish in the Seattle paper.

PERHAPS we had better study the question of whether there is such a thing as a Southern Californian.

To be sure, there are a number of natives of that description, but most of the population came from elsewhere. So, if there is a type that judges a World's Fair by how close it comes to being a Disneyland, one must remember that they merely collected from other states.

THEY collected so fast and in such huge numbers, they really are not Californians or even Westerners yet. How soon they will be absorbed, if ever, or develop a regional character, remains to be seen.

Meanwhile, one detects a clash between the outnumbered longtime residents and the hordes of comparative newcomers who have put California on the verge of becoming the nation's most popular state.

The influx of people keeps Southern California perpetually a region of strangers, all transplanting their own attitudes along with their baggage. Just as the United States was a melting pot for Europe, Southern California is a bubbling pot for Americans.

IT IS A common human trait for new converts to be the most fervent over whatever cause they espouse, and new residents of an area usually behave the same way.

If they move voluntarily, it is because they are "sold" on the new place being better than the old one. Barring some misfortune, their enthusiasm does not die down until they have been around long enough to take the new territory for granted.

This may explain, to some extent, why tourists from Southern California account for the highest percentage of negative reaction to the fair. That region has the highest percentage of recent converts.

They are not going to admit, so soon, that anything else on the West Coast (including Northern California) can equal what they have found.

Auto Fines to Pay for Safer Streets

Projects to Cost $406,000

By GEORGE WEEKS

Fines collected from traffic offenders in Long Beach will pay for new traffic signals and other safety installations estimated to cost $343,692.

City councilmen have approved a list of 20 projects, scheduled for completion within 12 months at widely distributed locations. With the addition of $62,500 from other public agencies, the cost of the program will top $406,000.

Total city revenues from the fines and forfeitures are anticipated at $818,692. Some $475,000 is being transferred from the traffic safety fund to the general purpose fund for street repairs and related projects.

LARGEST item on the project list is $70,000 for reconstruction of the traffic signal system at the San Diego Freeway and Bellflower Boulevard intersection. It will be reimbursed from state funds.

A $20,000 allotment will pay for modernization of traffic controls at 16 intersections by the installation of additional signal heads to aid pedestrians.

LEARNED FROM NAZIS

Aviation Aid Is 'Rocket Wise'

By BOB GEIVET

A technical intelligence officer with Army Ordnance in World War II, who helped direct the capture of 100 German V2 rockets, owes his current job to them.

Herbert L. Karsch, now with Newport Beach's Aerodynamic in a new post as manager of operations support, was highly impressed with the German rocketry in World War II although some of them failed to get off the launching pads.

They were an entirely new development at the time of World War II, and the Allies were both suspicious of them and much interested, he says.

THE ROCKETS demonstrated that German scientists were advanced in the exact sciences of rocketry and missiles.

Karsch believes, as do many other scientists, that Russia's capture of Germany's leading mathematical wizards and "practical scientists" spurred the Soviet leap into space.

He credits the German rockets with whetting his own interest in missiles; his part in the nation's space program grew from that.

HARBOR BOOSTERS

Seek Battleship as Pier J Shrine

Permanent enshrinement of a U.S. battleship in the Port of Long Beach will be proposed Monday to the Board of Harbor Commissioners.

The Port Ambassadors, a new group of harbor boosters affiliated with the Chamber of Commerce, will seek the board's support for a move to obtain one of the historic warships from the Navy, landlock it in Pier J during the pier construction and maintain it as a permanent exhibit open to the public.

Mayor Edwin W. Wade has announced his support for the project. Rep. Craig Hosmer also has expressed interest.

"IT'S REGRETTABLE that we permitted the USS California to be broken up for scrap in 1959," said Wade. "But there are still battleships available. Getting one of them for our port would be a suitable shrine, a memorial to the Navy's earlier days."

The mayor and others expressed hope that the USS Missouri, now in reserve, will be made available. If so, the big ship would be kept intact as it was on the day it was the scene of the surrender of Japan in World War II.

Battleships believed available immediately are the Indiana and Alabama, now mothballed at Bremerton Navy Yard.

Dr. Sutter E. Kunkel, chairman of the Port Ambassadors, will head the delegation before the Harbor Board. Mayor Wade said he also expects to make an appearance if his other duties permit.

Old Cars Are Best, He Says

Pete Szuch likes the finer things in life.

These include music—old and new—and entertainment—old and new.

But automobiles? Just the old. The 44-year-old electrician has owned many cars but the newest is a 1932 Ford Victoria.

"Old cars have something the newer ones don't," Szuch murmurs as he places an affectionate hand on the shiny Victoria.

It's shiny—inside and out—because Szuch leaves no bolt untouched in his search for rust and dirt.

Szuch, you might say, is an old-car fancier, but his heart lies with the 1923-32 models.

ACQUISITION of older cars and his careful renovation would qualify him for the Horseless Carriage Club.

"They made REAL cars from 1928 to 1932," Szuch argues. "When you have one of those models, you have an automobile."

Recently, a dealer for a top American luxury sports car came by Szuch's home, 14309 S. Grayland Ave., Norwalk, to look at Szuch's 1929 Model A sports roadster.

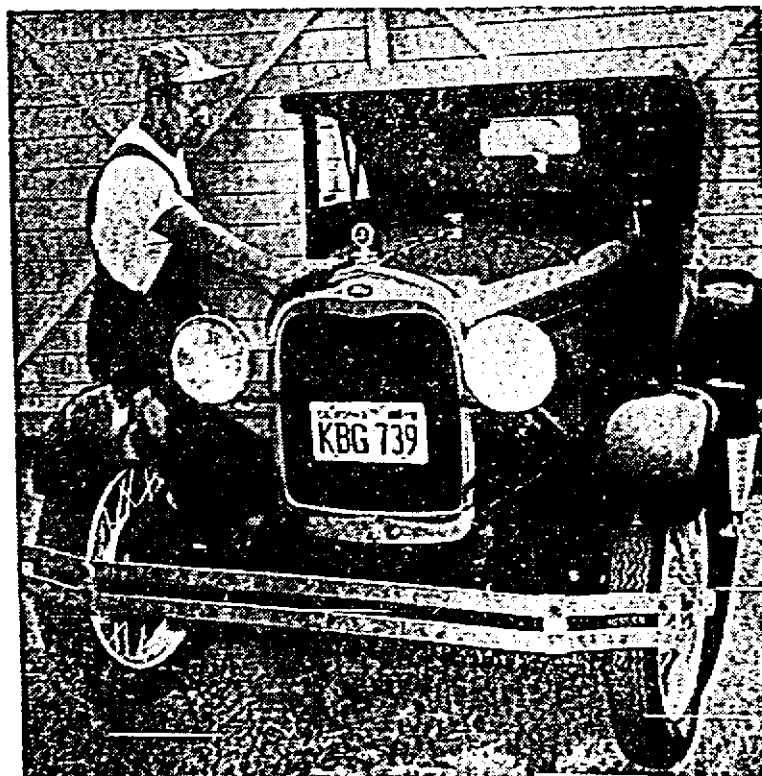

Two years of renovation went into the sparkling Model A.

"That fellow was so impressed," Szuch said, "that he offered me a straight swap—one of his $5,000 models for my 1929."

"Know what I told him? There's lots of models around, but not very many like mine."

U.S. Need Should Dictate Choice of Customs Site

WE AGREE WITH a recent editorial in the Wilmington Press-Journal that in all the hassle over the customhouse site one vital point has been forgotten or deliberately overlooked—the convenience, economy and needs of the federal government.

SOME UPTOWN LOS ANGELES customs brokers are up in arms because they will have to move their offices.

Mayor Sam Yorty is worried that Los Angeles will be downgraded as an "administrative center."

The Los Angeles Harbor Commission wants to develop Reeves Field.

Wherever the customhouse is located, it should primarily be for the convenience and economy of the federal government because that means for the convenience and economy of the taxpayer.

COMMISSIONER NICHOLS HAS expressed interest in securing a site that will serve both the harbor and Los Angeles International Airport, the principal areas of customs activities. This will permit customs to put the maximum number of its operations under one roof and give it maximum administrative efficiency.

Probably a location on Reeves Field would be more beneficial to Long Beach than a location on the San Diego Freeway. A location within our specific port district certainly would. These sites have been proposed.

But the Long Beach Harbor Commission has agreed to support any reasonable site within the harbor area preferred by Customs and the General Services Administration. After all, these are the experts.

THIS ATTITUDE MAKES SENSE. It is time to stop petty squabbling. Let each harbor community advance its favorite site for Nichols' consideration. But let them all agree to support the final decision.

Senate May Alter Its Work Rules

By OUR WASHINGTON BUREAU

WASHINGTON—The shame and humiliation of its performance during the present session has the Senate seriously considering some reforms in its work rules next year.

Talk of a more sensible work schedule starts every year, about this time when congressmen look at the time they wasted early in the session. But this year, things are worse. The Senate is even further behind in its business than usual, so much so, that the House of Representatives has taken a 10-day recess to give the other body a chance to catch up.

This year's tie-up started with the opera bouffe argument between two crusty old chairmen of the appropriations committees—Rep. Clarence Cannon and Sen. Carl Hayden. Money measures stacked up as they argued about where they were going to hold meetings.

Then came the filibuster against the communications satellite bill. This was followed by a three-day tie-up when the defeated liberals childishly delayed proceedings to show their resentment.

These happenings have created a climate for reform. Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) has a plan he believes the senators will accept, but he's keeping its details a secret for the time being. The Humphrey plan would designate certain days for work, certain days for recess during which members could be absent from Washington. It would allow every senator to plan his work schedule for the entire session.

Best of all, the Humphrey plan will enable senators to have a brief vacation in the summer. He points out that in 14 years in Congress, he has never been able to spend a summer holiday with his children.

THERE'S ALWAYS A political snooper from the Kremlin around whenever Russian groups visit abroad. During the recent Russia-America track meet at Stanford University, U.S. officials placed various pamphlets in the visitors' lounge. One of these, written in Russian, was titled "Questions and Answers About the United States." The Americans were pleased when all the copies quickly disappeared. They figured their guests found the pamphlets interesting reading. A few days after the Russian track stars departed, building custodians found all the pamphlets stacked away in a closet. Some member of the Russian party had obviously hidden them from the view of his team-mates in the belief they might be corrupted by subversive U.S. propaganda.

SEN. TOM KUCHEL'S office aides are currently puzzling over a reply to the following telegram which was sent at 3:38 a.m. Burbank time.

"Dear Senator: Will you please take hold of this San Fernando Valley. It is most certainly running wild. Almost everywhere is close your eyes. It is being over-run by Swedes, etcetera. Burbank police have no control. Am trying to live in Burbank."

THE WAYS AND MOODS of Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) are beginning to go beyond those expected of a maverick. His colleagues in the Senate have now been driven beyond mere irritation into a state of somewhat frustrated rage. He's taking on everyone, viciously and pointlessly, according to one senator, and he has no friends.

He occupied most of the time of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the other day and disputed the right of Chairman John Sparkman to shut him up. When Sparkman interrupted Morse to point out that it was the rule that senators took only 10 minutes per round of questioning Morse demanded that the clerk read the rule in question.

"Perhaps it is only the rule of courtesy," Sparkman, the soft-spoken Alabamian replied. That, of course, made no impression.

Meany Called Reuther a Liar in Tiff Over CIO's Hellstein

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Drew Pearson is on a news tour of European trouble spots. In his absence, his column is written by his associate, Jack Anderson.)

WASHINGTON—George Meany, the grizzled old curmudgeon of the labor movement, uttered such a deep-throated growl in Chicago last week that the echoes were picked up by the press. Reporters heard he had called his No. 2 man in the AFL-CIO, Walter Reuther, a "liar."

More out of propriety than repentance, Meany felt obliged to deny the report. What really happened: he didn't call Reuther simply a "liar," but also used an unprintable prefix.

The name-calling encounter took place in Meany's hotel room between sessions of the AFL-CIO executive council. Flanked by David Dubinsky of the Garment Workers and Al Hayes of the Machinists Union, Reuther called upon Meany to name Packinghouse Workers boss Ralph Hellstein to the executive council.

"You know why I'm here, George," began Reuther. "Ralph Hellstein's friends would like to see him on the executive council."

"I won't go along with that," growled Meany. "Hellstein will be elected to the council over my dead body. He's too left-wing for me."

"That's a horrible slur on a leader who has done so much to clean his union of radical elements," retorted Reuther. He reminded Meany of the merger agreement between the AFL and CIO and that the executive council would be balanced.

Reuther claimed that a "CIO vacancy" existed, that CIO leaders had "unanimously nominated" Hellstein, and that Meany had no right to veto their choice.

"You don't have to tell me about the AFL-CIO merger agreement. I helped to draft it," snorted Meany. "I'm not opposed to the CIO filling this vacancy, but I am opposed to the selection of Hellstein. I think you personally rigged this nomination to embarrass me."

"That isn't true, and you know it!" shot back Reuther. "You're a G— d— liar!" roared Meany.

Reuther started to rise from his chair, his fists clenched. "I won't take this abuse!" he shouted.

But Dubinsky and Hayes leaped to their feet and stood between the nation's top two labor leaders.

"You shouldn't have said that, George," they chided. "Well, he called me one, too," grunted Meany.

SENATE Leader Mike Mansfield has served private notice that he will make a motion to force a vote on Thurgood Marshall's nomination to the U.S. Court of Appeals unless South Carolina's Sen. Olin "The Solon" Johnston acts on the nomination at once. Mansfield threatened to intervene personally after Johnston had adjourned his subcommittee for the fifth time without taking up the Negro leader's appointment.

House GOP Leader Charlie Halleck recently cornered his Indiana colleague, Congressman Bill Bray, in a House corridor and belabored him for not voting the straight Halleck line. Charlie growled that it was embarrassing to him, as Republican leader, to have a member of his own Indiana delegation straying from the party line. But Bray cut him short. "You vote your way," he snorted, "and I'll vote mine."

President Kennedy and Sen. Jim Eastland of Mississippi have nothing in common except the coincidence that they both belong to the Democratic party. Yet they worked closer together than a couple of pea pickers to get a drug bill through the Senate. Earlier in the year, Eastland promised the President a drug bill. The Mississippi senator didn't concern himself about the details, but it became a matter of honor with him to get a bill passed.

Soviet Russia Is Flagrantly Violating Monroe Doctrine

WASHINGTON—The Soviet government is flagrantly violating the Monroe Doctrine, which declares that no European government may establish a foothold or acquire any territory in the Western hemisphere beyond what had already been established prior to 1823. This has been a basic principle of American foreign policy under all administrations since that time. Now, however, the Soviet Union has landed military personnel and equipment in large quantities in Cuba and will maintain a base under its control just 90 miles from this country.

President Kennedy has made it clear in public statements heretofore that, while the United States may consult with the Organization of American States, this country is nevertheless free at any time to take unilateral action to deal with any violations of the Monroe Doctrine.

The facts about the latest operations in Cuba have been verified to the satisfaction of the U.S. Department of State. Here is what actually has happened:

1. Between 3,000 and 5,000 Soviet personnel arrived in Cuba in five Soviet passenger vessels between July 27 and July 31.

2. Eleven cargo ships of the Soviet Union arrived during the same period and unloaded large crates at the ports of Havana, Matanzas, Bahia de Nipe, Bahia Honda, and Mariel. This was accomplished during the night hours under strict security conditions.

3. Soviet personnel did all the unloading. 4. Eyewitnesses saw empty trucks lifted into the holds of the various ships, where they were loaded and covered with tarpaulins. They were then hoisted back on to the docks and driven away by Soviet personnel.

5. Eyewitnesses reported seeing tanks, communications trucks, and large truck-trailers carrying crates about 40 feet long. All indications are that military hardware and communications equipment formed a large part of the cargo. Crews of American airplanes, flying over the ships on their way to Cuba, also observed the military nature of the equipment.

6. Only one of the five Soviet passenger ships arrived openly, and it was ceremoniously welcomed by Cuban Communist officials. It carried about 400 genuine agricultural experts and technicians, who were heralded as coming to assist in the agricultural development of Cuba. The other four vessels, however, arrived secretly at night, and these carried Soviet military personnel.

7. At least 15 additional ships from the Communist bloc, containing more of the same kind of cargoes and personnel, are on their way to Cuba.

President Kennedy knew all about this when he referred briefly at his Wednesday press conference to the landing in Cuba of "supplies and technicians of a rather intensive quantity in recent weeks." He said that they came from the Communist-bloc countries. Asked what the significance of it was, the President answered: "We are examining it now."

Actually, the Soviet military officers will train the Cuban Army just as they have done in the case of the North Vietnam Army in Southeast Asia.

The Monroe Doctrine—first proclaimed during the administration of President Monroe because of efforts of Russia and other countries to colonize certain portions of the Western hemisphere—declared, in effect, that any attempt by a European power to establish a foothold in any country in this hemisphere not already colonized would be regarded as an act of aggression and as "dangerous to our peace and safety."

THE COUNTRIES OF Latin America, by resolution, in recent years have concurred in the Monroe Doctrine as a hemispheric policy, but the question of how it should be enforced has never been defined. That's why President Kennedy made it clear in a public statement last year that the United States feels free to proceed on its own if the Latin American states do not wish to join in any co-operative action against an aggressor.

The landing of military supplies and personnel is a natural sequel to the setting up of Communist party personnel inside the civilian as well as the military departments of the Cuban government itself.

FROM THE STANDPOINT of international law, the United States has every right to land troops, take possession of Havana, and occupy the country, unless the Cuban government answers satisfactorily the request of the U.S. government that all Soviet military personnel be sent home and that no further shipments of military supplies be sanctioned by the Havana authorities.

There may be some connection between the Berlin crisis and the Soviet activities in Cuba. It may be that Soviet Premier Khrushchev is testing the United States. If he finds the Washington government "soft" and disinclined to take any countermeasures, the same procedure of infiltration by Soviet "advisers" and "technicians" may be followed in other countries in Latin America as part of a planned takeover of those countries. For this reason, it would indeed be a surprise if President Kennedy does not take advantage of the opportunity now afforded this country under international law and the Monroe Doctrine to safeguard the interests of the United States.

Reader Comments on Nixon Articles

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following are extracts from letters to the editor relative to the series of articles by James R. Phelan on the Hughes Tool Co. loan to Donald Nixon, brother of Richard Nixon, ex-Vice President and current gubernatorial candidate.)

EDITOR: I resent these articles terribly. I think Gov. Brown is a poor governor and now that we have a chance for a man of Nixon's calibre, you knock him.

MRS. C. B. WILLIAMS
 290 W. 19th St.

I CAN SEE no reason to try to link Richard Nixon in any deal, good or bad, in which he had no part. True, some one in his headquarters made a boo-boo and by a stretch of the imagination it might be charged to Nixon, but even that didn't implicate him in any questionable transaction.

J. L. MURYHEY
 3516 Karen Ave.

CONGRATULATIONS to Mr. Phelan. Much has been done by the Republican party and Mr. Nixon himself to make him seem as clean as the driven snow. Now the truth has been brought out and Richard Nixon can't deny he was involved in this loan to his family by a large government contractor. This was a wonderful job in getting the facts.

H. L. COLLIER

WHY NOT give Pat Brown

a few digs on the way he gloated over balancing the budget with money he did not have, but thought he would get from amendments that did not pass. That could be researched and made up mysteriously with innuendoes... All the smear articles proved was that Richard Nixon was not involved which will definitely help him in the campaign.

Jarvis, Javits Just Sound Alike

EDITOR: In your Aug. 15 edition you printed a letter from me in which I mentioned the fact that Howard Jarvis is running as a write-in candidate for the U.S. Senate against Richard Richards and Thomas Kuchel.

Adjacent to this item was an editorial in which the name of Sen. Jacob Javits of New York was mentioned. Just for the record, I would like to point out that these are two entirely different men (as different as night and day) and that the similarity of names is the only similarity between them.

Howard JARVIS is running against Kuchel and Richards. Jacob JAVITS is, unfortunately for the Republican Party, already a U.S. Senator.

Languages in the News

A leading British space authority has pointed out that Telstar, having been launched by Americans (who speak more or less the same language as the British), has given English a tremendous impetus toward eventual acceptance as a world language.

Other projected world languages are still being used, with varying success. Two important ones are Esperanto, based on Latin and the Romance languages, with Teutonic, Slavic and Greek additions, applied to an easy grammar, and Interlingua, based on Latin elements common to Western European languages.

Here, for space age use, is how to say "We hope Americans will be the first on the moon" in Esperanto and Interlingua.

Esperanto: Ni speras ke lan amerikanoj estos laj unuaj vizitantoj sur la luno. Interlingua: Nos spera que americanos va esser le prime visitantes al luna.

A copy of the Berlitz "Diner's Dictionary" will be mailed to anyone submitting a question used in "Languages in the News."

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Researchers Will Hunt Ways of Putting Disabled to Work

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—A program for the expenditure of $313,000 to conduct pilot experiments on the rehabilitation of disabled persons on the public assistance rolls was announced recently. The state will put up $77,000 and the federal government $236,000 to carry out the purposes of the project.

While no one is naive enough to believe that the problem of indigent disabled persons will be solved by this project, it nevertheless is a step in the direction of ridding the relief rolls of at least some individuals who will be better off, happier and better citizens if they are earning their own livings.

The program fits in with several other attempts, not only on the part of the state, but also the federal government, to put persons back in productive enterprise rather than have them remain as wards of the taxpayers.

It also fits in with what Samuel Leask, Jr., administrator of the Health and Welfare Agency, is attempting to accomplish in the welfare field. Leask's efforts are directed toward assisting those unfortunate enough to need state charity to regain their places in society through productive work.

Rehabilitation of the disabled is somewhat of a combined state project. To start the project, counselors will be assigned to the welfare offices in Sacramento, San Francisco, Santa Clara, Fresno, San Bernardino and San Diego counties. Three counselors will be assigned to Los Angeles County.

These counselors, the Vocational Rehabilitation Service, which is under the state Department of Education, will review applications for public assistance to determine if there is a disability problem contributing to the indigency of the applicants.

If such evidence is found, the case will be taken by the Rehabilitation Service, which will provide medical and vocational diagnosis, to determine how best to return the applicant and his family to self-supporting status.

Another program of assisting people to regain their place in a productive society is being carried on by the state Department of Employment. This concerns unemployed persons who are out of work because automation has interfered with their vocation.

The department plans to provide instruction and classes in various schools to assist these people to learn new skills. Thus, instead of continuing to ladle out millions of dollars monthly to support the non-producers, the state finally is taking some steps to assist them with instruction and encouragement in something aside from money.

ANAHEIM'S NEW ELVA L. HASKETT BRANCH LIBRARY DEDICATION TODAY

Anaheim Dedicates New Library

Dedication of the new Elva architect Thomas J. Russell, hold 25,000 volumes and the L. Haskett Branch Library at the $137,000 structure has area for future expansion will be able to hold an additional 10,000 volumes. The structure has seating for 96 patrons.

Included are adult and children's reading areas; a children's patio and story amphitheater; story room or small auditorium and art display room; staff room with kitchenette and patio and work room. A large window at the front of the building provides for book displays and interior display cases are provided for crafts exhibits.

Designed by Long Beach. The building is designed to be able to hold an additional 10,000 square feet.

Interpol, the famed European international police organization, is seeking information by Chief Security Officer on Los Angeles County Museum's guard-dog program as a means of combating art thieves.

Dr. Herbert Friedmann, museum director, said he had received a letter of inquiry from Arnold Sagalyn, director of law-enforcement coordination for the U.S. Treasury Department and U.S. representative for Interpol.

"I HAVE learned of the use and success achieved with a guard dog at the Los Angeles County Museum," Sagalyn wrote.

"In view of the art protection questions raised by international art thefts, this subject is going to be taken up at an Interpol meeting scheduled for this fall in Paris. I am sure that the experiences of the Los Angeles County Museum and the measures you have taken would be of great interest."

THE COUNTY museum acquired the nation's first museum guard dog — a two-year old German shepherd — in February.

An article, "Are Museums Going to the Dogs?" written by Leland T. Pellant, will appear in the September issue of the Museum News, official publication of the American Association of Museums.

ESCAPE TO THE ISLANDS IN SAN DIEGO-LAND

THE PLEASURES of a vacation on a South Pacific isle may be enjoyed in San Diego-Land without ever leaving the mainland. San Diego's island settings include Shelter Island, a palm-studded jewel amid the sparkling blue waters of San Diego Bay; Vacation Isle and other islands, sheltered coves and peninsulas in beautiful Mission Bay Aquatic Park; and unique Coronado Island, reached by a picturesque ferry trip from San Diego.

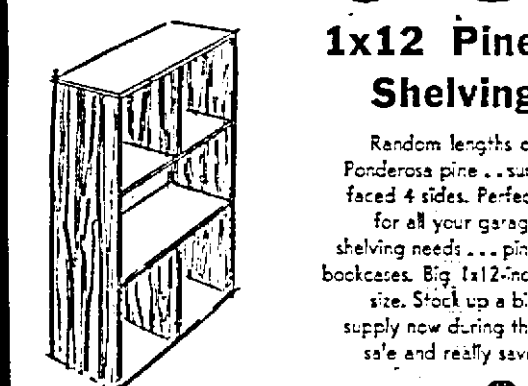

You can try surf boarding along San Diego-Land's 70 miles of attractive beaches. San Diego was singled out as one of the world's great surfing areas in a "Saturday Evening Post" feature in the July 14-21 issue. And virtually all of these beaches are public and open for your use — something that isn't true in many places.

The weather is nearly perfect, with lots of bright sunshine tempered by almost constant cool ocean breezes — never any smog. There are 20,000 hotel and motel rooms to pick from, 4,000 of them brand new within the last three years. Whatever your pleasure, enjoy it in an island setting in nearby San Diego-Land. Why not for Labor Day week-end?

Skelton Plans to Make Film in Japan

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Red Skelton, a comedian who has survived 11 years of television, plans to make a movie in Japan after completing his video shows this season.

Skelton has worked on his Japanese movie idea for the past 10 years, rewriting the script many times.

"It's a wonderful little story called 'Kasa-San,' 'Mr. Umbrella,'" Skelton said.

JUDY GARLAND SPEAKS OUT

Not the Tragic Figure I'm Painted, She Says

(Editor's Note: Judy Garland is one of the most frequently written-about stars in show business. What she herself feels about life in the spotlight is told in the following first-person story, written exclusively for The Associated Press.)

By JUDY GARLAND

I love my career. I want to say this because I'm always being painted a more tragic figure than I am, and I get awfully bored with myself as a tragic figure.

I wouldn't have been anything but an entertainer. With all the troubles, with the stumbling and falling on the way, the rewards are still so great.

If you happen to be a success, you meet writers, politicians, people in the arts, people with stimulating ideas in many places. It's a marvelous opportunity to lead a broad existence.

As a performer, I love the enthusiasm audiences have shown me. You can't blame me—we all want to prove ourselves, and I've had appreciation shown to me in the most inspiring, spontaneous ways.

NOW I LOOK at my three fine children and I wonder whether I would want them to be entertainers, too. Applause alone doesn't sustain you at 3 a.m., when you can't sleep.

But even if my children understood this, could I stop them in their choice of career? I don't think there's much I could do—or would do. I'd be a damned fool to discourage them if they wanted badly to be actors.

They've been around theater people all their lives, it's inevitable that they'd think of the stage and screen for themselves, if they're born talented, if they have the desire to sing and dance and entertain, it would be most terrible to have that smothered by a parent. I would never be a mother who wants to be the star of the family, with no competition from her children.

HOW THEN COULD I help them prepare for show business, if they chose to enter it?—as Liza, the eldest, has already. I used to think the best thing is to try to keep their lives, up to a certain age, as normal as possible. But how the heck can it be completely normal when they travel all over with me? Yet I believe they have been helped by the security of being with their mother. That is better than the best boarding school or a home full of servants—and no mother.

I would like to live in London in summers and New York in winters so that the children will be educated in New York. Education is, I feel, fundamental to their future. I first went out on a stage when I was 3 and have been at it pretty steadily ever since. That didn't happen to my children, fortunately, and I wouldn't want them on a stage at 8 or 10 or 12, either.

LORNA AND JOEY, my younger children, will go to school in New York, but Liza, who's 16 now, will go to study at the Sorbonne. She will take history, languages and even study sewing and cooking—things that I think are necessary to a young girl who wants to grow into an attractive woman. As long as she's going into theatrical work, her education should first embody all that, before everything narrows down to the theater.

Finally, it comes down to a matter of talent. Liza has been studying ballet since she was a child and loves it. Last year she spent the summer season at Hyannis, Mass., as an apprentice in summer stock—painting scenery, moving props, sweeping the stage, working hard. She seems to like the theater more than the movies.

LORNA, WHO'S 9, is the singer of the family. She has a terrific voice. Joey—he's only 7 and you can't tell with boys. He might turn out to be an engineer. Right now he's only just finished the first grade of school and he's just a nice fellow.

But if they approach acting, I would want them to be aware of the responsibilities of a career and the little hurtful things that can happen. They have to be taught what true professionalism is—good manners at work, thinking of other people, your co-workers in a production. There are people who have been acting for years and have never achieved this. I may be many things people disapprove of but I have always tried to be a true professional.

So if they are talented, you teach them and encourage them and give them confidence. If they are not talented, get them into another line quick. It's difficult enough when one has talent. When one hasn't, it's too heartbreaking.

SINGER-ACTRESS Judy Garland and children: Liza Minnelli, 16, daughter by a previous marriage; Joey, 7, and Lorna, 9, children by marriage to Judy's estranged husband, Sid Luft.

Big Year for Dogs in Movies

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It's official, Hollywood has gone to the dogs.

The American Humane Association reports that 2,676 animals appeared in Hollywood movies during June. The Screen Actor's Guild, meanwhile, noted a depression exists for its human members.

Big upsurge for the animal activity was Paramount's "Hathi," where baby elephants and similar African stars shared equal billing with John Wayne.

Even Jackie Gleason in "Papa's Delicate Condition" had to compete in scenes with elephants, chimpanzees, and the like in a circus scene.

But most unusual activity at Paramount was for "Hud Bannon," starring Paul Newman. The script called for 40 Texas buzzards.

And then there's "The Pigeon That Took Rome."

HENNING BODENHOFF MUSES OVER SOUVENIRS OF COLORFUL CAREER SERVED IN DANISH UNDERGROUND

He's Been War Hero and a Peace Fighter

By MOLLY BURRELL

FULLERTON — At 38, Henning Bodenhoﬀ has had a distinguished military career, survived Nazi torture and gained international acclaim as a peace officer with the United Nations.

Now in Sunny Hills in Fullerton, he is writing a book, and enjoying a 14-month old son and the home he never had time for during his action-packed life.

Bodenhoﬀ, seventh generation of a family whose sons have served in the elite Danish King's Guard, joined the Guard at 18, was imprisoned and tortured by the Germans in 1943 for his work with the Danish underground, escaped and continued his work with the underground, became a top officer with NATO, served as UN peace officer during two crises in the Middle East.

HIS DECORATIONS from 13 countries tell only part of the story.

He has tramped the deserts of Arabia, dined on lamb's eyes and acrid Bedouin coffee, helped relocate thousands of refugees from the Iron Curtain, mastered five languages, and helped hundreds of victims of Nazi oppression escape from Germany and Denmark.

"You have heard many stories of the resistance movement and its heroes, but I think there were really no heroes. Without the help of hundreds of little people, each doing an important part of the job, the movement would have collapsed."

After the war, Bodenhoﬀ was in charge of a camp in Denmark where 11,000 children and older people had been sent because of food shortage in Germany.

He was appointed military assistant to the commander in chief of NATO, northern region in 1953. His job included taking care of escapees from East Germany, sending them on 14-day visits to Danish homes to get acquainted with the outside world.

In 1958, when Dag Hammarskjöld asked for the first group of officers to go to the Middle East during the Lebanon-Syria crisis, Bodenhoﬀ was put in charge of the force.

Holder of the Croix de Guerre, the Vatican Cross of Honor of the Holy Sepulchre, the Jordanian Cross of Honor, and awards from the United Nations, the governments of Sweden, Norway, Germany, and six others, Bodenhoﬀ is reticent about his honors.

HEARING CONTINUES MONDAY

Hospital Demanding Seized Files' Return

Attorneys for Biaby Knolls others are slated for trial Sept. 21 on a conspiracy charge, that it did not sufficiently describe the property and premises to be searched, and that the court had no jurisdiction to issue it.

Judge Smith ordered Carroll to produce Monday his card files relating to the institution, and a Wilmington 418 patients, at least some of which attorney Milton Emlein contended would show no irregularities.

They asked Municipal Judge Charles T. Smith to quash the warrant, which he signed Wednesday, and under which the documents were taken by police officers and district attorney's investigators. The hearing will be resumed Monday at 2 p.m.

FRIDAY'S two-and-one-half-hour session was devoted to questioning of DA's investigator Joe Carroll, who signed the affidavit on which the warrant was issued.

In it, Carroll alleged that the files would help to show that hospital head Dr. Jerome Rehman and others conspired to commit crimes.

- (3) Compare the consistency of interest payments with that of other institutions.
- (4) Compare the rate of interest paid throughout the years with that of other institutions.
- (5) Check on the investment policy—it should be conservative.
- (6) Ask your friends about the institution.

East Texas Oil Scandal in Making

By PATRICK CONWAY
AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—While the Billie Sol Estes case has been stealing the headlines, a scandal has been building up in east Texas that could make Estes's manipulations look like a tempest in a petty cash box.

This scandal involves the slanted drilling of oil wells to someone else's lease. There is no clear indication of how long it has been going on, or how widespread it is or how much oil has been stolen.

But it involves the East Texas Oil Field, the biggest in the western hemisphere, the nearby Hawkins Field and Webster Field, Webster Field is southwest of the East Texas Field, in Harris County or the city of Houston.

Texas Atty. Gen. Will Wilson estimates the value of the oil stolen from slanted wells is in the millions of dollars.

FROM 1895 through June 30, 1962, a total of 310,614 oil wells were completed in Texas.

Most of them were drilled by the geometric rule that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points; in the case of oil wells, between the surface of the ground and the oil under the ground.

Some oil operators learned how to strike oil even if there was none under the ground they had under lease. They did it by drilling at a slant from their leases until they tapped pools under nearby leases.

This is slanted or deviated drilling. Wilson has cut off some 500 wells in East Texas from pipelines because they are on leases that contain slant-drilled wells.

ACCORDING to Wilson, there are other forms of the skulduggery in the fields. One is the "Granddaddy Well." It is a producing well tied in by plastic pipes to a number of dry holes.

The dry holes draw oil from the "Granddaddy Well" and are thus made to look like producers. The reason for this is that there is a legal production quota for every oil well.

Legally, only the "Granddaddy Well" has a quota. But by attaching it to dry holes, the crooked operator multiplies the production of the "Granddaddy" by the number of dry holes he has it attached to.

He uses plastic pipe because metal detecting devices cannot detect it.

ANOTHER form of crookedness is to make a marginal well out of a good oil well by "choking" it. A marginal well produces less than 20 barrels of oil a day but it can legally produce every day in the year.

On the other hand, a well by the federal government, to that produces more than 20 barrels a day can produce only eight days a month. It often pays to have a marginal well.

The East Texas Field contains 19,116 wells that produce 120,000 barrels of crude oil a day. At the current price of $3.10 a barrel, this totals $372,000 a day. Almost 4,000 of the wells are classified as marginal.

YOUR CAREER WILL START with a good job obtained by reading the "Help Wanted" columns. Better check right now.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Bright '63 Auto Outlook Sparks Economic Gains

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The economic panorama took on some brighter hues this week but still was marred by smudges.

Rises by business indicators, a prediction of banner sales of automobiles in 1963 and an advancing stock market provided encouraging signs.

A laggard steel industry, beset by a profit squeeze, and spotty performances in scattered segments of the business world were a drag.

Statistics indicated the trend of the economy was predominantly upward in July. With reports on 30 barometers measuring various sectors of the economy still incomplete, the Census Bureau said 10 were up, six were down and one was unchanged. In June, 15 of the 24 reported were down, eight were up and one was unchanged.

These indicators chart such things as housing starts, average factory work week, Standard & Poor's stock market index, retail sales, durable goods orders, initial claims for unemployment insurance and prices of industrial materials.

BUSINESSMEN were cheered by the statement of Semon E. Knudsen, vice president of General Motors Corp., the world's largest manufacturing company, that in his opinion there will be no recession in 1963.

He predicted that the automobile industry will sell 7,000,000 cars this year and next year.

Responding to good news, the stock market staged a vigorous rally and climbed above the level at which it stood before the "Black Monday" crash of May 28—the worst fall since 1929.

The aerospace issues paced the advance on word that the Defense Department had One is the "Granddaddy Well." It is a producing well tied in by plastic pipes to a number of dry holes.

The market surge was temporarily interrupted when steel issues fell on news that Republic Steel Corp. sliced its quarterly dividend from 75 cents to 50 cents.

T. F. PATTON, Republic president, said his firm, "like other companies in the steel industry, has been caught in a squeeze between incessantly rising labor and other costs on the one hand and conditions which have prevented the company from obtaining relief through higher prices for its products on the other."

He said the profit squeeze well produces less than 20 barrels of oil a day but it can legally produce every day in the year.

That the scars from the price battle between the Kennedy administration and steel producers remain deep also was evident in a statement by Avery C. Adams, chairman of Jones & Laughlin Steel Co.

He cited President Kennedy's statement in September that the steel industry can look forward to good profits, and said: "History has already proven that the President's statement with respect to the steel industry's potential profits, based as it was upon the theoretical and academic recommendations of his Council of Economic Advisors, was not in accord with the facts."

U.S. and Canadian insurance companies will provide $130 million in financing for the Wabush Mines iron ore project in Labrador.

THE STEEL INDUSTRY boosted its production last week but still lagged at about 53.5 per cent of capacity. The output of 1,616,000 tons was up 2.4 per cent from the previous week. Orders indicated that improvement in September will be slight because automakers still have big stocks and will be working them off.

Automobile production still was very low this week—about 7,000 passenger cars—as the changeover to 1963 models moved slowly. American Motors and Ford joined Chrysler in turning out 1963s.

The railroads and labor were locked in battle on two fronts. Labor emphasized the likely loss of thousands of jobs in the proposed merger of the New York Central and Pennsylvania railroads in cross-examination of James M. Symes, Pennsylvania chairman, at an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing.

Railroads asked a federal court to speed action on a labor-obtained injunction which is blocking the job cuts and new work rules the lines want put in effect. The railroads urged a ruling by the end of September.

Florida Officials War on Mosquitoes

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Health authorities in two counties are waging an all-out war against mosquitoes—carriers of the dreaded sleeping sickness disease known officially as encephalitis.

To date, Pinellas County health officials have attributed one death definitely to encephalitis and five probabilities. Confirmation of the cause of death cannot be made until a laboratory analysis is made. This takes several weeks.

Sports Merry-Go-Round

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Executive Sports Editor

What Time's Next Plane Home?

CHICAGO—On a rainy day in Chicago, with the thermometer ready to burst at a stifling 95 degrees, one's thoughts turn instantly to one channel: an overwhelming desire to be back home in Southern California.

Everybody, that is, except horseplayers who have found their Shangri-La in this muggy, humid place that Al Capone used to call home. Southern Californians have year-round horse racing from Santa Anita and Hollywood Park to the quarter horses at Los Alamitos—but Chicago makes us look like infants in swaddling clothes in the matter of continuing horse racing.

Here, racing is not merely year-round, it whirls clock 'round. Right now, for example, the man who desires to improve the breed can begin at 1 p.m. with nine thoroughbred races at Arlington Park, then windup at midnight with a 10-race harness program at Sportsman Park under his belt.

The pace is entirely too dizzy for us California country boys... but it is as stimulating as a gross of pep pills to these Chicago people.

On a brief stopover here before proceeding to this trip's objective—the 125,000 dollar Hambletonian at quaint, little Du Quoin—this reporter attempted the hat trick: watching 19 races in one day and night—

My conclusion: DON'T TRY IT.

My said financial report: Boss, there ain't nothing left of the expense account.

My unsolicited suggestion: Never, dear Lord, never let this happen to quaint, little Southern California—

NIGHT RACING OF THE harness type seems just around the corner for Southern California. But there is one very big difference in any planned Southland operation and Chicago's attack on the defenseless citizen's wallet: Southern California night racing won't take place at a time when day racing is dated.

Harness racing has jumped into the major league category throughout the nation—and a major part of that surge has been attributed to night maneuvers.

It is major league in Southern California right now, but who knows what pinnacle it might reach when it finally secures after-dark approval?

BIFF LOWRY, asst. general manager of Western Harness Racing Assn., produced some interesting figures about his favorite sport that honestly surprised us.

Did you know, for example, that night harness racing in New York hares 25,000 people and a two million dollar handle per program? (You did know that it shoved the baseball Giants out of New York.)

Or that are light cards here in Chicago average ten thousand witnesses and five hundred thousand bucks?

Or that each Southland sulky program lures ten thousand devotees and a daily money tab of 725,000 dollars?

There's nothing minor league in those figures, particularly when you consider that in each instance there are many conflicting sports attractions.

GOVERNOR PAT BROWN is a major factor in night harness racing plans, Lowry told us in another surprise statement.

"The governor is aware of this definite issue and seems to be in our corner," claimed Lowry. "We'll get night harness racing as soon as it gets to the legislature, I am certain."

What if Richard Nixon defeats Brown this November?

"We'll have to start our campaigning all over again," replied Lowry. "But I think this would just amount to the loss of a year in your time schedule."

SPEAKING OF HORSE PLAYERS and politics, an expert in both fields, Joey Lewis, is performing in this piggery corner of the world.

"You all remember the publicity Nixon got when he was stoned," rasped the inveterate horse loser. "Which proves simply that he drinks more than Kennedy."

YOU CAN'T GET AWAY from horses here—even when you visit the heavyweight contender, Sonny Liston. We will tell you more about a visit with Sonny later, but do you have any idea where the contender is training for his forthcoming title bout with champ Floyd Patterson?

Why, at Aurora Downs. A race track—Chicago and horses is a combination as deadly as bourbon and soda. Maybe more deadly, boss. Have you ever battled 19 races in one day?

Kindall's Clout Decisive

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Jerry Kindall's two-run homer in the eighth inning led the Cleveland Indians to an 8-6 come-from-behind victory over the Boston Red Sox Saturday.

Kindall's blast came with Bubba Phillips aboard and was hit off Dick Radatz, making his 51st appearance of the season. It was Radatz' fifth defeat against six victories.

Phillips pulled the Indians even in the sixth when he hit his eighth homer of the season with Woody Held aboard. The victory went to Barry Latman, who survived a five-run Red Sox uprising in the third.

Pete Runnels, the league's leading hitter with a .336 mark, singled in the Boston rally to drive in one run. Another scored on a throwing error by Kindall.

Spahn Skyrockets Career Win Total to 323 With Three-Hitter Over Cubs

CHICAGO (AP)—Backed by a barrage of four home runs, Warren Spahn hurled the Milwaukee Braves to a 10-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs on a yield of three hits Saturday.

The 41-year-old southpaw missed the 56th shutout of his career in the ninth inning when Dick Bertell led off with a triple and scored after two were out on Ken Hubb's single.

Spahn, who scored his sixth successive victory to boost his record to 14-11 for the season, now has 323 triumphs—three short of the record of 326 by a left-hander set by Eddie Plank. Spahn had a no-hitter until the sixth when Bertell, in a pinch batting role, singled to center. That was all the Cubs could muster until the ninth inning. Hank Aaron provided Spahn with all the offense needed when he hit a two-run homer in a four-run fourth inning. Other Milwaukee homers were by Amado Samuel, Eddie Matthews and Lee Maye.

Aaron's homer was his 35th and marked the 25th consecutive game in which he has hit safely.

Aside from spoiling Spahn's bid for his first 1962 shutout, the only consolation the Cubs could draw from the game was the extension of Hubb's National League fielding record for second basemen.

PLAYERS BALK AT 'OVERWORK'

Pirate 'Strike' Fizzles

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Pittsburgh Pirate players, after rebelling for the second time in three years against crowded game scheduling, Saturday called off a threatened walkout. In 1960, the Pirates won their point.

This time they backed down on the advice of baseball's player attorney, Judge Robert Cannon of Milwaukee.

Cannon, after talking to National League president Warren Giles, advised the Pirates to play the day-night doubleheader Saturday with the St. Louis Cardinals. Another Pirate-Card doubleheader is set for today.

The controversy arose when the Cardinal management, in agreement with the Pirate management, re-scheduled Friday night's game to Saturday.

The Pirates objected to playing a night game before a doubleheader. They said they were willing to play an afternoon doubleheader Saturday and again Sunday, or a day game Saturday and a night game Monday. Monday is an open date.

Giles said in Cincinnati "The determining factor was that this is the last series these two teams are scheduled to play this year, in either St. Louis or Pittsburgh."

The National League president declined to compare his decision with one he made in 1960 when such a night game was re-scheduled for another date.

"I do not recollect my decision in 1960 clearly enough to comment on it," he said.

The 1960 Pirates, en route to the National League pennant, also objected to schedule jamming. "The Pirates bluffed and got away with it then, and now they're trying to bluff us," said a Cardinals official.

Slumping Yanks Extend Streak to Five Games

BALTIMORE (AP)—Russ Snyder's single with two out in the ninth inning gave the Baltimore Orioles a 4-3 victory over the New York Yankees Saturday night and completed Baltimore's second consecutive doubleheader sweep over the slumping league leaders.

The Orioles won the opener of the day-night twin bill, 8-6, by scoring six runs in the sixth inning.

Despite the four losses here in two days, the Yanks still lead the Angels and Minnesota by four games.

The Orioles overcame big New York leads to win both games and extend the Yankee losing streak to five games.

Snyder's game-winning blow in the nightcap extended his hitting streak to 19 games. The single to centerfield off reliever Luis Arroyo came after a pair of walks by another reliever, Jim Bouton, and a wild pitch by Arroyo. Brooks Robinson, who had seven hits in nine trips during the twin bill, drove in the other three Oriole runs with a homer in the second, a double in the sixth and a single in the eighth—all off New York starter Bud Daley.

Robinson has collected 11 hits in the four games against the Yanks, and 16 in his last 21 times at bat.

The slumping Yanks have used 22 pitchers in the last seven games. In four games here, the New York mound staff has allowed 57 hits and 32 runs.

Baltimore has won 9 of its last 11 games against the Yanks, and holds a season edge of 10-7 with one game remaining.

Attempted to Break Color Line in 1942

Jackie Robinson's recent induction into baseball's Hall of Fame brought to light an effort by the Pittsburgh Courier, famous Negro publication, to break the color line in the major leagues in 1942, four years before Branch Rickey of the Dodgers signed Robinson to a Montreal contract.

Publishers of the Courier offered the Pittsburgh Pirates any or all of the stars of the Pittsburgh Homestead Grays, one of the two ranking Negro baseball teams along with the Kansas City Monarchs.

However, the offer was not accepted. Until recently, this was an untold story, but it finally was revealed by Pittsburgh writer Harry Keck, who sat in on all of the negotiations back in 1942.

DAVE LEWIS

It was in August of '42 that Keck, civic leaders and leaders of the Courier met with William E. Benswanger, president of the Pirates.

Because of the delicate nature of the meeting, Keck reports, Benswanger requested that nothing be published. All agreed to keep the trust until such time as there would be no further need of secrecy.

It was suggested by the Courier representatives that the time was ripe for the admittance of Negro players into organized baseball. They proposed that the Pirates blaze the trail and offered the club the pick of the best players on the Homestead roster.

And there were several that were of major league caliber, especially during the wartime years when talent was at a premium.

The Homestead Grays had proved themselves many times by whipping major league all-star clubs in post-season exhibition games.

TOP PLAYER ON THE HOMESTEAD team was Josh Gibson, 6-1, 205-pound catcher who was known as the "Babe Ruth of the Negro Leagues."

Gibson's fence-busting feats made him a legendary figure. His long-distance home runs frequently exceeded those of Ruth. Many of his homers measured more than 500 feet.

On top of his hitting, Gibson also was a standout receiver. In fact, many baseball men who had seen him in action agreed he was even better than the Yankees' Bill Dickey, who was the best in the majors at the time.

In addition to Gibson, the Homestead club also had two other outstanding players to offer—Buck Leonard, a smooth-fielding first baseman and second only to Gibson in power hitting, and Vic Harris, playing manager of the Grays.

It was tempting bait and, according to Keck, put Benswanger on the spot. It was obvious that he was reluctant to be the one to break the color line.

AFTER THINKING OVER THE OFFER very carefully, he said, "I appreciate your proposition. However, it is a decision that can not be lightly made. I will have to talk it over with my manager (Frankie Frisch). Although I am president of the club, I cannot sign players indiscriminately and simply turn them over to him and tell him to go out and win the pennant with them. I will talk it over and let you know the decision."

Frisch was in New York with the Pirates and a representative of the Courier contacted him there and asked him about the offer. "I'm only the manager of the team. I don't sign the players."

And that was the last of it.

In later years, Benswanger revealed that one of the major factors in his refusing the offer was a plea from Cum Posey, co-owner of the Grays, who did not share the enthusiasm of the Courier about the plan.

"CUM TOLD ME," BENSWANGER told Keck, "that if the stars of the Negro League were taken into the major leagues, their followers would lose interest in Negro baseball and would switch their allegiance to the big leagues and that would mean the end of the Negro League. It turned out to be a prophetic prediction."

However, he didn't add that the Negro today is much greater in baseball than he ever was in the Negro Leagues.

The Courier also gave the Boston Red Sox an opportunity to beat Rickey to his pioneering role.

Three players were sent by the Courier to Boston for tryouts in the spring of 1944, but nothing came of it. As one observer said, "They received a polite brushoff."

Strangely enough, the Red Sox were to become the last club in the majors to break the color line. That didn't take place until a couple of years ago when they signed Pumpsie Green.

Thus, the way was cleared for Rickey to sign Jackie Robinson to a contract on Oct. 30, 1945. It was to become a memorable occasion!

As for Josh Gibson, he never had a chance again to make the majors. He died shortly after Robinson was signed.

Dodgers Close Road Trip Today

but it was a smiler, anyway. The first Dodger run, unearned via Rod Kanehl's error in the third, was matched in the Mets' half. The Dodgers did not have a comfortable margin until T. Davis homered to make it 4-1 after five.

Craig (7-21) allowed 11 of the Dodgers' hits and became the league's losingest pitcher since Robin Roberts dropped 22 in 1957.

The only legitimate Mets hit was Richie Ashburn's run-scoring single after Williams walked Jim Hickman in the third.

Durocher remained in his hotel room and watched Saturday's game on TV. He will be ready to rejoin the squad this afternoon.

Dr. Wade A. Hastings, who answered the emergency call and treated Durocher Friday night, was a guest of the Dodgers Saturday.

The quick thinking of Dodger trainer Bill Buhler saved Durocher even before Dr. Hastings arrived at the scene. This was confirmed Saturday by Dr. Peter LaMotte, the Mets' physician who examined Durocher at the hospital.

Buhler injected adrenalin intra-muscularly before Dr. Hastings gave him the intravenous shot... by law, only physicians can give intravenous injections.

DIS AND DATA... Dodgers have scheduled a 10 a.m. workout Monday to run an off day. Craig caught Tommy Davis hitting at first base and in doing with his 12th pickoff throw of the year. Craig made 13 attempts to pick off Davis in the fifth, sixth, and seventh innings. Davis won that match as he took third on Sullivan's hit and run single through the hole at short. With three outs, Sullivan batted in a double.

PLAYOFF Today for Canada Tee Title

PORT CREDIT, Ont. (UPI)—Vancouver's Stan Leonard, who was well on the road to his ninth Canadian Professional Golfers' Assn. championship, missed three-foot putts on the 16th and 17th holes Saturday and ended in a three-way tie after regulation play with Alvie Thompson and George Knudson.

An 18-hole playoff will be held today. Leonard was nine par for the tournament, one stroke up on Knudson and two ahead of Thompson, after 15 holes of the final round of the 54-hole contest. But he bogeyed the par four 16th when he missed a three-foot putt and then threw away the chance for a recovery birdie on the 17th when he rimmed another three-footer.

Young Don Massengale survived a challenge by Gay after two 69s, pulled even hole. He pushed his tee shot birdied No. 5 and went ahead the ball back to the middle of the fairway on his second Massengale birdied the 7th shot. From there he chipped and they made the turn even to about 30 feet from the pin and two-putted. He finished with a 72 and a 210 total.

Massengale hit every green in regulation, carding four birdies on putts of 3, 8 and 40 feet and a one footer on the 18th hole. On this 515-foot yard hole, Massengale hit a drive and then sent a three-wood shot barely over the green. He chipped up for his easy birdie putt.

Massengale three-putted the 5th hole, missing a three-footer and at the 14th he missed a two-footer for bogies.

Massengale has had only three holes over par and all came by three-putting.

A HEAP O' LEAPIN', CHAMP

A hop, skip and a leap with jump rope by heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson had spectators gaping Saturday as he moved training camp to Chicago and began final phase of preparations for Sept. 25 title match with Sonny Liston.

THE RIGHTHANDER has beaten the Angels twice in relief and shut them out in a starting assignment Aug. 9, Saturday, after scattering nine hits through seven innings. Fisher retired to Turk Lown who saw only two men on base in the final two innings.

As for Bo, three Chicago doubles in a row for two more runs in the fourth rescued him from the 85-degree heat.

Jack Spring came on to start the fifth, gave up three runs on two doubles, a single, and two wild pitches, and exited for Bob Botz in the sixth.

BOTZ WATCHED Al Smith belt one over the fence to lead off the inning and then teamed up with Eli Grba, who pitched the ninth, for the last 12 outs without a run.

After this afternoon's series wrapup with the White Sox, the Angels will hit the road until Sept. 12.

Frank Baumann (6-4) faces Don Lee in this afternoon's 1:30 game.

ANGEL ANGLES—Steve Biko has finally succumbed to a leg injury and has been placed on the 30-day disabled list. This means he will see no more action this season. The Angel first baseman was released from the hospital earlier this week when it was learned he had a bad leg injury.

Freese's three hits in the first three innings Saturday ran his hit streak to five consecutive times at bat. The third ended the hard work in the eighth inning with a straight-up hit to center field. On a 300-foot Saturday day, the Angels were in a hot seat with place with Minnesota and scored a 55-72 record.

enough. Rig's problem was that no other pitchers were warm enough to come in, despite soaring thermometer readings.

Returning to the mound, the southpaw pool player surveyed the gray uniforms on every base and promptly hit the batter, Mike Hersberger, with his first pitch, driving in another run.

Then a funny thing happened. Bo got the next three batters out in order.

There was plenty more Chicago scoring, but the Angels couldn't even match the first inning.

In the second, George Thomas' double and the first of three hits for Fregosi scored one run. Billy Moran's third homer in three days, a line drive down the left field line in the seventh, accounted for the other.

Eddie Fisher (7-4), the White Sox starter and winner, has grown very fond of the Angels this season. Of his seven victories, FOUR of them has been against the Angels.

Waterfowl Hunting Season, Limits Similar to Last Year

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The California Fish and Game Commission Saturday adopted 1962-63 waterfowl hunting seasons and bag limits which will be almost exactly the same as those for last year.

The action was taken after reconsideration of a motion passed 15 minutes earlier to adopt a straight 75-day waterfowl hunting season.

That would have extended from Oct. 20 to Jan. 2.

The decision was reconsidered after Carl Wertz, former commission president and now president of the California Duck Hunters Assn., told a lot of hunters would be annoyed.

On motion of Jamie Smith, the commission voted to adopt a 45-day waterfowl hunting season. This season will have a daily bag limit of four per day and a season limit of 20 per season. The season will run from Oct. 20 to Jan. 2.

Bellflower Boulevard — Then and Now

Forty-seven years do make a difference, as evidenced by these two pictures taken at Bellflower. At left is scene on July Fourth 1915, when Bellflower Boulevard was a dirt road and much narrower than the present-day boulevard shown at right. The horse and buggy crowd was watching a foot race.

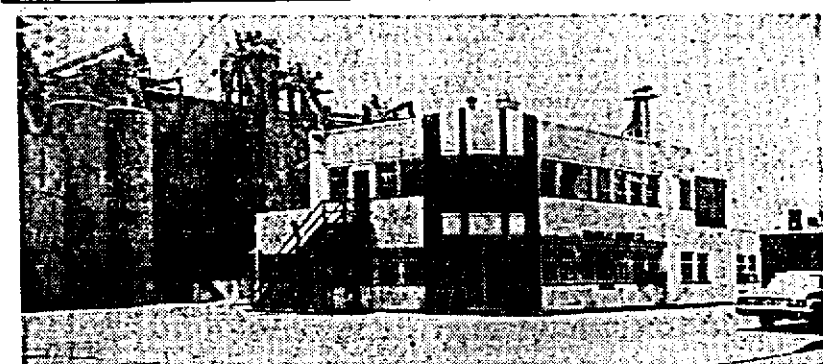

Pictures have at least one thing in common—a Thompson store, also reflecting the progress through the years. Bellflower's "main street" now is a wide, well-lighted thoroughfare, highly businesslike for a city of its size. Street, formerly Somerset Avenue, was widened in 1929, with buildings set back.

TRIANGLE GRAIN PLANT AT BELLFLOWER

Friendly City, Bellflower, Has Formula for Good Living

By VERN ANTHONY
Southland Progress Editor

BELLFLOWER — For a model, U.S.A. style so-called "bedroom city" — basically residential as opposed to an industrial center — try Bellflower.

But this growing city of near 50,000 is happily surrounded by the Southland's vast array of business and recreational resources so essential to "the good life."

Always a "hi-neighbor" industry. Large plants near town, Bellflower officially adopted the slogan "Friendly City" following incorporation in 1957.

FAVORED VERSION as to the origin of the city's name has it called after an apple. Originally the area was known as "Wilderness" and then, in about 1904, it was called "Firth."

It became "Somerset" when the Pacific Electric Railroad established a station here. Then came complications.

The Postal Department refused to recognize the name because there already was a Somerset, Colo.; and the abbreviation might be confused with California's. So there had to be another name.

THE STORY GOES that there happened to be in the area an orchard of Bellflower apples. Folks liked the sound, so agreed to call the town Bellflower.

About 96 per cent of the city's more than six square miles is developed or useable, and the remaining 4 per cent will be absorbed by a freeway which will cross the southern part of town just out of a possible 100 in the Journal's road test, and was given a four-star, or one of the highest ratings.

Bellflower contains no giant factories; but it has put emphasis on light consumer type facilities. Triangle pioneered in bulk delivery of feed, instead of sacking it. Now, huge truckloads are delivered hundreds of miles right to feed lots.

ESTABLISHED in the days when this was a major dairy

ONE FEATURE of the plant is the electronic control panel

Newer in the city is Donhal, Inc., manufacturer of highway trailers under the Oasis trade name. This plant is growing and the name Bellflower is carried far and wide on trailers built here.

OUTSTANDING development in recent building activity has been the spurt in construction of apartment houses. Future use of land available due to deep lots laid out here also is expected. High rise building, with no present restrictions, also looms.

A city of outstanding schools, Bellflower has the added advantage of nearby Cerritos College just outside its eastern boundary, where a $14 million campus is being developed on 95 acres.

BELLFLOWER has no city business license tax, one of only four such cities in California.

There are three modern

Area Men Build Up Thriving Trailer Plant at Bellflower

BELLFLOWER—Nestled in a shady grove where workers and buzzing saws hum with the birds is one of Bellflower's largest industrial plants—a multi-million dollar concern.

Very little is known locally of the plant or its products, except by those interested in travel home trailers. However, the demand for the quality built "homes-for-the-road" has been responsible for making Bellflower known by trailer house dealers and owners throughout 11 western states and Canada.

DONHAL, INC., manufacturers of Oasis Trailers, is located at 10123 E. Washington St. The plant is hidden on a large tree covered plot at the rear of a residential street in this "bedroom" city. Only a few of the neighbors are aware of the extensive operations of the plant.

Co-owners of the firm are Donald Herfter and Dwight H. Avery, who were fellow workers in the aircraft industry during World War II. Both were employed in Downey at the time.

HERFTER started in the cabinet manufacturing business back in 1946. In 1957, Avery joined the firm and the business was expanded to the manufacturing of complete trailer homes.

The partners commented, "Our products just seemed to take hold and we've had a backlog of orders ever since our first trailer was put on the road."

Between five and eight trailer homes ranging from $1,295 to $4,000 roll off the assembly line daily. An average of between 70 and 75 workers are employed in the plant.

THE FIRST MODEL to roll off the Donhal assembly line was a 15-footer; the second, an 18-footer. Now, the Oasis line includes models in provincial and modern styling, with standard facilities or full self-containment.

A recent issue of the Mobile Home Journal, a national publication, had this to say about the Bellflower product following an extended road test:

"WEBSTER DEFINES an oasis as a lush, plush haven. The Oasis trailer tested is one lush, plush haven that for cost and accommodation beats any desert spa."

"The Oasis behaves wonderfully on the highway, tracking as if it is magnetized to the hitch. Even at high speed no wobble or sway could be detected."

The Oasis scored 84 points out of a possible 100 in the Journal's road test, and was given a four-star, or one of the highest ratings.

Port Ambassadors Will Visit Redondo

Long Beach Port Ambassadors, seeking to strengthen ties with neighboring cities, will visit Redondo Beach Tuesday for fellowship with civic leaders and a tour of shoreline developments.

Sutter Kunkel, Ambassadors chairman, Saturday urged members to participate in Tuesday's activities.

The party will leave by bus at 9:45 a.m. from Chamber of Commerce headquarters, 121 Linden Ave.

There will be a boat tour at Redondo at 11 a.m. Luncheon

THIS WILL BE the first visit for the Ambassadors to other cities. Kunkel said it is planned on alternate months to visit various cities and to host groups from other cities with tours of the Long Beach harbor.

PLENTY OF PUNCH

NEW DIRECTOR

Election of Joseph R. Rensch, of 2433 Via Sonoma, Palos Verdes Estates, as director of Pacific Lighting Gas Supply Co. has been announced. Rensch, a vice president of the Los Angeles-based natural gas storage and transmission utility, joined the company in 1953 after serving as assistant counsel for its affiliate, Southern Counties Gas Co.

New Plant in Operation at Fullerton

FULLERTON—Full operation has begun in the new 126,000-square-foot plant of Kaynar Mfg. Co., Inc., producers of Kaylock lightweight metal fasteners, as the company completed its move of all personnel and equipment from its Pico Rivera plant.

The new facility, located on a 15-acre site at the intersection of Kimberly Ave. and S. State College Boulevard (formerly Cypress Avenue), contains Kaynar's entire manufacturing operation, as well as general sales, research and development, engineering and administrative offices.

FINISHING TOUCHES are still being added to the exterior of the plant, with landscaping scheduled to be completed shortly.

Architect was Walter Chase, AIA, of Pasadena, with Millie and Severson of Long Beach as the general contractor. Arrow Electric of Anaheim was the electrical contractor.

Utility mains and other exterior facilities have been placed to allow for future plant expansion to the north.

Founded in 1943, Kaynar is a major producer of self-locking plastics for the aerospace industry. In addition to the Fullerton facilities, warehouse and distribution centers are located in Seattle, Atlanta, New York and Wichita, as well as Montreal, London, Paris and The Hague.

NLB Realty Club Will Hear Mould

IN ARTESIA WONDERLAND

Among the many attractions of recently opened Artesia Wonderland in Artesia are the favorable financing terms and low full prices, officials said. Home shoppers may purchase on "terms for everyone" that offer a total "move-in" of $295, full prices are from $11,750 to $12,950 and monthly payments from $78 include principal and interest.

Wonderland Price, Terms Draw

Recently opened Artesia Wonderland in the close-in city of Artesia, presents a selection of diversely styled dwellings that boast of unusually low full prices and terms, officials announced. "Terms for everyone," the spokesman said, offer a complete "move-in" of $295, full prices are from just $11,750 to $12,950, and monthly payments from $78 include principal and interest.

Artesia Wonderland homes are designed with family-flexible plans featuring convertible dens, dining areas adjoining the well planned kitchens, lots of closet and storage space, and big bedrooms with sliding door wardrobes.

HARDWOOD PARQUET "stretchedwood" floors, sturdy vinyl floor coverings in kitchens and baths, kitchens with handsome tile countertops, range hood with exhaust fan and light and sink-installed disposers are among the many appealing features.

Located just north of Artesia Blvd., Artesia Wonderland has ready access to the Santa Ana Freeway, which in turn offers convenient access to many other parts of the Southland.

Model homes are reached from Long Beach by taking Seventh Street east to Los Alamitos Boulevard, then north on Los Alamitos (which becomes Norwalk Blvd.) and continue to 166th Street and turn left.

New Plaster 'Thincoat' Acclaimed

A new plastering material, described by building codes as "thincoat" plastering, has improved the performance of walls and ceilings of the "nailed-on" variety by a substantial margin, announce researchers for the Southern California Plastering Institute, Inc.

Thincoat is said to be an ultra-high-strength gypsum material applied to thickness of as little as one-eighth of an inch over ordinary 4 ft. x 8 ft. gypsum lath materials. Clay Johnston, president of the institute, said that it has proved to be a decisive answer to the problems of many builders seeking lowest possible construction costs through the use of other materials that are generally regarded as substitutes for genuine lath and plaster.

Johnston said that thincoat provides "a solid, smooth hard and complete covering for any wall and can be painted or otherwise decorated in the same manner as conventional plaster."

Gas Company Veteran Retires

Charles W. Schell, 3755 Lemon Ave., has retired after nearly 34 years of employment with the Southern California Gas Co.

Schell began work with the utility in 1923 in Santa Fe Springs and retired while working in the firm's Special Services Department at Compton.

A native of Anderson, Ind., Schell received his education there and came to California in 1913. He is a Navy veteran of World War I, having served on the destroyer U.S.S. Lea, conveying troop ships across the Atlantic.

Master Bedroom Suite Forms Wing of Big Home

"Our '700 Plan' featuring a master bedroom is proving vice-president of the McCarthy Co., co-builders with room, dining room, and Hills," said Jim McCarthy, community in Fullerton.

In this unusual three-bedroom plan, the master bedroom suite takes up a full wing of the home, has a huge walk-in closet, a private bath with double marble pullmans, and sliding glass doors to the patio and pool area. The children's quarters in this plan have been put on the opposite side of the house.

HIGHLIGHTING the interior of the "700 Plan" is the floor-to-ceiling Palos Verdes stone fireplace which joins the magnificent slate entry to the living-dining oversized two-car garage, the room area. Like other Troy Hills homes, this model includes custom wood paneling in the living area, an oversized stall shower in the master bath, marble top pullmans in the master bath, and complete ducts for air conditioning. The buyer may choose optional Fullerton features as a refrigerated air conditioning unit, Waste King left to model homes.

BANKING GROUP MEETS

Helping plan membership drive for Harbor District Chapter of American Institute of Banking are (from left) Patrick J. O'Connor, chapter's second vice president; Bernadin Kepka, first vice president; Joseph Schmiedding, national executive councilman of AIB; and Thomas W. Clements, chapter president.

Bank Class Enrollment Drive Begun

Harbor District Chapter of the American Institute of Banking, educational section of the American Bankers Association, has kicked off its fall membership and enrollment campaign.

Consuls from 105 banks and branch offices attended a dinner recently at the Tenderloin Restaurant here. Patrick J. O'Connor, second vice president of the chapter, was in charge of the meeting. He is chairman of the membership committee.

This year, the chapter expects 1,000 bankers will be enrolled in local chapter classes, encompassing basic as well as specialized banking subjects. Classes will begin Sept. 12 at various area locations.

Walker-Lee Shows Many Home Sales

"Vacation weather still is with us but the serious business of finding another home before school starts occupies the minds of many Southland home seekers whose job locations changed this summer."

So declared DeWitt R. Lee, president of Walker & Lee, Inc., who reports 130 resale and new house sales for the week of Aug. 13-19 in Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura counties.

Total dollar volume of sales was $2,415,000 for the week and Lee credited the present relocation and expansion trend of large industrial firms as a prime reason for much of the continued high real estate sales volume.

OF THE dollar volume, Walker & Lee's Lakewood-Long Beach offices accounted for $427,500 with 23 resale homes sold.

The executive said that while many of the plants have yet to construct new facilities, families with school-age children are making their moves now to avoid school year changes that interrupt education.

"It's easier on the youngsters' grades and general morale to readjust at the beginning of a school term than in some later part of the school year," Lee said.

He also said Walker & Lee offices are remaining open until 10 p.m. for the rest of August and into September to accommodate late evening home shoppers.

Fieldcrest Homes in Ideal Location

Fieldcrest Homes offer the rare and desirable combination of rural charm and "downtown" living convenience. Fieldcrest Homes, east of the Newport Freeway on Meigs Avenue in the city of Orange, are so convenient to everything and in such an ideal location that more than two-thirds of them were sold before completion.

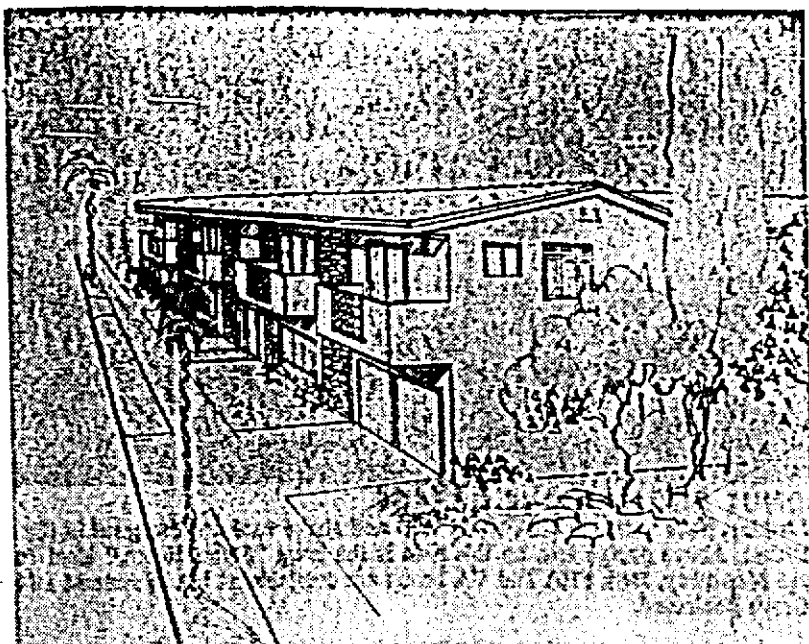

"There is over 1700 square feet of really luxurious living space in each of these homes," said tract sales manager Dick Murray of Farrow Realty Corp. "They are all on 80 ft. lots and all have three baths."

Popular Pool

PRICED FROM just $20,600 in an area of vastly more expensive homes. Fieldcrest Homes are backed up by rolling hills and feature such extras as wood shake and shingle roofs, tremendous fireplaces with gas log-lighters and "ash-aways," built-in range, oven, dishwasher, and disposal. They also have service porches plumbed for washer and dryer. They are architecturally perfect with warm glowing paneling and sliding glass doors leading to an oversize patio-terrace area. All have spacious family rooms and a choice of three or four bedrooms and an unusual amount of wardrobe space.

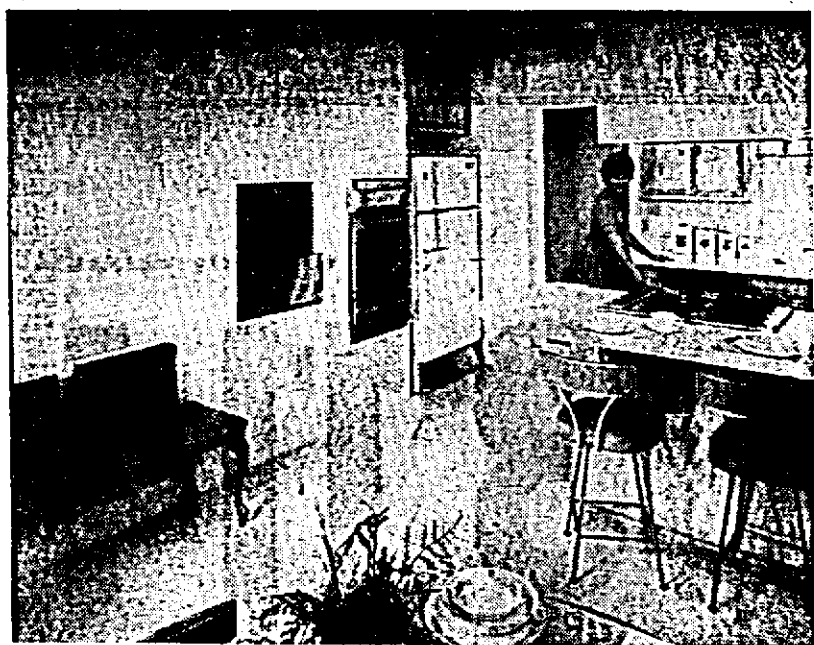

All improvements are in and paid for by the builder.

Golden Cedar own-your-own apartments at 840 Cedar Ave. are on public view today at grand opening. Edison Co. is serving the refreshments.

Homes in Huntington Village Now Occupied by Nearly 1,000

PRICED FROM $17,150

More homes have been sold in Huntington Village than in any other home development in Huntington Beach—937 homes, representing approximately $20,000,000. The big three and four-bedroom, two-bath, family room homes are priced from $395 down and from $17,150.

Almost 1,000 families, 937 to be precise, are now enjoying the comforts and conveniences of living in the planned community of Huntington Village.

"More homes have been sold in Huntington Village than in any other development in Huntington Beach," according to Larry Shields, co-developer, with Frank Doyle, of the fast-selling community.

"The total value of the homes has now reached the $20,000,000 stage," Shields continued, "and with Huntington Beach being the fast-growing city in California we feel that our homes will continue to prove to be the home buyer's 'best buy' in the city."

"The prestige location of Huntington Village: five minutes from Southern California's finest small boat harbours and beaches; across the street from the Meadowlark Country Club; within two miles of the proposed $78-million Douglas Research Plant, the second campus of Orange Coast college, and the Broadway-Hale Department Store shopping center; adjacent to the $2 million-plus Huntington Beach Marina; High School with grade schools, on full day sessions, within the community, has had a great deal to do with the public's acceptance of Huntington Village homes," Shields said.

"We're not just selling the sizzle of the steaks either," Shields continued. "The steak—our homes—have been designed and built to complement their unexcelled location. We have six new 'wife-saver' floor plans and twenty-one new exterior elevations to please the most demanding home buyer. Features included in the cost: RCA Whirlpool built-in range, oven and dishwasher, color-coordinated wall-to-wall carpeting in hallways, living room and master bedroom, central forced air heat."

From the Long Beach area: drive east on Seventh St. to Golden West St., right to Edinger, right to Springdale, then left a short distance to the furnished model homes open daily.

Large Bar Harbor Homes Offer Great Appeal to Home Buyers

WEEKLY PRIZE GIVEN

Mrs. Charles Bonges is presented a clock radio by Al Edelson, builder of Bar Harbor Homes in Costa Mesa, as door prize from drawing held last week at the model home sales office.

Fine Construction in Hunsaker Homes

Quality construction and rooms, two full baths, family high grade materials are room and large two-car garage among the benefits offered here, Huntington Beach Sunshine Homes, unit 2, offer a choice of several distinctive unit 2, on Golden West St. exterior elevations and convenient floor plans.

Thoughtful planning of these spacious homes stresses S. V. Hunsaker Jr., vice president of S. V. Hunsaker & Sons, builders and developers.

Immediate occupancy is plenty of roomy closets. The available after a down payment of $95 and easy financing terms are available, he said.

Offering the home buyer a choice of three and four bedrooms.

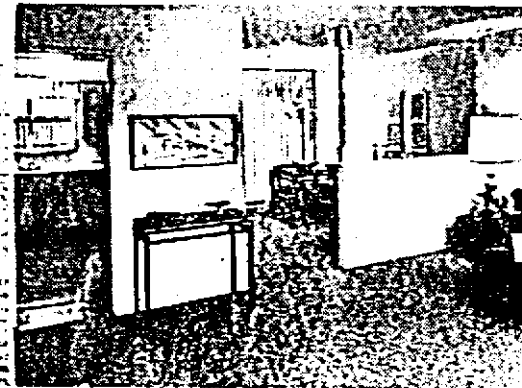

McFarland & Mattocks, sales agents for Bar Harbor Homes report that customer response to the many exciting innovations incorporated in the design and finish detail of the homes has pushed sales beyond their most optimistic estimates.

One of the most popular of such innovations is the separate children's play room with skylighted ceiling and easy to care for slate like floor. Other new features which have proven to be a delight to home buyers are reach-through linen storage, built-in clothes hampers, huge storage drawers, magazine racks, hidden towel dispensers, kitchen planning desks, and built in sliding pot and pan trays. These are not "optional extras," but are included in the realistic price of Bar Harbor Homes.

NOR ARE SUCH features included at the sacrifice of other custom quality details. The prospective home owner will find spacious, well laid out rooms, separate dining areas in addition to kitchen breakfast nooks, slate entry ways, the finest of custom quality fixtures with marble pullmans, indoor gardens and dramatic fireplaces.

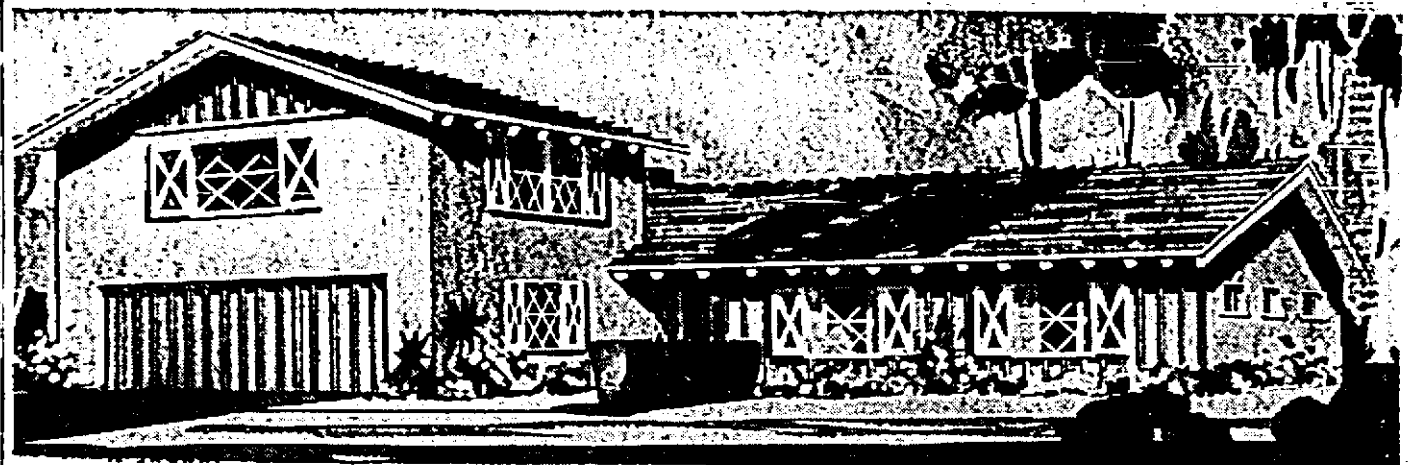

A choice of three livable floor plans is available in these four and five-bedroom, two-bath homes. Twelve exterior stylings have been cleverly utilized to give the development a luxury look. All this may be had at the realistic price of from $24,995 to $25,995. Terms are as low as $995 plus costs down, and special benefits are available to purchasers who elect to pay cash to the existing loans.

Furnished models are open daily from 9 to 9 and there is a door prize drawing each Sunday at 4 p.m. for everyone. Bar Harbor may be visited by taking the Santa Ana Freeway to Harbor Blvd. Turn south on Harbor Blvd. to the Showcase of furnished models. From Santa Ana, drive west to any main thoroughfare to Harbor Blvd. south on Harbor to Bar Harbor.

DAILY NEWSPAPERS

ARE NOW CARRYING MORE ADVERTISING TO MORE PEOPLE THAN EVER BEFORE

Daily newspaper circulation in the United States has now reached 60,283,114*—this is the highest figure in the history of our country. The combined newspaper circulation of the U. S. and Canada has also climbed to a new record—64,397,118.*

Steady vigorous growth such as this can come from only one thing: ever-increasing public and advertiser recognition of the newspaper's pre-eminence as a medium of communication. That's why advertisers also are investing more money in newspapers than ever before—$3,702,800,000 in 1960.

It is particularly important to advertisers—both national and local—that people are reading almost a million and a half more newspapers than a year ago, more than ever before. It means that advertisers' messages now have an even greater opportunity to be seen, absorbed, and acted upon.

More readers mean more prospects reached, more customers sold, more value for the advertising dollar. For a rising sales curve, use the daily newspaper to carry your advertising to the largest constant consumer audience in North America.

ATTRACTIVE, BIG ROOMS

Here is a view in the big living room of a Royal Cinderella Home with the dining room in the distance. The large homes are in Yorba Linda.

Luxury Built Into Royal Cinderella

"The custom luxury features incorporated in Royal Cinderella Homes never fail to amaze our buyers," reported Gordon Tripp, sales agent for the community just across from the Alta Vista golf course in Yorba Linda. "When they see the custom-designed Palos Verdes stone fireplaces, the dropped ceiling entry halls, the wall-to-wall carpeting, the furniture finished wood paneling, and the large rear yards with concrete block walls, they declare that these homes have a $40,000 value." Tripp continued, "and it's hard for them to believe our prices are in the $26,000 range." "Every feature and every detail receives personal attention from the builders, Shannon D. Custom Homes Give Buyers Wide Choice

SPLIT-LEVEL DESIGN

Glamorous split-level design, formal living room and cozy family room are featured in this view of a "Custom Home" in East Anaheim.

Many viewers of "Custom Homes" are families faced with either commuting long distances or finding a new home as a result of the electronic and industrial boom in Orange County, according to "Bud" Waldrop, sales manager for the new Mit-Mor development in East Anaheim. The majority of these home seekers have owned homes close to their place of employment, Waldrop reported, and now faced with relocation, desire a custom-built home containing every luxury, comfort and prestige element lacking in their old homes.

"INTEREST IN OUR homes runs high among these families," said Waldrop, "for we offer the advantages of a custom-built home at a savings."

"The buyer selects a style from the many plans offered, ranging from split-level through ranch styles or two story, three, four and five multiple-bath designs. Then comes the choice of carpeting, tile, wall paper, hardware, both interior and exterior colors, from our wide selection of custom materials."

The final choice allows the buyer to make any changes or additions desired. Maurice D. Mitchell and James L. Morris, builders of Mit-Mor "Custom Homes," have developed hundreds of Southern California homes. Both are Anaheim residents. "Custom Homes" are priced from $23,200.00, Waldrop reported and even without change are homes to be enjoyed for years. There are no two houses alike and only 31 distinctly different homes, each architecturally designed for its own pool-patio size lot, will be built.

To visit "Custom Homes," from the Santa Ana Freeway, take Lincoln East 3.4 miles to Sunkist and turn South on Sunkist to display homes between South and Wagner St.

Beverly Abrams, winner of the "Hometown Speech Contest" held recently, brought the birth of two sons to the Garden Grove community. She will further increase as the population demands. The unbelievable job that was done by the Garden Grove elementary and high school districts in keeping up with the influx of new residents is to be hailed. From a total of 13 schools in 1956 to a present day total of 42 in 1962.

Our shopping and professional centers have been developed with great speed. There are today in Garden Grove's industrial area, many TEXT of her talk follows: Mr. President, associates and guests, "It is with pleasure and pride that I stand before you, as my topic is 'Our Own City of Garden Grove.' I would like to dispense with any clear statistical facts, and speak to you of what is in my heart, what I feel about Garden Grove, and why I am here."

AS YOU KNOW, Garden Grove as a city, is only six years old. A sleepy hamlet of 3,750 people in 1950 grew to approximately 42,000 people, when we incorporated in 1956. We were born, we man, we treasure, and we learned to crawl, learned to stand on our own two feet, learned to talk.

Yes, believe it or not, with a present population of over one hundred thousand people, each and everyone of us can be heard, if we have something to say.

We have a well balanced city, composed of youth, in the next two or three working ages, and even for the comparatively new city, the Bellflower chapter, retired. We can, and do a service to all.

IN ADDITION to the parks we have, and the two marks in California.

OUR LOCATION is unexcelled! We are in the center of all activities, whether at the ocean, the mountains, the desert, or other vacation land show places. Our weather is very moderate. As for smog, we see it only when it has no other place to go—and California is a pretty big state!

Most important, and most gratifying, are the people of Garden Grove!

If you can, imagine a city like ours, expanding so quickly, still retaining its warmth and its friendliness, just as if we were still the sleepy hamlet of 3,750 people. Then you know why I am so proud of Garden Grove.

Homes are made of sticks and stones, and so are the stores and factories, but a city must have a heart, made up of people, to pump the blood and make it breathe.

PEOPLE, yes, ordinary people like you and I, make the heart pump, and the pulse quicken, and I believe that nowhere in our state, even in the entire country, are there so many people so close together, that in harmony are supplying the heart to pump the blood and make our city breathe life.

I speak to you today as a housewife, mother and business woman. A realtor in a city which was once a garden grove and now is a buying power of the Simha city of today with a future chain will be increased immensely, thus offering our to my home town, Garden Grove, Calif.

New Simha Store Opens

Simha's drapery stores have opened a new outlet in Long Beach at 528 Pine Ave.

M. E. Levy, manager of Simha's Alhambra store, said the 7,500 square foot air conditioned Long Beach store, houses the "largest and finest selection of curtains, draperies and home furnishings in California."

"With opening of the Long Beach store," he said, "the city which was once a garden grove and now is a buying power of the Simha city of today with a future chain will be increased immensely, thus offering our to my home town, Garden Grove, Calif."

hospitals, and the Kaiser Foundation may build another live-wire Chamber of Commerce. Master planning is the order of the day.

Simms Park is center of year-around recreation, including indoor activities. There's a large enclosed pool in Caughran Park. Another park, Flora Vista, is being town shopping more attractive.

Sites for light industry still are available but retailing is the big business here.

PRINCIPAL business district stretches many blocks along Bellflower Boulevard, but there are good concentrations on Lakewood, Artesia and Alondra boulevards. Shopping centers have sprung up in strategic spots.

Bellflower contracts with the county for police and fire protection. There is no city jail.

Sol Vista 1100 Series Homes Now Previewing in Santa Ana

NEWEST SOL VISTA OFFERING

Homes such as this will be unveiled when Sol Vista's 1100 Series of homes previews today in Santa Ana. The homes are priced from $16,950.

Robert Solomon, Secretary and Treasurer of the Alco-Pacific Construction Co., Inc., developers of Sol Vista Homes, announced the preview opening of the new Sol Vista 1100 Series Homes in Santa Ana. Newly decorated model homes and another sales office is now open on Sugar Ave. just west of Verano in Santa Ana. The all-new 1100 Series homes are priced from $16,950 with minimum FHA down payment. VA terms-no down payment (except costs and impounds) Cal-Vet and conventional financing is also available. Homes in this latest series are available in both the three and four-bedroom models and features usually found in more expensive residences. The fireplaces complement huge living rooms. Color coordinated electric built-in range and oven with hoods and light with electric fan are the focal point of beautifully appointed kitchens with loads of cupboard space.

SOL VISTA HOMES have thermostatically controlled forced air heating, huge wardrobe closets and many other luxury appointments far too numerous to mention. Sol Vista has an ideal location in the heart of the Santa Ana-Huntington Beach area. This district is attracting industry and commerce, and is near numerous large employment facilities in the electronics field, Ford Motor Co.'s Aeronautics development, North American Auto-netics plant, Collins Radio and the huge Beckman Instrument Co. are among these.

From Long Beach go out Seventh St. or Carson St. to Beach Blvd. (Hwy. 39) and turn south to Sugar Ave., then left to models. Model Homes and Sales Office for the Sol Vista luxury series homes are located on Hwy. 39 (Beach Blvd.) 3 miles south of Garden Grove Blvd.

IMMEDIATE OCCUPANCY

Homes in Lakewood East on Low Terms

Close-in convenience away from the congestion of a downtown area is offered at Lakewood East Sunshine Homes, a residential home development by S. V. Hunsaker & Sons. Nearby freeways and main highways bring this suburban residential community within a few minutes of major working and recreation areas, stated S. V. Hunsaker, Jr., vice-president. Shopping centers, churches and schools are nearby.

A selection of three-bedroom, two full bath, with family room and large two-car garage homes are still available for immediate occupancy and may be purchased with $195 down.

LAKEWOOD EAST Sunshine Homes offer many quality features including wall-to-wall carpet, forced-air heat, and metal sliding windows with screens. The ultra-modern kitchen is equipped with built-in range and oven with hood and exhaust fan, disposal and natural finish cabinets. Furnished model homes are open daily on Del Amo Blvd. just west of Pioneer Blvd.

Food Expenditure Climbs Again

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The average American will spend $398 for food this year, compared with $392 in 1961, according to government figures. The higher food bill will reflect more marketing services such as packaging and pre-cooking and slightly higher prices paid to farmers.

Safeway to Have 'Non-Food' Stores

Safeway Stores, Inc., has announced formation of a non-food division to operate a new type of store, first of which will open in early 1963.

In making the announcement at the food firm's Oakland headquarters, Robert A. Magowan, president and chairman of the board, also reported appointment of a veteran West Coast retailing executive to head the new division.

He is Glynn E. Tucker of Oakland, who rejoins Safeway as a vice president. Tucker, a native of Los Angeles, started his career in the grocery business in that city in 1923, beginning as a food clerk. Most recently he has been an executive with Payless Drug Co.

During 1963 Safeway expects to open five of these stores among its 23 operating divisions. Additional stores will be opened as suitable sites can be obtained.

Magowan said some of the stores will be in separate buildings adjacent to existing Safeway food stores.

Westmyer, Long Beach; James Goodwin, educational chairman of Bellflower; and Realtor Herbert Hawkins, Temple City.

Full Title to Land to Sherwood Buyers

One of the most favorable real estate appreciation factors in Orange County is cited as a major sales influence at Sherwood Country Club Estates, which had its highly successful grand opening recently near Upper Newport Bay, directly across from the Santa Ana Country Club.

Developer George D. Buccola pointed out that those large, luxurious two-story, four and five-bedroom homes are not sold on leaseholds, but buyers get title in their own names, thus insuring benefits from the "inevitable appreciation of property in this highly favored area."

PRICED FROM $32,500 to $33,700, on down payments from $1,625, these estate-size dwellings contain interior space ranging from 2,515 to 2,585 sq. ft. They are rising only a few minutes from the site of the University of California campus on the Irvine Ranch.

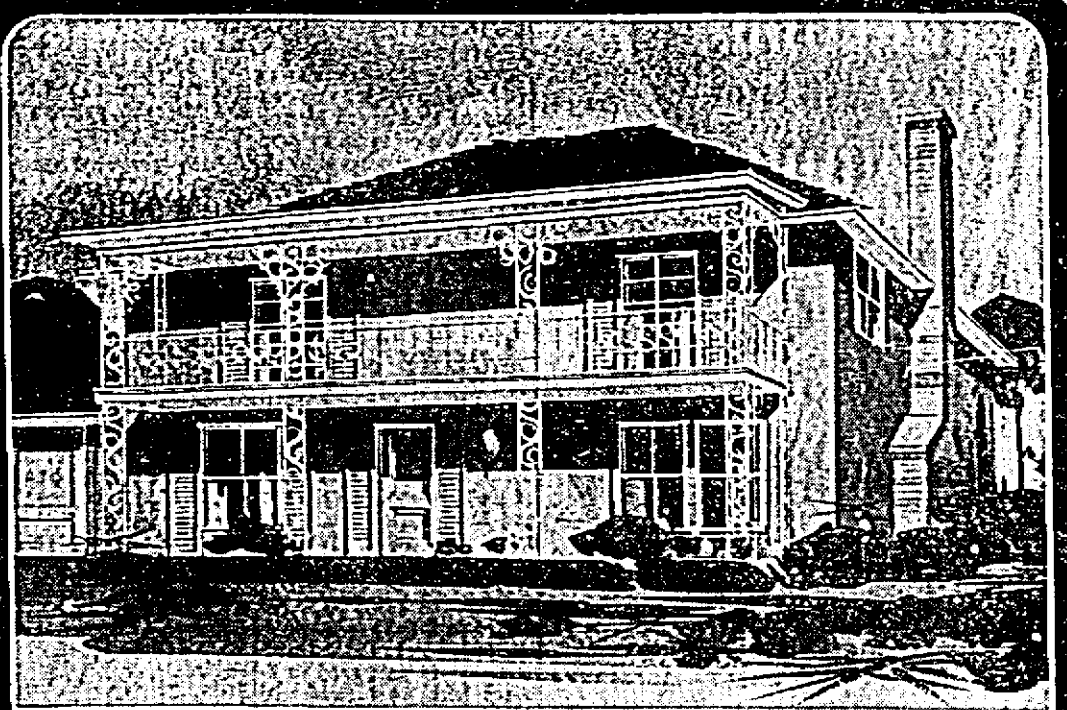

Outstanding luxury features include full-length balconies in some of the varied stylings, wall-to-wall carpeting, exceptionally large breakfast areas in kitchens, generous walk-in closets, true family rooms and well-planned traffic flow through-out each home. The owners' suites are separated from the other bedrooms.

In the Medallion Kitchens are all-electric ranges, ovens and automatic dishwashers, together with disposals.

Mr. Roy K. Cherry, builder, Hadley-Cherry, Inc., Los Angeles, California

"I BUILD ALL KINDS, BUT I LIVE IN A MEDALLION HOME"

"My thirty-five years as a builder have taught me—often the hard way—what true quality is in a home," says Mr. Cherry. "But I've never had any difficulty understanding why there's such a solid trend to electric living. I live in a Medallion Home, and believe me, you can't match the quality of its electric features, no matter how particular you are."

"Electric living provides, as a matter of course, so many benefits that you would ordinarily count as 'extra luxuries': cleanliness, coolness and easy maintenance." You can benefit from the experience of this long-time builder too. When you buy or build, in any price range, make sure it's a Medallion Home.

Only one new home in four earns this distinction. These are the qualifications:

1. A flameless electric kitchen—cool, clean, modern. It comes equipped with major electric appliances, including automatic flameless electric range and oven.
2. Full "Housepower" wiring—Only a home built to rigid Medallion Home standards has the overall electrical capacity necessary for truly modern living.

3. Abundant lighting—planned for comfort, convenience and beauty throughout the home.

A total electric Gold Medallion Home gives you all these benefits plus:

4. Flameless electric home and water heating.

Loans Top $29 Million

Residential real estate loans totaling $29,473,504 were made in Orange County during the first seven months of 1962 by Santa Ana Savings and Loan Association, Stewart S. McPherson, president, has announced.

This was an increase of 129.7% over the $12,632,767 loaned during the corresponding period last year, he said. These funds were used to finance both new residential construction and acquisition of existing properties.

The seven associations in the Great Western Financial Group, with which Santa Ana Savings is affiliated, made real estate loans totaling $263,577,830 throughout California during the first seven months of this year. This was 25.5% more than the $209,944,036 loaned during the same period a year ago.

Volunteer 'Wheels' on the Go for CVO

By MARY NETHI

"Where to?" asks S. M. Young (above) of a woman passenger. One of four drivers for the Community Volunteer Office, he puts wheels under those who need them: zips through traffic taking blind or handicapped to hospitals, clinics and offices of any of 83 CVO served agencies.

Now retired, Young shrugs off on-the-go job with flip. "Since today I'm paid for not working, I decided to work for no pay."

But, that's not the real reason he is among the volunteers here who lend a total of 100,000 hours to community service each year.

Questioned further, Young admits to wanting "to do something worthwhile," adding that to him the best way "is in giving someone else a boost."

And, that's what CVO is all about. A neighbor-to-neighbor program of community help, it turns time-on-the-hands to helping hands—utilizing everyone from school children to pensioners in doing so.

No one is ever turned away. Among the 867 persons who donate leisure hours every week, every profession, skill and talent imaginable is represented.

"As a clearing house for volunteer services, we've never failed to answer a call," says Clara Andrews, executive director.

Jobs vary from reading to the bedridden, to building cabinets, to teaching the cha cha cha.

HOW DOES CVO line-up its willing but unpaid helpers? A weekly newspaper release usually does the trick. Sometimes with results so overwhelming they are almost alarming.

For example, Mrs. Andrews recalls the time the need for coffee can to be used in a craft class was publicized.

"We were swamped," she says. "We could hardly get in the front door—but we didn't turn a single one down."

Result: with a few telephone calls, Mrs. Andrews located another group who could use all the piled-up cans. "Nothing was wasted and everyone who took part in the project was eager to help again," she adds.

Put into operation here by the Junior League in 1948, CVO is one of 126 such groups in the country. Now run by the Community Chest, it is headed by Mrs. Francis M. Lowry as president of the board of directors and saves taxpayers an estimated $100,000 annually—without displacing any paid workers.

THE IDEA of the civic let's-help-each-other organization originated from volunteer services performed during the frantic days of World War II.

Now in its 15th year, CVO is still on-the-go and its volunteers still as eagerly sought.

Among some of its unsung hard workers are such persons as Clarence Orrin Winter, who has donated his car as a fareless taxi since 1948. ("We've really depended on him," says Mrs. Andrews. "There is always a shortage of drivers.")

Helen Gass, retired Poly High gym teacher, has lent her experience to therapy work and Edwin E. Byhre, retired banker, now in his 70s, has saved the taxpayers untold funds by organizing and running bookkeeping departments for large agencies.

Each agrees that volunteer work benefits everyone—including the volunteer. "The work adds up to a feeling of being needed, the extra security of an expanding group of friends and a better knowledge of the city," says Mrs. Andrews.

PLUNGING LITERALLY into CVO volunteer work is college student John Howell. Here holding hand of John Coultrup, 6, he takes to pool for quick off-duty dip. Howell has given his vacation time to teaching blind youngsters at local Braille Camp how to swim. Many Long Beach high school and college students take part in CVO work during the summer. As volunteers, they have the opportunity for on-the-job training in offices and clinics.

OFFICE WORK'S not routine work when it's for CVO. Mrs. Martin Paquette, standing, and Mrs. Judge Anderson both have busy schedules at home but manage to squeeze in time for volunteer duty. They started at CVO as Junior Leaguers nine years ago, found jobs so satisfying that they've kept at them. Below, Korene Vaile Houser, 5 months, gets loving care from volunteers (left) Mrs. Louis Strohm and Mrs. Keith W. Perine, who help at well-baby clinic.

LOOKING PATRIOTICALLY pretty in red, white and blue ensemble, Mrs. Emily Terrill, Mrs. U. S. Savings Bonds, holds aloft key-to-city following presentation of certificate to district P.T.A. Wednesday. Award was given for local school children's outstanding savings stamp and bond program. Dr. Vernon Hinze and Mrs. Walter George, president Long Beach district P.T.A., admire key as Mrs. Terrill shows mementoes of travels made as representative of the U.S. Treasury Department.

SMALL SAVINGS EARN

Stamp of Approval

Long Beach is adding new laurels to its crown of fame.

Not only is it noted for its harbor, beaches and beauty contest, but now its children are acclaimed among the thriftiest in the nation.

"And, as such they are earning national recognition. President Kennedy's 'goodwill ambassador,' Emily Terrill of St. Helens, Ore., presented an award here Wednesday.

"As this year's 'Mrs. U.S. Savings Bonds,' Mrs. Terrill gave the certificate to Mrs. Walter George, president of the Long Beach District P.T.A. at a luncheon in the Long Beach Yacht Club.

The certificate recognizes local elementary and secondary schools for a combined total sales of $94,000 in savings stamps—the highest total stamp sales in the state.

"Through the excellent P.T.A. program here, children are learning the value of investing money wisely while, at the same time, supporting the government," said Mrs. Terrill.

"In these days of bankruptcy by 18-year-olds, the importance of school thrift programs can't be underestimated," she added.

"A BLUE-EYED blonde, Mrs. Terrill was chosen as Mrs. U.S. Savings Bonds by U.S. Treasury Department judges last December.

The decision was based on her qualifications as a homemaker, mother, civic worker and—wise budgeter.

Al Code, district manager, Southern California Edison Co., was host for the Yacht Club luncheon at which Mrs. Terrill officially recognized the Long Beach Council P.T.A. and the Long Beach Unified School District.

Following the luncheon, she presented an award to Mayor Edwin Wade, in recognition of the total Long Beach area sales of $4,604,678 in Savings Bonds for the year.

Her sister, Barbara Joan Lauer, was her only attendant, and wore pale pink organza. Harold Hotelling Jr. served as his brother's best man.

WILD WAVES SAY . . .

By Iola Masterson • I, P-T Women's Editor

OLD CHINESE saying: Before men laugh at neighbors' bad luck, they should examine own fortune cookies. . . . Which brings us to the fibbing Tom Rowan has been taking from Bill Jenney for breaking his leg last month in one of those simple it-couldn't-happen-but-it-did accidents in the process of getting out of his car.

Now it's Bill's turn to hobble in a cast and be object of Tom's ha ha's. He busted his leg something over a week ago by tripping over a rose bush in his yard. Nonetheless he kept a fishing date with Bill Cree last weekend taking to the sea—cast, crutches et al.

SPEAKING OF bones that go snap, this has been a season of "castitis" at Joyce and Bert Paul's home. First, Joyce broke her wrist in April and was in a cast for six weeks. In May it was daughter Patricia's turn for plaster to aid her broken arm. Now son "Skip" wears the family's coat of arms on his hand since he fractured a bone therein a week ago. Ah, Bert, take heed. . . .

AND THESE aren't the only ones who are breaking out all over. Beth Whipple is limping around in a cast, too. Hers was kind of a mother's industrial accident, though. She jumped off a wall while playing hide and seek with her children to account for her broken foot. All in the line of duty.

EXCITEMENT burns like neon over Las Vegas at Gilda and Bob Douglas' home right now. They'll take off Thursday for a five week tour of Europe. Trip is a 30th anniversary gift to each other.

First they'll visit Bob's brother and wife, Clayt and Bette Douglas, in England where he is Air Force stationed. Together they'll tour France and the Rhineland. After that Gilda and Bob will visit her childhood home in Italy and see what can be done about locating some distant relatives.

While they're gone, son Tom will remain home to keep the furnace stoked, sidewalks shoveled.

WHILE Joe Kesler and son, Bill, and Clyde Dunlop and son, Tom, are enjoying the majestic calm of a forest camping trip (in Calaveras big tree country in the Sierra Nevada) Betty Kesler and daughter, Jan, are matching wits with traffic and store clerks as they enter a new shop for Jan's needs as an entering freshman at U of Oklahoma.

THEIR CAR bristling with the equipment of pleasure, Pat and George Johnson returned from a quickie five day vacation at Del Monte Lodge on the Monterey peninsula. They both toted their bicycles for leisurely touring of the terrain and, of course, George took his golf gear and, of course, Pat took her artist's paraphernalia to putter at sketching while he puttered at putting.

EXCHANGING the clatter and clank of adding machines and cash registers (normally music to their ears) for the soft clinks of floating ice cubes Friday were members of the Sales and Marketing Executives Club. It was occasion of their annual summer dinner dance as they were entertained at Long Beach Yacht Club.

Preceding the dinner they gathered in various members' homes for get acquainted and get the night off to a good start cocktail parties. Hosts were Betty and Warren Mitchell, Louise and Paul Rossiter, Mae Lee and Frank Campbell and Rosemary and Bob Westmyer. "Big Jim" Duncan, with an assist from wife, Louise, was the wheeling and dealing chairman of the night.

IT'S A sturdy run by boat to San Diego and thence to Ensenada but a number of local cruisers made the long trek on a long last weekend to compete in the Balboa to San Diego and the San Diego to Ensenada predicted log races. For mariners that's a kind of endurance contest and guessing game.

Kelly Williams, with crewmate Bob Briar, toted home a beautiful second place trophy in his division as one of the Long Beach race entries. Others who splashed their way were Jane and Fred Woodard also "Spud" Martin with his passenger Frank Boyar.

"Spud" who had just put two new motors in his boat, had one conk out even before he got as far as Balboa. So that took care of his chances but, nevertheless, he limped on down the coast with plans to stay for fishing—two motors, one motor or rowboat.

WITH A devout curiosity, residents of Los Cerritos area keep watchful tab on the progress of a fantastic new home being built on Virginia Road. When it's finished, probably not until November, it will be the abode of Dixie and Bill Barnett and their children who will move here from Compton.

The place, designed by Cliff Mays, will not only be huge but is being built in authentic Mexican style not unlike an Aztec castle. Tile and other building materials not available here are being imported. I was told that Dixie has some very fine old Spanish furniture for the casa and is having some special pieces made in Mexico City.

TO THE hefty splashing of competitors and the roaring of parental rooting sections, our local kids performed most creditably in the recent State Jr. Olympic swim meet for Southern Cal. at Mayfair Park. Cheering their porpoises as they competed in a crowd of 3,000 swimmers were Marilyn and Larry Bonzer, Mary Jane and Bill Durnin and Marian and Montie Magree.

THEY'LL COME by jet . . . but they'll be dragging their feet. Patsy and Cathy Davis, who have been having time of their young lives during a summer-long students' tour of Europe, are due back home next Saturday to rejoin their eager to see them parents, Eleanor and John. And they return with just a soupcon of time to spare before duty calls. Patsy is scheduled to begin teaching (her first job) with the LA schools while Cathy heads for her sophomore year at USC.

WRAPPING UP the season, Nightingales had an end of summer (what summer?) party Saturday, an informal beach and barbecue at Patty and Ned Twining's ocean front place in Seal Beach. With a twinkle in her eye hostess Patty promised there'd be dancing around the pool . . . pool table, she explained.

TWENTY-TWO MILES across the sea Carol Slosson and the children are currently vacationing at their home away from home in Avalon. Mainland-bound by office chores, Clifford commutes whenever he can.

THE GOLF shoe is on the other foot as Evelyn and Don Sullivan take up the game. Evelyn is the "old pro" of the family—meaning she had a few lessons a few years ago. Don is just beginning. Still and all, they're having a ball trying to hit same over at Recreation's 9-hole course. FORE!

Boating Queen Bride in Chapel Ceremony

In the presence of 250 wedding guests, gathered together in Westminster's Chapel in the Wildwood, Linda Gail Center and Frank Joseph Schoepe recited their marriage vows in a 7 p.m. ceremony last Tuesday.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Center of Long Beach, wore a formal, full length gown of silk embroidered organza with bouffant tiered skirt.

Maid of honor was Shera Gazay and bridesmaids were Janice Dunham, Barbara Hodge and Bonnie Center, her sister. Sheryl Kent was flower girl.

A graduate of Poly High, the new Mrs. Schoepe is now a senior at Long Beach State where she is an education major. A Delta Zeta, she was the junior class senator on the college senate for 1961-62.

SHE WAS selected as Queen of the Pacific Coast Boat Show here one year and was among six finalists in the queen beauty contest for the National Boat Show in New York. In addition she served as Regatta Queen for the 1961 July 4 speed-boat races at Long Beach

Mrs. Frank J. Schoepe

Marine Stadium.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Schoepe of South Gate. Donald Wild was his best man and ushers were Bill Billingsley and Jim Rowley.

He is completing his education at LBSC following earlier attendance at University of Washington where he was a member of the Husky football squad.

Following a honeymoon in Carmel and San Francisco the newlyweds will reside in Long Beach.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Mom's Right in the Middle

DEAR ABBY: I have two daughters. One is 28, married and has two children. The other is 23 and single. The single one was employed by my son-in-law for two years. All this time they carried on a secret love affair. The older one found out about it and started divorce proceedings. I got upset and forbade my unmarried daughter to enter my home again. Now, the older one is being courted by her husband again and it looks like they are going back together. She says if I have anything to do with her sister she will never speak to me. I love them both, Abby. The older one blames her sister—not her husband—for what happened. What should I do?—BROKEN-HEARTED MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: Your older daughter is wrong to demand that you have nothing to do with your younger daughter. I can't blame her for feeling resentment toward her sister, but if she has it in her heart to forgive her husband, she should forgive her sister, too.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are going to celebrate our 10th wedding anniversary shortly. I have heard that some of our friends are getting together and giving us a surprise party. Should we be "surprised"?—NOT SURPRISED.

DEAR NUT: You can't "be" surprised—but you can ACT IT.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think I am a case for a psychiatrist? I keep a diary, but it really isn't much good because it is full of lies. It tells about dates I never had with boys I don't even know. I enjoy writing it, but I am beginning to wonder if I am crazy. I keep it well hidden so there is no danger of my mother or anyone else finding it. What makes a person do things like that? I am 15 and not very popular.—MIXED UP.

DEAR MIXED UP: If it will make you feel better, you have lots of company. Many people find escape from dull reality by creating a more exciting make-believe world. A certain amount of daydreaming is normal and healthy. Concentrate on developing your personality and becoming more social, and you'll enjoy reality more and dreams less.

Unload your problem on Abby. For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Bridge Sessions Slated

Bridge players in the Long Beach area are invited to attend duplicate bridge games in Morgan Hall beginning at 12:30 p.m. Mondays, Thursdays and Fridays, and at 8 p.m. on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

Directors of the games are Mrs. Richard Bixby, Mrs. Beverly McKelvy, Frederick Morrison and Earle E. Hayes.

Classes are taught by David Ashley, who at 20 is the youngest life master in the United States.

Both novices and experienced players are welcome, says Hayes, who points out that the organization offers excellent playing facilities, free parking, coffee and refreshments, prizes and master points.

AMONG the 500 registered players are Harold Guiver, Kelsey Petterson, Helen Portugal, Eric Paulsen and Mike Schuman, all well-known in local bridge circles.

Because of the elevator service in the building, it has been possible for the organization to welcome paraplegics from Veterans Administration Hospital to games.

Bidding Is Complicated

Hand 17 of the World Championship series belongs to East and West. The bidding when Italy held the East-West cards is shown in the box. America tried to jam the bidding and might well have stamped them into a seven contract if they could be stamped, but they settled for a double and two trick set of South's six-spade bid. Of course, if North and South had not gone to six, Italy would have played and made six diamonds.

When America held the East-West cards, diamonds were never bid. For some reason best known to himself, East chose to open one no-trump. South jumped to three spades and West made the fine bid of four spades.

WHATEVER reason East had for his no-trump opening must have caused him to continue with a bid of four no-trump. If he had made his logical bid of five diamonds, West would have raised him to six and the chances are that he would have been allowed to play

District Conclave Calendared Here

Mrs. Edward Burns, president of Los Cerritos District California Federation of Women's Clubs, has announced that Mrs. Frank Phares will serve as chairman of district convention to be held in Long Beach next April.

Another major district event scheduled to take place in Long Beach will be a fashion benefit on Oct. 31 at the Elks Clubhouse.

Cornthwaite Stars in Plays by L.B. Author

Two plays by Long Beach playwright Bernard Wilens will be given professional production at Coronet Theater, Los Angeles, beginning Tuesday.

Robert Cornthwaite

Both were premiered here earlier at Off-Broadway Theater.

"Aurelius" is the story of the Roman emperor and Stoic philosopher, Marcus Aurelius. "Reynard" is based on medieval legends about Reynard the Fox.

Robert Cornthwaite, former resident of Long Beach and now a Hollywood actor, will direct as well as star in both plays.

He is remembered locally for his performance in "The Egg" last winter at Magnolia Theater.

Casting Call at Off-Broadway

Tryouts for roles in Arthur Laurent's comedy, "Invitation to a March," will be held at 2:30 p.m. today in the Off-Broadway Theater, 211 Lime Ave.

Cast calls for three men (two between 20 and 25, and one middle-aged); four women (one about 20, three middle-aged) and a boy about 11.

California Artists in La Cienega Spotlight

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Young California artists play a major role in the La Cienega galleries through this month. At Gallery 333 (the street number) just where restaurant row turns into gallery and decorators' row, a superb collection of the works of artist-craftsmen is for sale at modest prices.

Among these is a length of white silk organza, screened in crisp white blossoms by Mary Jane Leland of the Long Beach State College art faculty. One of her colleagues there, Robert Trout, is represented by some beautifully-crafted pieces in wood. Among these is a handsome box with handles, lined with velvet to contain precious possessions.

AL PINE, a silversmith, has ingenious jewelry in abstract designs, some elegant hollowware and utensils. The gallery's director, Maurice Ascalon, offers some large pieces of hand-wrought silver, the most impressive a ceremonial Torah crown. Hebraic characters for "truth" and "justice" give a baroque character to the creation.

Esther Robles Gallery, 665 N. La Cienega, is showing 14 West Coast artists, all of considerable stature. Most impressive and fresh are two oils by Gregory Kondos, one entitled "Greece," the other "White Rock." Both are predominantly white with lovely colors suggesting verdant, floral landscape and deep blue sea.

"Autumn Picnic" pushes to the limit his exploration of this theme with rectangles of thick impasto in intense colors. Don Reich's "Contra Costa Delta" is thinly painted in grey, greens and blue. These two epitomize the wide range of interest and exploration of technique found in the works of artists of our area.

Recordings Aid Study, Discussions

Recordings of national interest have been added to the record section at the Main Library.

"Witness" contains dramatic high lights of various Congressional investigations.

"Portrait of Adlai Stevenson" presents the statesman in many incidents of his varied career. The medical work of Tom Dooley is told in "Portrait of a Splendid American."

"Behind the Headlines with Douglas Edwards" discusses Medicare, The Steel Crisis, The Space Age and The UN Bond Issue. This series of recordings is especially valuable to groups and for classroom discussions.

Phonograph records may be borrowed from the Main Library for a two week period. There is a rental fee.

Eyes Luce Play

NEW YORK (AP)—A drama written 20 years ago under a pen name by playwright Clare Boothe Luce is now being eyed as a Broadway prospect.

"Love Is a Verb" was originally tested at the Barter Theater in Abingdon, Va., with authorship ascribed to a Karl Weidenbach. Mrs. Luce subsequently acknowledged it as her work.

Richard Charlton, operator of the Sombrero Playhouse in Phoenix, Ariz., has taken a White Way option on the comedy, which Mrs. Luce has put through four revisions.

Major & Minor Notes PROTESTS MUSIC'S 'FALSE PROPHETS'

By RACHEL MORTON
L.P.T. Music Critic

It would seem that if a thing is repeated often enough, many people accept it as the truth. There are, alas, so few really discriminating thinkers in the world today.

Our high pressure advertising has much to do with this state of affairs. In politics a man is often ruined by a falsified story, oft-repeated.

But I am concerned today with music, and its false prophets. I am fed up with this rash of publicity all over the country celebrating the 80th birthday anniversary of Igor Stravinsky. Pages and photographs of the man have filled our magazines to a point of nausea. This year is also the 100th anniversary of Claude Debussy, a really great composer. Does anyone go frantic over that? Not only is the fact not mentioned, but his wonderful music is seldom played.

IGOR STRAVINSKY, in his early days in Russia under the tutelage of Rimsky-Korsakoff, wrote music of genuine creative genius such as "The Firebird," "Le Sacre du Printemps," "Petrouchka" and "Fireworks." After Stravinsky met Diaghileff in Paris and began composing ballet music for him, his style changed and it has been changing drastically ever since.

Richard Leonard writes of him in Music Lovers Encyclopedia:

"This small-sized, slight-figured Russian, with the full lips and slanting eyes of a Tartar is a cold little man with the calculating interest of an experimenter in music, an iconoclast and hater of all sentiment. His music reflects a cold, hard cynicism; a disdain of sentiment, a preoccupation with pure, steely mechanics, mixed with an occasional outburst of an almost frenzied despair — and abstruse cerebral exercises deliberately drained of emotional force."

THE LATE WORKS of Stravinsky as heard at the Ojai Music Festival last spring, were unendurable to ears sensitive to beauty in sound. And yet, all this hubbalooboo over his 80th birthday.

Another flagrant outrage of today is the current custom of using Biblical texts by pseudo composers for their own odious attempts. This is the way the Communists ridicule religion. What could be further from the truth? And yet the musical public gullibly swallows it and without remonstrance.

AND ONE FINAL protest. I dislike conductors of mediocrity who gain publicity by identifying themselves with the Beethoven series; quartets that play only Beethoven; improvisation fakes who fill the air with nothing on instruments; and singers who rely on gaining a reputation by singing the unsingable.

When will the musical elite rise up and stamp out these false prophets—these wolves in sheep's clothing? When will sanity be restored and Truth become again our priceless heritage?

Bowl to End Season

A concert version of "The Student Prince" Saturday night with Jaye Rubanoff conducting, and Symphonies Under the Stars programs Tuesday and Thursday nights, conducted by Alfred Wallenstein, will wind up the 41st season at Hollywood Bowl.

Wallenstein, former music director of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra, will introduce Agustin Anievas, piano soloist, Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. and will conduct the entire incidental music to "A Midsummer Night's Dream" Thursday night with Marie Gibson, soprano soloist.

Anievas, a native of New York, recently won the Dmitri Mitropoulos competition. For his Bowl debut he will play Chopin's "Concerto No. 1." For the Mendelssohn music, the Roger Wagner Choral women's chorus will join with the orchestra and soloist.

IN ADDITION to Rubanoff, conductor for Rombert's "Student Prince," the concert will have Laurel Hurley, soprano; Charles L. K. Davis, tenor; Igor Gorin, baritone; and the Roger Wagner Choral. Rubanoff has been on the staff of the Hollywood Bowl for eight years, and has served as artistic assistant for the past three seasons. He conducted many musical shows at the Greek Theatre a few years ago.

Music Award

Janice Allred of Lakewood received the Outstanding Girl Musician award at University of Redlands summer music clinic. She was one of six students to receive awards during the Grand Finale concert in the university's chapel. Each was granted a tuition scholarship to next year's music clinic.

Art Show at Fiesta Friday

By ELLIE EMERY
Art Editor

San Pedro Art Association will stage an art show on the docks of San Pedro Friday through Sunday in conjunction with the Fishermen's Fiesta.

Judging of the 250 entries will be done today at the association's gallery, 820 S. Beacon St., by artist Rex Brandt and Gerald Nordland, dean of Chouinard Art Institute.

Cash prizes will be awarded on a best-of-show basis, with a special prize for the outstanding painting relating to the fishing industry. Oils, watercolors, gouaches, prints and drawings will be exhibited; no crafts, mosaics or sculpture will be shown.

Three Long Beach State College advertising design students were winners in the 1962 Crown Zellerbach Paper Company's poster competition, "To Break the Language Barrier."

Anthony Mindiola was awarded a second prize of $30; Fred Branch won third prize of $25; and Jim Bright took honorable mention.

Awards were for the entire Southern California section of the contest.

Forty-five colleges took part in the total competition; 455 entries were judged.

TWO RARE, small volumes are on temporary display at Huntington Library and Art Gallery in San Marino.

They are the first edition of "Old Mother Hubbard and Her Dog" and the first American edition of "Cinderella."

Although both have been shown before, they are exhibited this time as the inspiration for two facsimiles, in the actual size of the originals, recently published by the library.

"Old Mother Hubbard" was written by a 36-year-old gentlewoman, Sarah Catherine Martin, and was first published June 1, 1805.

The library's copy of "Cinderella," printed in Philadelphia in 1800, is the only known American first edition.

BERT PROCTOR and Paul Lauritz will be on the roster of judges for the Catalina Island art exhibit Sept. 22 and 23.

Among activities at the show will be a demonstration by Dr. Marques E. Reitzel, well known contemporary artist.

A total of $1,000 will be awarded, with $150 going to a non-resident of Catalina for the best painting of the island. The grand prize is $400.

PASADENA Art Museum has announced an exhibition of "The Art of Los Angeles County" to be held in May, 1963.

Los Angeles County Museum of Art, which has always held an annual exhibition of artists of Los Angeles and vicinity, has temporarily discontinued the show because of the impending move of the museum to Hancock Park.

Explained Dr. Thomas W. Leavitt, director of the Pasadena museum: "Although our museum is relatively small and its facilities are limited, we are aware of the need of an exhibition of this type and are undertaking the project."

"Because we could not possibly handle the 2,000 or more works that might be submitted, we plan to ask artists to send slides of their work during the six months before the exhibit, and from these about 600 artists will be invited to submit to a final jurying late in February. The exhibition will contain 100 to 150 works of paintings, sculpture and drawings.

The show will replace the museum's annual San Gabriel Valley Artists Exhibition usually held in the fall. Prospectus for the new exhibit will be available in September and copies will be sent to local artists, galleries and schools.

AMERICAN craftsmen are invited to send entries to the "Fiber - Clay - Metal, U.S.A." show to be sponsored by the Saint Paul Gallery and School of Art Nov. 15 through Dec. 23.

Entries must be received not later than Oct. 15. There is an entry fee of $4. Further information may be obtained by writing to the gallery, 476 Summit Ave., Saint Paul 2, Minn.

This will be an open competition in the media of ceramics, metal, jewelry, weaving, decorated textiles, wood and enamels. Prizes and purchases will total $2,500; accepted pieces will go on tour.

Jurors will be Trudy Guernonprez, weaver, San Francisco; John Prip, metal-smith, Ducksbury, Mass.; and Warren Mackenzie, potter, Stillwater, Minn.

VACUUM CLEAN! The small brush attachment of your vacuum cleaner is ideal for caring for your family's wardrobe. Use it for cleaning out pockets and raising the nap on pile fabrics. The slotted device is fine for vacuuming upholstery and drapes. If mud is tracked on the carpet, be sure you let it dry thoroughly; then it vacuums up without a trace. Vacuuming has a big part in drycleaning too and you'd be amazed at the vacuums we use in finishing.

Tania: Simply Terrific

By MARY ELLIS
L. P. T. Fashion Editor

Miss International is really Miss Simplicity. In the eyes of the fashion world, that is.

She has that rare knack of taking neat simplicity out of the plain-Jane class, of turning it—quite deftly—into her own brand of natural elegance.

The past week, while being fitted for the wardrobe that was part of her loot for the IBC title, cinderella Australian beauty Tania Verstak spoke freely of her fashion philosophy.

Her comment: "I like sleeveless, very simple, understated clothes."

Black, white and navy blue are her favorite colors.

TANIA ACCENTS her lovely 34-23-35 dimensions with fine fabrics and simple lines, makes many of her own clothes, wears little jewelry.

Example: when clerks at Buffums' were accessorizing a $225 Cahill white strapless evening gown, she agreed to a crystal necklace ("with some misgivings") but declined the earrings.

"I'm just not the earring type," commented 21-year-old Tania.

Her special brand of glitter is built in: a flawless complexion with exotic, olive overtones... green eyes, flecked with yellow... and the brightest, busiest smile this side of a toothpaste ad.

Unwilling to take the glamor route, her brows are unarched, her coil simple. She does her own hair, polishes her own nails (with an almost-clear polish).

HER GREATEST PROBLEM (as if she could have one), she says, is her chestnut hair.

"When I first won the Miss Australia title nine months ago, I tried beauty shops," said she. "But my hair is so fine and they teased it so much, it started breaking off. So I went back to the do-it-yourself routine."

She recalls an incident when she was scheduled to start a football game in homeland Australia:

"I was wearing one of those cover-the-hair Italian berets. I threw the ball, off came the beret... and THERE I stood—Miss Australia in curlers!"

But this serious-minded college student, who left this weekend to continue her studies at Sydney University (she plans ultimately to do refugee work in Europe), takes such things in graceful stride.

As she does life.

Fit for a Queen...

ABOVE: A Cahill gown, size 8, had to be nipped in to fit her size 23 waist.

RIGHT: "It should be raised to about here," Tania told alteration lady during fitting of black-and-brown shadow plaid by Georgia Bullock. Dress lengths in Australia are same as here, said Tania.

FAR RIGHT: Shopping for clothes to take her 14-year-old sister, Tania attended teen-age fashion show at Buffums' tearoom, and here is pictured with model Jeannie Wengrovius, a student at St. Anthony's High School. "I'm going to wear this when I step off the plane in Australia," said Tania about malt-colored Kimberly knit she's wearing, one item in her IBC-won wardrobe.

UPPER RIGHT: "I love hats," chirped Tania, as she tried on new-style Garbo slouch hat by Dacheite and contemplated borrowed-from-the-boys derby by Emme.

WHY GROW OLD?

Summer Sun Is Hard on Hair--Perk It Up for Fall

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

The good old summer time, with its outdoor life and outdoor sports, is fine for the health, but it sometimes gives our hair a beating. You probably have been out in the sun a lot of the time, and the sun's rays are really hot during this season.

Also, almost daily wetting of your topknot (I have never found a cap which keeps the hair dry) is not especially good for your tresses. Salt water definitely is hard on the hair.

IN ADDITION to this sort of hair punishment, we usually "let down" in the summer and you may have missed the daily brushing of hair or scalp massage much more often than usual. It is a good bet that your hair needs some reconditioning before you have your fall permanent.

If you feel that it is dry, have a few hot oil treatments or give them to yourself. Simply part the hair progressively until you have covered your entire head. Dip cotton in warm olive oil and rub along each part. Then wrap your head in a towel which has been wrung out in hot water. Let the towel remain until it begins to cool and then heat it again. Do this several times. If your hair has dried out some this summer, have cream shampoos for a while even if you do not usually like them.

ONE OF the world's outstanding hair experts once told me that she believed fall sunshine is most beneficial to the hair, that it has special qualities which will improve the condition of the locks. Her advice is to sit outdoors and relax whenever possible, and let this brand of sunshine filter through your hair. The fall sun does not burn and dry out like the summer sun.

IF YOU would like to have my leaflet about hair care, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for "Your Crowning Glory." Send for leaflet No. 52, Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Prolong Life

Heavy flowers, such as dahlias and peonies, require more water to keep them fresh than smaller flowers. Submerging the entire arrangement, flowers and all, in water for few minutes each day helps to prolong beauty of the flowers. Do not submerge such flowers as iris, delphiniums, and orchids, for they waterspot, the Society of American Florists says.

She's Headed for a Crash Landing

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

He's married, Molly, but it doesn't matter, I could sing. I could dance, I could fly!

You see, I went to work in this new office and when they introduced me to the head of our department I flipped. I thought, here at long, long last, was the man of my dreams. My heart just reached right out and clung.

So then I began to wonder if he were married—no ring or anything. None of the girls said and I didn't feel like asking. A week went by and I began to think, uh-huh, he isn't attached.

Then she came. The most beautiful, delectable, desirable woman you have ever seen. No, it couldn't be, but it was. It was she—his wife, I mean.

So I gave up and gave in and spent a really dreadful week thinking my life was lost.

But she decided to seek something better somewhere and left him. Left him flat. He was so disconsolate and I was so rapturous. He finally noticed me.

Now he has promised a big surprise for our next weekend. I'm in love, I sing. I dance. I'm flying high. Shall I ask him what his plans for our future are? She won't divorce him, he says. —ORBITING

DEAR ORBITING:

You're going to overshoot by more than 200 miles and your space ship is going to disintegrate. Mark my words. I don't want to sound like the eternal pessimist, but honey, you're circling for a crash!

The man is married. She won't divorce him. What's left? No big surprise is worth it. Better to revamp your dream man and turn a stronger lamp on this one. He's playing little games and he's dealing you a losing hand.—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: I went out with a thief last night. Not only has he wrongfully taken my heart, but he has also taken my money.

I left the table to dance with this other guy and left my purse on my chair. That is the only time my purse was out of my sight, and when I checked for change last night I found the bill I borrowed from my girlfriend missing.

I have said nothing to this "friend," but I wonder if I shouldn't ask him what's with charging me for the evening?—DIANA

DEAR DIANA:

Sure, sure, sure. We are always so sure what happens when something is missing. We know exactly who did it and when. And we can be very, very wrong.

You may just find that bill placed in another purse. You may have pulled it out in the little girl's room. To accuse a person of stealing is about the worst insult possible.

Maybe the poor guy was broke. If he did take it, maybe he intends to return it. Very unwise of him, but men can get in spots.

Try him out again sometime if you wish. But before you charge him, be sure, sure, sure!—M.M.

NOTE TO FLY-BY-NIGHT: You may think it fun to kiss and run, but wings weren't meant for hornin' in.—M.M.

Of Cabbages and...

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
L. P. T. Food Editor

It seems only fitting and proper that, as our opening sentence of this commentary, we clip a page from the past and insert it in the present.

Today's Chef of the Week, W. E. McClendon, is one of America's most decorated airmen. His 17 citations include the Purple Heart, Presidential Citation, Distinguished Flying Cross and an Air Medal with two oak leaf clusters. His plane was shot down twice, and he lived to remember both descents.

McClendon was born on a cotton farm near Dallas, Tex. He had mastered that cotton growing business before coming to Long Beach in 1934. Then his vocation geles concern, of which he became sales manager. It was here that he met his wife, the youngest daughter of the late Mrs. Laura Scudder, the lady of the potato chip and peanut butter fame.

The life of a traveling man didn't appeal to him any more, so the McClendons established their own company, the first of which was McClendon's Finer Candies. It was located at 10th Street and Redondo Avenue. Soon, two tea rooms in Westwood Village were to follow. They made a specialty of chocolates and wedding cakes.

changed, and he joined a firm of stationers.

After two years in that position, he joined the Security First National Bank as bookkeeper. Now, 26 years later, he has progressed from the first floor of that building to the very top. He guides the destinies of the First California Co. Stocks and bonds, that is.

McClendon's pre-war record included two and one half years with Aircraft Accessories Corp. of Glendale. It was one of the many companies which had its beginning because of the then-precarious future. Starting with 14 employees, by the time McClendon went into the Air Corps they numbered 3,500.

Enlisting as a B-29 pilot, he flew 31 missions; principally over India, the Marianas and Tinian Island group. He was a member of the first B-29 squadron to bomb Japan. He left the service with the rank of lieutenant.

Returning to Long Beach, he affiliated with a Los An-

THEN ANOTHER bomb burst! Because of his B-29 bomber experience, he was recalled to the Air Corps to take part in the Korean fracas. He spent the next year ferrying planes to Yokota Air Base near Tokyo.

He and his family, which includes "Mrs. Mac" and daughter, Carol Dale, 15, are avid "seamen," and spend most summer weekends at Catalina Island, aboard their 37-foot express cruiser, the "Carol D." He's a member of the Southern California Tuna Club.

Come winter, McClendon finds time for another favorite sport—golfing. He has a full-fledged wood-working shop with the talent and equipment to use it with fine results.

Today, our chef is going all-out and giving you his recipe for cole slaw dressing. It's an old, old one he picked up and is so good that people have actually offered to buy it. Since this is the first and last printing, be sure to clip and keep it handy.

COLE SLAW

(Serves 6)

Select head of good, solid cabbage. Slice as fine as possible, and chill.

DRESSING

3 tbsp. granulated sugar
1 tsp. MALT vinegar (must be malt)
1/4 tsp. hot dry mustard
4 tbsp. cream
4 tbsp. mayonnaise

San Pedro's Fishermen's Fiesta, one of the three most photographed events in the country, will be held in the port community Aug. 31 to Sept. 1—the first time since 1957. The seagoing pageant will feature the traditional parade of more than 30 of the port's commercial fishing boats and an 800-year-old Mediterranean custom of blessing of the fleet, and is expected to attract a crowd of more than 350,000. The three-day fiesta, which this year has Gov. Edmund Brown as honorary skipper, will be headed by the 18-year-old daughter of a fisherman, Joanne Mosich, as Skipperette. Theme of this year's Fiesta is "Out of This World." More about the Fiesta on Page 7.

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on ANDREW, and ANDREWS. — M. T., Mrs. A. A., G. A., Long Beach.

M. T., A. A., G. A.: ANDREWS was first used as a surname in honor of St. Andrew who became the patron saint of Scotland in the 5th century. This name was revered by the Scotch. The clan name-forms were Andrew, Andrews, MacAndrew and Anderson. The family coat-of-arms has a golden St. Andrew's cross (an "X" shaped cross) on a red shield. There are also many English Andrews families.

DEAR MISS RULE: Could you analyze DOOLIN and DULIN? — M.A., M.M., Long Beach.

M.A., M.M.: DOOLIN and DULIN are from the Gaelic Irish "dubhlainn" meaning "dark complexioned stranger." Sons of Dubhlainn formed the clan O'Dubhlainn or O'Doolin. Early clan members include Felix O'Dubhlainn, Bishop of Ossory in the early 1200s. The clan coat of arms is a shield divided into eight triangles pointing towards the center, colored alternating black and silver. Over them is laid a black and silver ring.

DEAR MISS RULE: My German ancestor was named BATES. — Mrs. T. P., Garden Grove.

T. P.: BATES is usually English, but the German surname Betz was respelled Bates by some families. Betz is from the old German "Beretz" meaning "Little Bear." The bear was symbolic of power and bravery in medieval centuries. The Betz coat-of-arms from Nurnberg has a black lamb centered on a silver shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have information on FRIZZELL? — H. H., Long Beach.

H. H.: FRIZZELL originated in Germany. The source was an ancient baptismal name, Friede meaning "Free man." Friede evolved into the nickname Fritzell which was later shortened to Frizzell.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on CLAYTON. — M. A., L. D., Long Beach.

M. A., L. D.: CLAYTON began as "Claeg-tun," a medieval English town name. The root phrase meant "town built on clay soil." There are over a dozen English towns with this name, aptly titled because of sticky clay which once filled their streets in winter time. Ancestors include Robert de Clayton of Lancashire, 1273, and Henry de Clayton, 1292. The Clayton shield is silver, emblazoned with a black cross in the center.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please explain NICHOL, NICHOLS, NICHOLSON, NICKERSON, NICKELL, NICKELS. — M.P., F.V., F.N., Long Beach; C.B., East Los Angeles; H.N., Lakewood; Mrs. J.N., Anaheim; B.P., Huntington Beach.

NICHOLSON, NICHOLS and NICKERSON originated in medieval England and Scotland. NICKELL, NICKERSON and NICKELS are spelling variations of the same root name. These surnames all express "son of Nicholas." The source was the ancient Greek baptismal name Nikolaos meaning "victorious warrior." The Scotch Clan Nicholson of MacNicol were from Sutherland. Their coat of arms has three red eagle heads on a gold shield. The English Nichols shield has two ermine stripes below three gold suns on a blue background. The Welsh Nicholl shield is black, emblazoned with three silver spear heads. Early Massachusetts settlers include William Nichols, born in England in 1599; Anna Nickerson of Chatham, married in 1747, and Edmund Nicholson recorded in 1646.

In the footsteps of two stars of former years, lovely Heather Sears stars in "The Phantom of the Opera."

The 'Phantom' Returns

AGAINST the dramatic background of Gaston Leroux's famous classic, "The Phantom of the Opera," the appealing beauty of British actress Heather Sears, above, stands out with gem-like sparkle. She is the third actress to star in the "Phantom," following in the footsteps of Mary Philbin who played the feminine lead to the noted Lon Chaney in the original screen version in 1930, and Susannah Foster, who played the lead 13 years later, cast opposite Claude Rains. The current picture is a Hammer Film Production starring Herbert Lom. Universal produced the first two versions and now releases the British adaptation of the screen thriller.

What's Your Hobby?

By John Ronson

ENJOYING more leisure time than ever before, Americans spent a record $450 million last year for hobbies and crafts. The hobby industry expects this to increase $25 million during 1962.

With a growing variety of hobbies priced from less than a dollar to several hundred dollars, Americans are having no difficulty joining the hobby-happy.

In the Southland as everywhere, doctors doff stethoscopes and put on engineers caps to manage model railroad empires. Railroad engineers exchange their overalls for artists' smocks for an evening before their easels. Business executives unwind in their off-hours constructing miniature antique automobiles and millions of housewives find pleasure and relaxation making ash trays and table tops of mosaic tile.

FOR CHILDREN, the hobbies of today are often the careers of tomorrow. That youngster flying his model plane in an open field may be the first man to set foot on the moon.

According to the Hobby Industry Association of America, model plane building and flying is a top national favorite as a hobby-sport.

"Why do airplanes fly?" or "What's a retro-rocket?" no longer need be embarrassing questions to parents. A trip to the hobby shop, a few fascinating hours spent by father and son constructing a miniature jet or space capsule, and the questions are answered.

Summertime means model airplane time complete with national competitions and big prizes to the fastest climber, highest soarer and the most beautiful. New trends in this hobby field include plastic ready-to-fly models and improved balsa model kits. Be prepared to see the skies full of them this summer.

A BIG INDOOR trend is to electric road and race car sets. Miniatures of popular racing models whiz around table-top tracks as families wave checkered flags and cheer on their favorites.

Millions of American women are finding ways of putting their artistic abilities to use and beautifying their homes at the same time with mosaic tile kits and paint-by-number sets. Guests are surprised to learn the beautiful landscape on the wall is "just something you did one rainy afternoon," or the striking tile coffee table top was made with your own hands.

Interest has heightened also in "old fashioned" railroads, boats and automobiles. Many a nostalgic memory has been stirred working on a miniature Iron Horse or Model-T.

Seaworthy model ships are bringing double-barreled fun to their builders: Fun in the building and fun in the sail-

San Pedro's men of the sea revive their big pageant, the

Fishermen's Fiesta

By Mary Neiswender

SAN PEDRO'S men of the sea—hard-bitten, wind-worn fishermen—will bring back the pageantry of the old world this week as they revive their annual seagoing pageant—the Fishermen's Fiesta.

The spectacle, dormant for the past four years, has a sporadic history—as moody as the sea or the men who sail it.

But since its beginnings in 1921 it has brought hundreds of thousands of spectators to Los Angeles Harbor and has become the third most photographed event in the nation.

In 1921, San Pedro's immigrant fishers paraded their small boats to Catalina Island—no one knows why.

IN THE 1930s they threw another parade-type party celebrating a bountiful season.

In 1945 they had reason to celebrate—their boats and their boys came back from the war.

The war-end Fiesta was a whopper and included a parachutist—leaping from a plane carrying a 40-pound tuna for then-Mayor Fletcher Bowron to start the show.

The parachutist got tangled in telephone wires, and no one knows what happened to the tuna, but the potentials of the Fiesta were too great to die.

THREE YEARS later the Fiesta took hold and for 11 successive years the event grew. The 800-year-old Mediterranean religious custom of the blessing of the fleet carried on from the first Fiesta-season. One year it was Eugene Cardinal Tisserant of Rome who came to give the blessing; other years it has been Los Angeles' James Francis Cardinal McIntyre.

Chief Justice Earl Warren, then governor, was honorary chairman one year; Richard Nixon attended in a similar capacity.

(This year, Gov. Edmund Brown will be honorary skipper. Beautiful Joanne Mosich has been chosen "Skipperette.")

But despite the dignitaries and the crowd—which this year is expected to reach 300,000—the fishermen and their boats will be highlighted.

Some 30 boats are scheduled to parade—smothered in papier-mache blossoms—vying for prizes in an "Out of This World" theme. The boats, carrying family and friends of the fishermen, will parade before television cameras on the final day of the three-day Fiesta, Aug. 30-Sept. 31.

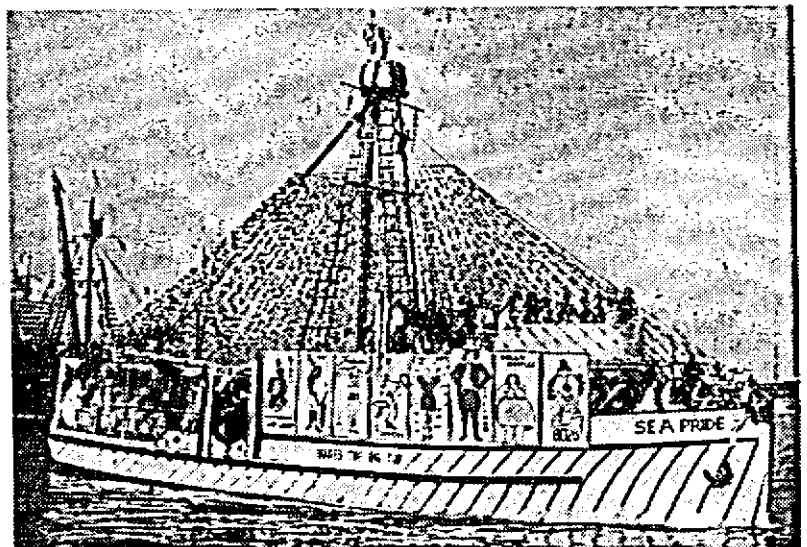

THE BOAT owners, who sneak into hidden coves along the coastline to decorate their little vessels, will be competing for plaques, trophies and cash.

But, admittedly, that's not the main reason for the Fiesta.

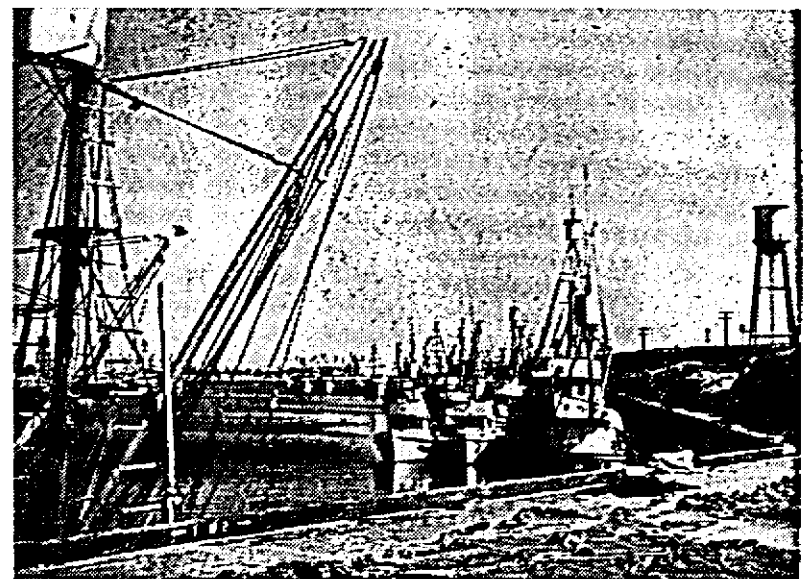

"We've had a pretty good season," says one prominent fisherman. "I think it's time we had a party."

Adapted from ancient Mediterranean rites, blessing of the fleet is part of Fishermen's Fiesta. Above, Statue of Virgin Mary is borne to dockside.

Fishing boat "Sea Pride" sailed off with top honors in "Under the Big Top" theme in a past fiesta parade. Boats are decorated under cloak of secrecy.

Some of port's 165 fishing boats rest at San Pedro's fishermen's wharf, awaiting fall Fiesta in four years. Some 30 of them entered in the contest.

No event is complete without its "queen," in this case, Skipperette Joanne Mosich, regent of Fiesta.

California Weather: Usually It's Unusual

By Aubrey B. Haines

WHEN recently the temperature at Santa Monica stood at 60 while in the San Fernando Valley it was 110, it demonstrated that California has more varied climates than any other geographical area of the same size in the world.

Indeed, California temperatures have ranged as much as 170 degrees apart! The highest temperature registered in the Death Valley was 134 degrees; the lowest was 36 degrees below zero at Bodie. An old mining camp which Mark Twain wrote about, Bodie is less than 200 miles northwest of Death Valley and so high in the mountains that in its rarefied air the miners could not get water hot enough to boil their beans.

In the matter of rainfall even as prosaic a thing as a thunderstorm has its romantic side. Southern California shows a variation from almost nothing, as at Bagdad on the Mojave Desert—where no rain fell for more than two years—to the summer resort of Squirrel Inn in the San Bernardino Mountains, where more than 16 inches of rain fell in one day. On this same mountain range more than an inch of rain was registered in a minute.

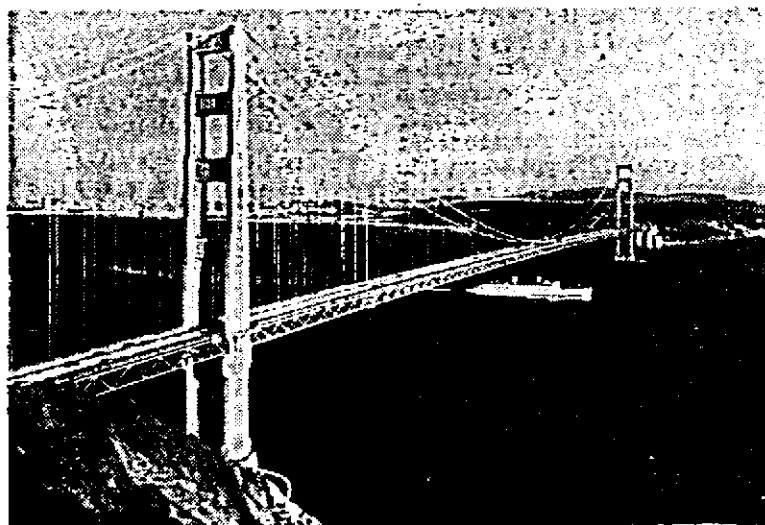

Farther south, near the Mexican border at Campo, 11½ inches of rain fell in an hour. Near the Oregon line the heaviest rain falls. The village of Monumental on the western slope of the Siskiyou Mountains near the coast received the greatest rainfall: 153.54 inches! Thirteen feet of water deposited from the heavens fell in a single year—1909.

The heaviest snowfalls occur in the Sierra Nevada Mountains. The deepest snow was measured at Tamarack in Alpine County, when 884 inches fell during the winter of 1907. In this same rugged territory the snow sometimes accumulates on the ground deep enough to cover completely a three-story building, chimney and all. Snow driest areas are only a few hundred miles apart.

California's contrasts include such scenes as the Imperial Valley sand dunes, found near Holtville. Sand absorbs and holds the summer heat.

Sea and bay combine to give San Francisco benefit of ocean breezes. This view of the Golden Gate Bridge is typical of spectacular bay vistas.

Northeastern California is noted for great variations in temperature and rainfall. Here falls the heaviest snow. Where the state touches the Nevada boundary, the summers are hot, and the weather partakes of the desert. The extensive Sacramento Valley is watered by heavy mountain snows and frequent summer thunderstorms. In this district is the nation's only active volcano: Mount Lassen.

Two reasons account for the great diversity in California's climate: the proximity of the even tempered Pacific to the windward and the ridge of high mountains forming the backbone of the state for nearly 1,000 miles. Only when one considers these physical conditions can he understand that within the confines of a single state may be found the hottest and one of the coldest spots in the United States, the heaviest downpours and the least rain, the heaviest snowfall and regions where snow never falls, and the greatest as well as the least moisture. So another has put it, "Whatever statement you may make about California climate, it is almost always true."

According to Marston Kimball, horticulturist with the University of California at Los Angeles, the Golden State has agricultural areas that get colder in winter than some parts of Alaska and other areas that get hotter in summer than portions of the Sahara Desert. Since 1952 Kimball has been studying California climates and making "plantelimate" maps of various areas.

"I've mapped most of the differing climates by counties and according to plant behavior," Kimball says. "The first of their kind in the United States, these 'plantelimate' maps will help realtors, chambers of commerce, industries, and ranchers by telling them what plants will grow where. So far I've plotted plant behavior on 32 county maps at one inch to the mile. I plan to produce charts of all 58 counties eventually. Combined, they will form a state map 80 feet long!"

The variety of California's climates, Kimball says, enables ranchers to produce top-quality crops somewhere in the state every month in the year. By making the most of the varying climates, California ranchers outproduce all others—to a total of about $3 billion annually.

banks 400 to 500 inches deep are frequent.

In the same mountain range—only a little over 100 miles farther south—is Ellery Lake, where the temperature drops to freezing and below every month of the year. This station, at an elevation of 9,600 feet, is east of Yosemite Valley. The average annual temperature is 36 degrees. Compare this with the annual average of 75 degrees at Death Valley.

As might be expected, the greatest air moisture is to be found at Eureka, where the relative humidity averages 77 per cent at noon for the year. The driest air is at Independence—26 per cent for the same hour and period. Pairing these stations meteorologically again, Eureka records sunshine 46 per cent of the time as compared with Independence, where the sun shines 83 per cent of the time.

On the northwest coast the temperatures are moderate and equable with northwesterly gales and fog. The interior valleys have warm summers, cool winters, and near the coast and the Oregon boundary the rains are the heaviest in the state. Frosts are frequent in the interior, and the growing season is relatively short. It is a region of marked climatic contrasts. The dampest region and some of the Temperatures that have soared up to 134 degrees F. have been recorded in Death Valley, yet the cool Pacific is not too far off.

What's So Phony About Roller Games?

Sunday, August 26, 1962

By Jerome Hall

CALL IT ROLLER DERBY. Call it roller games.

Call it phony. Call it fierce competition. Call it fake. Call it the best sport in the world.

It's boxin' and rasslin' and racin' all rolled into one.

No one could convince a roller derby fanatic it isn't the best. Where else, he will challenge, do you find men and women both competing in a rough-and-tumble sport?

Nowhere.

You think it's all phony? Don't tell that to Judy Sowinski. She just got out of the hospital. Still faces some time in traction. Fell during a mixup on the rink at Veterans Stadium, where the professional skaters are performing this summer.

If you criticize this skating game in the presence of one of its fans, he'll think you've got a roller loose, yourself. They're the most faithful band of sports followers anywhere.

THE CHIEFTAINS of roller games (they shudder at the mere mention of roller derby, a forerunner group which left these parts under threat of tar and feathers) are fighting the popular tendency to view the sport as something freakish.

In some parts of the country, the roller games people have won the battle. New York City is one. Herb Elk, their publicist, says he coaxed New York Daily News columnist Dick Young out to the games and Young became a fan. In his column, he said, "Now I know where all the people who used to go to Ebbets Field are going these days."

The roller game is popular all over the globe, most of all in Japan and Australia. And the largest crowd ever to see a roller game show was in Paris—25,000.

One of the questions most often asked Elk about the games is why the girls go into it. It doesn't look easy. They take some hard falls. Even if some of the fights are . . . how do you say it . . . arranged, you can't soften the fall.

"IT'S THE MONEY," says Elk. "The excitement is part of it, I guess, but mainly it's the money. They make about a hundred and fifty or seventy-five a week and that's a whale of a lot more than they could make waiting on tables in a restaurant or waiting on customers in a department store. That salary is in addition to all their expenses."

There's glamour to it, too. How many girls are there in professional sports? Count 'em. Not many. It's a quick way to get on television and gain a measure of fame. Not an easy way, but a quick way if a girl has any athletic ability at all.

The roller chieftains are always on the lookout for a pretty young candidate. They run a training school in Los Angeles where there is always a new crop learning the sport. Skating on the banked tracks is a lot different than skating on a flat surface. Some girls have trained for as long as a year without ever catching on. It helps if they're pretty. In fact, the pretty ones don't have to practice nearly as long.

THIS IS ONE sport where the men play a secondary role to the girls. In fact, most spectators have about the same interest in the men's competition as television viewers have in the station break or the commercials. "Bring on the girls!" they'll shout, even as some poor fellow is busting his britches to score a point or two.

When the roller games leave Long Beach after Labor Day, the skaters head up the Pacific Coast with one-night and one-week stops at towns and cities from here to Canada. Then, if plans work out, there'll be another foreign tour.

Maybe even Paris. And crowds of 25,000 shouting Frenchmen jammed into the Palais de Pared. When the girl skaters take to the track and begin swinging, those Frenchmen go mad. Ooo la la.

Individual feuds often are settled in match races in the roller games competition. This is the finish of one such match between Julie Patrick (right) and Shirley Hardman. The girls hold top interest in sport.

ROCKSCAPE POOLS—Only Anthony can offer beautifully designed rockscape pools of such high quality and low price. Ask an Anthony salesman about "Rockscape."

WE MUST KEEP OUR CREWS BUSY

Is now the best time to build that dream pool you've been planning? It is, indeed!—if you want the best possible pool at the lowest possible price!

The fast pace of pool building slows down in the fall. Smart pool buyers know that we must lower pool prices to keep our many crews and large production team busy.

Anthony has grown to be the world's largest pool building organization. We have eight large gunite cementing rigs, dozens of experienced crews to keep them rolling. We manufacture most of the pool accessories we use. We must keep this manufacturing facility producing heaters, filters, automatic pool cleaners, lights, boards, coping and many other items. Normally, the pool business drops off in the fall. This year we can't let it. We have the largest inventory in our history—hundreds of heaters, lights, filters—and more in process. We must keep this merchandise moving even if we have to take a loss. This is the year's greatest opportunity for you to build a pool and save.

NEW POOL HEATING IDEA

Swim during Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays in your heated Anthony pool. Now, extra large deluxe Anthony Pool Heaters at low, low prices. Manufactured and serviced by Anthony for greater dependability. Follow Anthony's new pool heating idea and your entire family can swim every weekend for as little as $6.00 a month for pool heating.

Step right in, the water's... WARM

SPECIAL

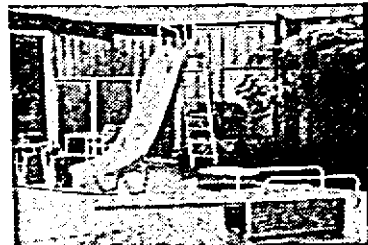

During this sale only, we will include with the Blue Lagoon pool, at no extra cost, one thermometer, a test kit, 16" nylon brush, hand skimmer and 16 foot pole.

An Acre of Happy Living

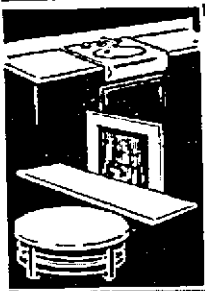

By Stella George

FROM every point of view, the Garden Grove home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Heydlauff, 9262 Royal Palms Blvd., is extraordinary. The garden, patio, pool, and play area resemble those of a deluxe resort hotel — even to size, since the property covers about an acre.

The gracious entry with a slate floor leads straight ahead to a family room, to the living room at the right, and to a hallway and bedrooms on the left. As is usually the case, the family room in the Heydlauff home is the most used room in the house, combining comfort with luxury in an exceptional manner.

In the richly designed and equipped home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Heydlauff, this family room is where much of the living is concentrated. Another view of the room below shows fireplace grouping and looks into the dinette.

Striking exterior, above, is the design of Mr. and Mrs. Heydlauff. Below, view of spacious grounds.

The floor is of marble, the known elegance of which speaks for itself. It also wears forever, and requires little upkeep. The entire wall at one end of the room is composed of built-ins: there are eight spacious cupboards and eight drawers in addition to open shelves. One large recessed unit reveals a complete bar with a pull-out shelf for company entertaining. Slanted shelves in the center of the unit provide a display rack for records and for original paintings done by Pamela, the talented daughter of the family.

THE CURVED, used-brick fireplace in one corner extends around one wall and has a special hearth for the TV. Facing this is a conversation grouping composed of a round table designed with eight separate pieces which can be used as individual TV tables, surrounded with low black leather chairs. Nearby is a double drop-leaf cherry table which, when extended, seats fourteen persons.

Facing the TV grouping and at the far end of the room is a 10-foot, avocado-and-turquoise colored sofa with matching chairs. The room views the pool and patio through sliding doors, ideal for Southern California's indoor-outdoor mode of living.

The living room, a step up from the family room, has shuttered windows that face the front of the home. Delightfully formal, yet inviting, it is softly carpeted in champagne, and furnishings are subtly elegant, among them orange velvet chairs, a beautiful organ, a cabinet which encases treasures from far-away countries, and, most important of all, life-size paintings of children decorating the wall. A curved couch completes the picture.

THE KITCHEN in this home is a chef's delight.

Chef-of-every-week, Don Heydlauff is especially proud of the salad corner with its own sink and an ample display of condiments decorating the shelves above. The salad corner is on a center island which also has plenty of room for the stove on the opposite side and working area-plus on all sides.

At one end of the kitchen, viewing the family room, the dinette is a portrait in blue. The set was imported from Manilla. Chairs are white wrought iron upholstered in royal blue; the table is glass topped and large enough to accommodate from six to eight people. The carefully selected wallpaper is a royal blue print with a slightly oriental motif.

The bathrooms are all luxuriously designed and decorated. The guest powder room is an example, with gold and crystal fixtures and grey roses for a wallpaper theme.

Fit for a princess describes the bedroom which belongs to Pamela, the aforementioned young artist in the family. The luxurious canopied bed, the built-ins along the wall, the feminine dressing table—are customized for the young occupant. A nearby bedroom is tailored in the same perfect taste.

THE MASTER bedroom has two corner wall-to-ceiling windows which face the patio and pool. A "closet" which adjoins the bedroom is actually a full room with fifteen wide, spacious, fitted closets within. As in the rest of the home, the woodwork is of alder, a luxury item among fine woods.

In the patio, pool, garden, and play area in the rear of the home are imported furniture units. Dining tables, chairs, chaises and end tables abound with adequate seating for dozens of guests. A golf putting green, a badminton court, and generous other play areas are available.

Tombstone's Historic Hill

By Grover Brinkman

WHY DO tourists go back time and again to Tombstone, Arizona's misnamed town nestled between the Dragoon and Huachuca Mountains? Is it because of its Boot Hill Graveyard; the O. K. Corral, the old Bird Cage Theater in which Jenny Lind sang—or the world's largest rosebush?

Maybe it's ghost riders in the sky, heading their footsteps to this town that was was once said to be "too tough to die." Whatever the magnetism, it grips everyone who stands on Tombstone's historic hill, with its 259 graves, cataloguing the infamous men (and women) interred here.

The West is dotted with boot-hill graveyards. Many are phony as a three dollar bill, merely lures for the tourist. But Boot Hill at Tombstone is far from phony.

This is the spot where Doc Holliday professed a wish he might be carried some day, boots and all. But Doc died in Cottonwood Springs, Colorado, of tuberculosis, and didn't get his wish.

are those of outlaws. Mrs. John P. Clum was the wife of the town's mayor. Clum also was a noted Indian agent.

But Tom and Frank McLowery, Billy Clanton, Red River Tom and Bronco Charlie were all outlaws. China Mary and Dutch Annie were two of the women who lived and died their scarlet lives here. But an old account in Tombstone archives says that "more than a thousand buggies" wended their way to Boot Hill, for Dutch Annie's funeral, so she must have had a good side, too.

Hop Lung, Tong Lee and Foo Kee, evidently were Orientals. In fact, most elab-

IMPROVED telescope and microscope kits, chemistry sets and built-it-yourself radio sets are capturing a large part of the hobby market. These educational and scientific kits not only fill leisure hours, but also help boost school grades and set courses toward rewarding careers.

Not only do hobbies make the hours alone more fruitful, but they bring families closer together and increase friendships.

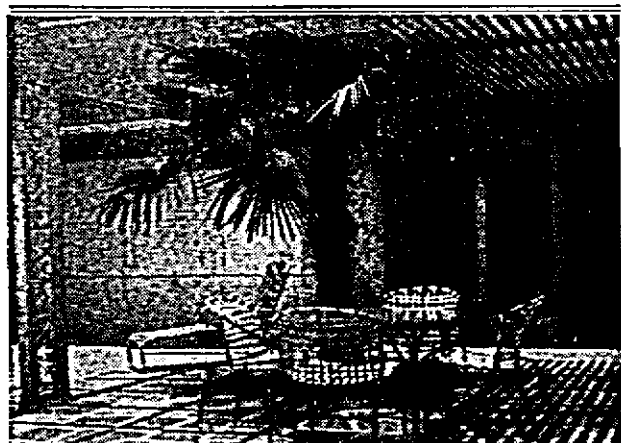

There is no longer any reason for anyone to have leisure time hang heavy when there are probably a dozen suitable hobby interests just waiting to be discovered.

To Grow Berries

Cane berries are much less of a tangle to grow than many people think.

If you have an old planting which has been trained on a trellis, simply cut back all the old canes which have already borne fruit and remove them from the trellis. Then loosely wind the new growth (which is probably flopping on the ground) around the trellis. These canes will bear next year's crop and then be removed in their own turn to make way for next year's growth.

Historic Boot Hill

ate grave on Boot Hill is that of Mrs. Ah Lum.

Johnnie Blair, a young cowboy, is buried there, too. Johnnie contracted smallpox while at the home of an old Mexican. No one volunteered for the job of bringing his body into town for burial, dreading the disease. But Johnnie had a cowboy friend who solved the problem. He lassoed Johnnie's boots through the window of the shack, pulled his body outside, then atop his horse dragged him feet first to his waiting grave.

THE REDSKINS helped stock Boot Hill, too. One marker for two men, Ben Scott and Al Bennett says, simply, "Ambushed by Apaches."

George Johnson's epitaph is touching: he was hanged by mistake. Three other markers bear mention: Red River Tom — shot by Ormsby, (Ormsby was a law officer.) Bronco Charlie, shot by Ormsby. And lastly, Ormsby shot.

Tombstone itself is a misnomer. Before a single shack was built here, an old prospector, Ed Schiefflin by name, stormed into a nearby Army post with news that he had made a terrific gold strike. At the time Geronimo was on the warpath. He told the commandant that as soon as he could stock up, he was going back to find his fortune. The officer reprimanded him with: "You'll go back into Geronimo's hills and find your tombstone."

But Schiefflin was lucky. He found his fortune, and the men who followed him soon set up the rudiments of a town. Perhaps Schiefflin remembered the officer's reprimand as the place became known as Tombstone.

GRADE CARD

Beacon of Learning

By Harry Karns
Education Research Associates

"CURIOSITY killed the cat."
"Ask a silly question, you'll get a silly answer."
"Ask me no questions, and I'll tell you no lies."
"Children should be seen and not heard."

Although this is the 20th century, and supposedly the age of enlightenment, adults are still using these sayings to hush up the curious child who tries to get answers in the most direct and logical way—by asking questions.

When you squelch a child's curiosity, you rob him of the light that leads to learning.

"Knowing how to learn is the ability to ask the right questions at the right time," says Winfred L. Godwin of the Southern Regional Education Board.

But obviously a child will not ask the right questions at the right time if he is forbidden to ask questions at all.

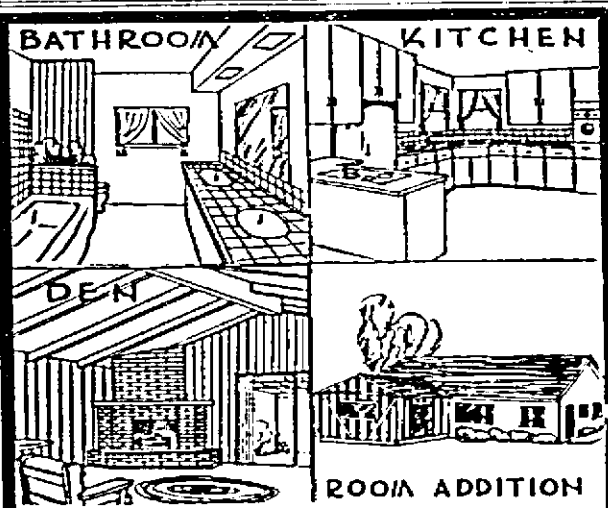

The theory that a child learns by keeping his ears open and his mouth shut prevails not only in many families but also, unfortunately, in some classrooms.

LINCOLN STEFFENS, the great journalist and writer, was disturbed by it years ago.

"It seemed to me," he wrote in his famous Autobiography, "as I thought and talked it over with others, that curiosity was the beginning and the end of education and that if one could arouse that in the minds of . . . students, they might reverse their relations with their teachers. The students would be asking questions, not the professors; the students would be learning instead of the teacher teaching."

Answering a child's endless questions is, of course, time-consuming and even wearing on the nerves—especially if the adult does not know the answer. But the adult who takes the time to listen, who controls his feelings of impatience, and who helps find the answer when he doesn't know it himself, will enjoy a reward unrivaled. It comes with the knowledge that he has helped a human mind achieve its best.

(If you wish assistance in helping your child to do good work in school, mail questions and requests to Harry Karns, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12. Letters cannot be answered individually, but some will be answered in this "Grade Card" column.)

Needles Now 'On the Rocks'

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical Science Writer

HERE'S GOOD NEWS for kids: Shots on the rocks, as adults have long known, can be painless.

Seriously, if ice is held on the skin for a minute or so before an injection, it deadens the pain of the needle.

So says Dr. Robert W. Virtue of the University of Colorado Medical Center in a report in Public Health Reports.

it would improve their eyesight.

At the time of examination both patients had cataracts.

The discoloration, a condition called hypercarotenemia, is harmless. The color disappears when the excess intake of carrot juice stops.

DOCTORS report two new types of splints:

1. An "air splint" for first-aid treatment of leg fractures. It consists of two layers of plastic sheeting sealed so that when inflated and laced to the leg it provides rigidity because of air pressure. It can be inflated by mouth.

2. A splint made from polyfoam, a plastic sponge material, glued to plywood. Known as S & H (Easy-Grip) Splints, they are easy to use, comfortable for the patient and adequate to handle injury to any part of the body, according to the Nebraska State Medical Journal.

HOW OFTEN do you swallow?

It depends, says a Harvard researcher.

Dr. Clement S. Lear recorded swallows in 15 subjects, using electronic gear. Findings:

Swallows while sleeping: 7 an hour.
While eating lunch: 43 in 10 minutes.

While sitting and reading: 34 in one hour.

While lying awake: 31 in an hour.

Dr. Lear told his findings to a meeting of the International Association for Dental Research. The report is in Modern Medicine.

PUNCH is versatile, meeting the requirements for a refresher on many occasions, and Honey Blossom Punch is a specialty that wins immediate approval. It is a delightful blend of sharp citrus, tangy apple cider and sweet, golden honey makes it as precious to the drinker as the blossom's nectar is to the honeybee.

With the punch, serve dainty circles of date and nut bread spread with Honey Cream Cheese, tempting bits of sandwiches to be enjoyed with every sip of punch.

As well as being a thirst-quencher, the punch offers quick energy that is valuable when you and the children want to enjoy active summer frolic. Honey is easily digested and turns to immediate energy. As a bonus you receive a generous portion of vitamin C from the citrus fruits and from the honey.

Honey Blossom Punch

- | | |
|-------|-------------------------------|
| 1 1/2 | cup fresh lemon juice |
| 1 1/2 | cups fresh orange juice |
| 1 1/2 | cups apple cider |
| 1/2 | cup honey |
| 1/2 | cup firmly packed brown sugar |
| 4 | cups ice water |
| | Lemon slices |

Combine all ingredients except lemon slices; stir until well blended. Chill. Serve in tall ice-filled glasses. Garnish with lemon slices. Makes approximately 2 quarts, 10 to 12 servings.

Honey Cream Cheese Sandwich Filling

Navy 'Dive' Saves Dog

By Eleanor Avery Price

EVERY so often the content of my mail is so interesting I pass it along word for word. From C. Lydon Lippincott, publicity chairman of Orange Empire Dog Club, comes this information approved by Navy doctors and veterinarians:

"A new method of treatment for tetanus discovered by Dr. Pascale, a Chicago medical doctor, was written up in a recent issue of Time magazine. It consisted of placing a man stricken with tetanus poisoning in a decompression chamber where oxygen was forced into the body by pressure in order to kill the bacteria. This same therapy has now been used on an 11-year-old boxer female dog. The dog had experienced the muscle spasms so familiar to this infectious disease.

"W. L. Harter, D.V.M. of Los Angeles, who had the dog as a patient, called C. L. Lippincott, D.V.M. (son of C. Lydon Lippincott) at his hospital nearby. Dr. Lippincott called the U.S. Navy at Long Beach explaining the problem. He asked permission to put the dog into the decompression chamber which is used by the Navy to treat divers with 'bends.' Permission was granted, and the two veterinarians rushed the dog to Long Beach Naval Shipyard.

ANNIE was placed in the chamber and 'lowered' to a pressure equal to 100 feet under water. She was accompanied by an experienced Navy diver. Before she made the 'dive', she was given relaxants to ease the painful contractions and sedated to calm her fears. The pressure increases the amount of oxygen absorbed into the body tissues. Tetanus bacteria can only live where there is no oxygen.

"THE PRESSURE treatment took four hours; then the dog was taken back to the hospital in L.A. The latest report is that Annie is doing nicely. It took two weeks of 'around the clock' medical care by Dr. Harter and his staff, Navy Shipyard command, veterinarians, and everyone involved with many prayers to bring about Annie's recovery. This is the first time, as far as can be learned, that this treatment has ever been used on an animal.

"The entire dog fancy salutes these two fine guardians of our pets and show dogs. Oh yes, the two veterinarians are members of Orange Empire Dog Club."

You Ask, We Answer

By Haslin

Q. Has the entire Alaskan coastline been surveyed?—J. S.

A. Yes. The final section of coastline survey was completed in 1953, by a field party of 80 officers and men from the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey. This survey closed the gap between Point Barrow and Demarcation Point on the Arctic Coast at the Alaska-Canadian boundary. Part of this work had to be done in winter when tractor-drawn sled trains could carry the men and supplies across the frozen tundra near the coast.

ly from the west at 40 to 50 miles an hour. Toward the 50-degree line they become the "howling fifties." These strong, steady winds are part of the belt of prevailing westerly winds which circle the earth, especially battering in these regions because they are not impeded by large land areas. The rough part of the westward passage from Europe to North American ports between 40 and 50 degrees north latitude has also been termed the "roaring forties."

Q. What nationality is Leon Uris, author of the book "Exodus"? Did he live in Israel before he wrote this book?—R. I.

A. Uris was born in Baltimore, Md., on August 3, 1924, son of William and Anna (Blumberg) Uris. The Uris family is of Polish ancestry. After reading about 300 books on Israel and the Middle East, and traveling in Europe. Uris went to Israel in March 1956. From headquarters near Tel Aviv he spent months traveling 12,000 miles inside Israel. He visited Arab and Jewish towns, frontier farms, and cooperative settlements, and in the course of these travels he interviewed about 1,200 persons.

Man of Controversy

By Vera Williams

Southland Book Editor

LEWIS L. STRAUSS' public career has been one of distinction, but risk, controversy, boldness have been its hallmarks. The former head of the Atomic Energy Commission tells in "MEN AND DECISIONS" (Doubleday, $6.95) inside stories of Hoover, whose secretary he was, and of the Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower administrations. Einstein, Fermi, Millikan, Teller are the most appealing in his real life cast of characters, for these are the scientists who had most to do with carving out the nuclear age. What should arouse the most discussion in this book is the chapter on the case of J. Robert Oppenheimer. Strauss was damned by some for the decision that denied Oppenheimer access to defense information vital to the nation's security, but, says Strauss of those who made the decision: "Their oath of office . . . left no choice." "It was not taken to mete out punishment" and was "agonizing to those who made it."

YOU READ that two more nations have been born in Africa — most recently Rwanda and Burundi. "What are these new African nations made of?" you wonder. They are neither "sugar and spice and everything nice" nor on the other hand are they "snakes and snails and puppy dogs'

The author of "The Forest People," a penetrating study of the Pygmies, Turnbull, in a series of biographies of individual Africans, shows the clash of old and new among the Africans. He studies, among others, a tribal chief and a mission school-educated youth, who is regarded by his tribe as too European and by the Europeans as too African for acceptance.

Hotel Space in Hawaii

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

JUST ABOUT everyone, it seems, is going to Hawaii this year. You might think that this would pose a problem of securing suitable hotel or motel accommodations in the Islands.

Or, following the law of supply and demand, face rising prices in these accommodations.

Not so, assures the Hawaii Visitors Bureau which does a fine job of keeping its fingers on the pulse of such things.

Thanks to Hawaii's recent phenomenal construction sprint, you can, on a few hours' notice, obtain hotel space of your choosing, says the Bureau. What's more, the prices start at only $5 and $6 for modest single rooms to $8 and $10 per night for more luxurious rooms, with brand new housekeeping units for around $12 per day double on Waikiki beach, including all modern conveniences, dishes and linens.

THE WAIKIKI area is what most first-time visitors shoot at. But, it is pointed out that since Waikiki beach—and all Hawaiian beaches—are open to everyone, you need not worry whether your hotel is on or off the beach. In fact, there's not a single hotel in Waikiki that's more than a 12-minute walk from choice public swimming and water sports areas.

Housekeeping units are becoming more and more popular at Waikiki because nearby supermarkets offer such exotic foods as fresh coconuts, mangoes and papayas, coffee grown at Kona, macademia nut pastries, mahimahi and poi, guava juice, provolone, passion fruit sherbet—even smoked octopus!

But it must not be overlooked that the resort islands of Maui, Kauai and Hawaii each is only a few minutes' flight from Honolulu International Airport. It's a fact that they are becoming more and more prominent in Hawaii's overall tourist scene.

CURRENTLY, the largest and most luxurious resort complex under construction is the 212-room Sheraton-Maui, Kaanapali beach on the west coast of Maui. The Sheraton-Maui will have 150 rooms ready for occupancy in late November.

On Kauai, northernmost of the Islands, 28 beach lanai units have just been completed at Kauai Surf. Fifty-five de luxe rooms also have been added to the Coco Palms Hotel.

South of Kauai, Oahu and Maui—on the big island of Hawaii—the resort area of Kailua-Kona is looking forward to an influx of convention groups with the recent completion of the Kona Convention Center whose big hall has a seating capacity of 800.

SPEAKING OF Waikiki, steady patrons of the Halekulani Hotel will be interested to know that Henry K. Rittmeister, long resident manager, now heads the hotel as general manager. He replaces Richard K. Kimball, who resigned to devote his interests to the Waiohai Hotel which he and his brother, George, opened as a counterpart of the Halekulani a few months ago at Poipu Beach, Kauai.

HONOLULU will be a port of call on six Christmas and New Year holiday cruises scheduled to the Orient by American President Lines.

These cruises, incidentally, will feature a 25 per cent reduction in round-trip fares with all four APL transpacific liners participating—the Presidents Roosevelt and Cleveland, two each; and the Presidents Wilson and Hoover, one each.

WEEKEND GADABOUTS: Don't fail to save a day for the Los Angeles County Fair—with many innovations—Sept. 14-30 Pomona.

Another big event coming up is the West Coast Surfboard championships Sept. 22-23 at Huntington Beach.

The largest sleeps 40 ($600 per day in the off season. The smallest sleeps 26—($500 a day in the off-season). This includes everything—food, crew, port fees. If you stay out more than 10 days, you can cut the rate.

"Can you give me information on a reliable shopping service in Hong Kong? I am interested in teak wood and camphor wood chests..."

There were a couple of American girls doing this in Hong Kong. But I haven't heard from them for some time. I bought a camphor wood-lined, teak chest from a store in Kowloon. You could write to them—I think they have a folder. Ngai Fat Co., No. 5 Carnarvon Road, Mirador Mansion, Kowloon, Hong Kong.

You'd have to pay duty on this (10½ per cent on furniture). Small chests about 2x3x3 ran $35, as I remember, and were handsomely carved. (Better write Commissioner of Customs, U. S. Treasury Dept. Washington, D.C. See if they do rate this as furniture. And what the duty is exactly.)

"We enjoy driving and will rent a car in Mexico City for 10 days. Do you recommend the drive from there to Acapulco?"

WELL, it's the standard tourist route—Cuernavaca, Taxco, Acapulco. You can shut off the engine and coast all the way down. It has the advantage that they are used to tourists. Plenty of hotels and American food. I think it's good for the first time in Mexico. But I am not high on this route.

A pretty, less tourist drive: Mexico City to Morelia, one short day's drive.

A half day over to Patzcuaro. Nice with a beautiful plaza shaded by Indian laurels and a lot of street market action. Two good hotels there.

A half day north to Guadalajara. Big, pretty town with plenty of good hotels.

Then go south on the route from El Paso, Texas—sliding off the highway to Guajuato and San Miguel Allende. San Miguel has the best hotels and there are fine historic Mexican towns close by.

If you are strong for some beaches, take the highway to Manzanillo—between Morelia and Guadalajara.

Going Places

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

WIND-DRIVEN sand and tumbleweeds have scratched some of the paint from the sign — there are more signs than buildings today — marking the main street of Virginia City, Nev. The sign begins: "Within sight is all that remains. . ."

It isn't much. A movie set of wooden-planked sidewalks, hitching posts and ramshackle brick and redwood buildings. There are souvenir shops and saloons in them now, and from one of them the forlorn sound of a honky-tonk piano beats on the summer air. Beyond, only the eternal rocks and scrub of the Nevada desert.

In 1849 the magic word "gold" rang far across the deserts and prairies, and the prospectors followed the echo into these forbidding mountains that did not yet have even a name.

For 10 years they picked and dug their way towards the heights, founding Silver City and Gold Hill in their path. In Silver City, William Randolph Hearst's father built the first steam-operated ore reducing mill, and became a millionaire.

THE GROSCH brothers, Hosea and Allan, were the first to suspect there might be silver as well as gold. Using a new process, they had a secret assay made and found they were right. But the man to whom immortality went was named Comstock.

Gold and silver, more than a billion dollars worth of it, ultimately came from the wildly rich Comstock Lode.

And what a city gold and silver built. At its peak in the 1870's Virginia City, tucked away in this mountain fastness, had 30,000 inhabitants, as many as Reno today.

Jenny Lind sang in the

TRAVELING LIGHT by the Sloanes

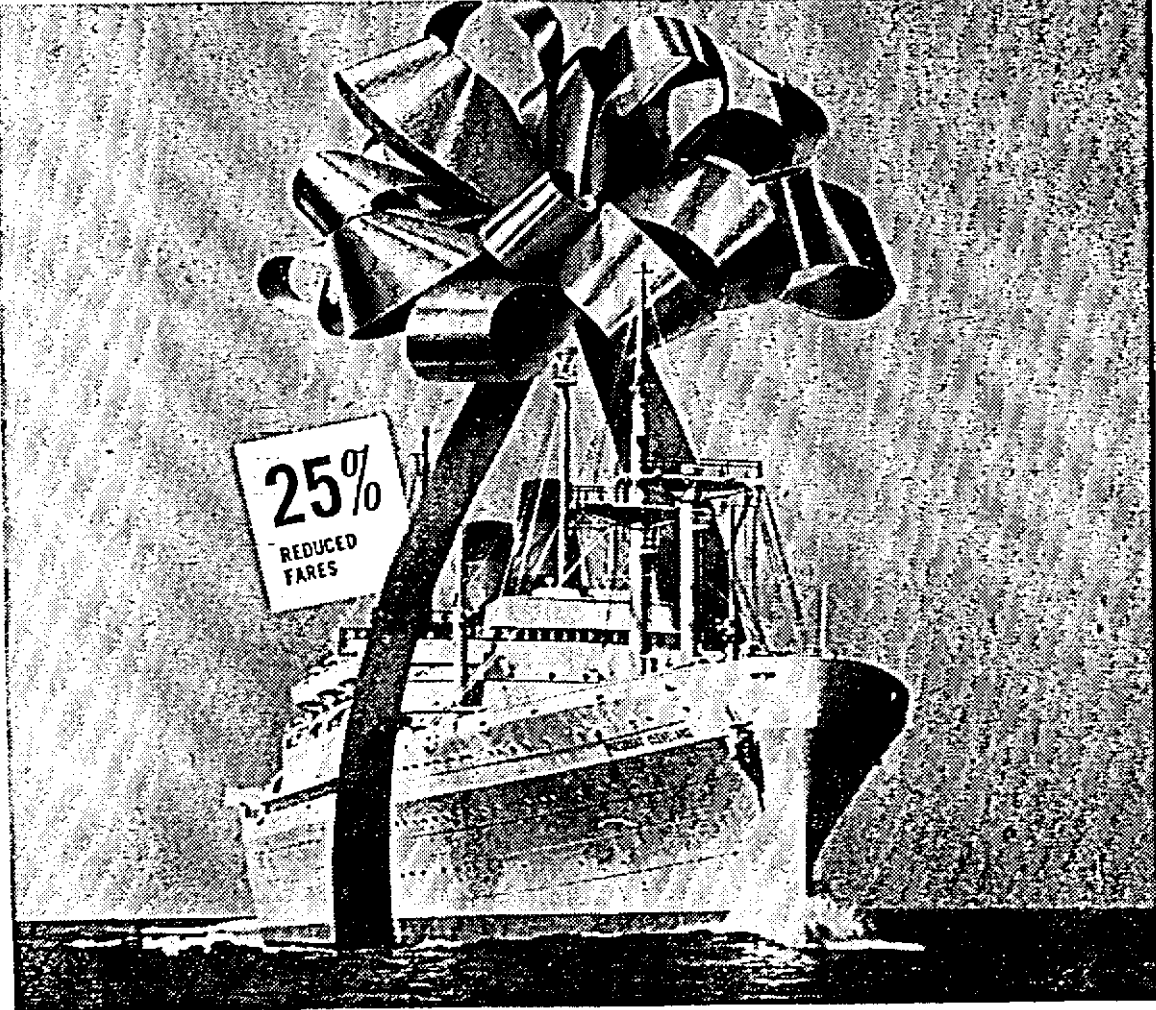

opera house (there was big-name entertainment in Nevada even then). There were 110 saloons, and there were fandango houses and banks and a stock exchange and a race track and a French hairdresser. Bat Masterson and Kit Carson and Mark Twain, who was robbed, all passed through. And there is a Boot Hill Cemetery where many of the notorious gunfighters wound up.

A remarkable quantity of memorabilia remains from these days of glory, most of it junk, but all of it fascinating.

THE SALOONS and souvenir shops are decorated with monstrous Victorian chandeliers. There are organolas and pianolas, the juke boxes of their day.

Still visible on the hillsides are tailings, the piles of dirt the prospectors picked laboriously out of the rocks. Gray and abandoned, the shacks where they lived still stand, as do their sluices and shafts, paths to heartbreak or wealth.

"Matson is the Vacation Way to Hawaii," says Charles Farrell

"I'm an up-and-at-'em sort. I like 'things' happening from sun-up to sun-up. And I find what I like on Matson. Take golf. I've played with the big names on the best courses. But I hadn't gone the distance until I drove my first bucket of balls off the ranges on a Matson resort-liner.

"You stand there. Way back on the ship. You swing. The ball flies out over the rail, up into the world's bluest sky, and hangs there for a second before dropping into the sea far behind. There's no sensation to match it.

"But then, that's not surprising. Because Matson seems to have a sixth sense for doing the distinctive. You'll find it in the food, the entertainment, the facilities, and the service. Especially the service.

"In fact, I can't think of an easier way to get that great VIP feeling than a stay on a Matson resort between Hawaii and California. Take Matson and you'll agree."

There's more for all in Hawaii this fall! This is the season. The Islands are never lovelier. All the attractions of summer remain, but the surge of crowds is gone. The surf, sun and climate couldn't be more inviting. Hunting and fishing are at their best. There's pagantry and celebrations — famed Aloha Week and the new Festival of the Pacific. Plan now to enjoy Hawaii's most inviting season and a Lurline cruise for the best fall vacation of all.

Lenten rose is a hardy evergreen that blooms strongly in winter months. It likes shade but needs some sun.

YOUR GARDEN

Color for Winter

By Joe Littlefield

OF THE TWO most colorful of winter-blooming perennial plants, Helleborus orientalis, the lenten rose, and Saxifrage (Bergenia) cordifolia, the lenten rose has an interesting range of colors.

The single cup flowers stay fresh on the plants for some time, then the petals lose their original colors, change to a chartreuse shade and stiffen as if starched. They dry slowly till the seed pods burst. Petals finally brown and casually drop off. Plants continue to send forth new spikes of blooms.

Plant lenten roses in areas where they get hour or so of early morning or late afternoon sun, in a loose, well-drained soil. They are good as pot plants, too.

Where helleborus needs mostly shade, Serbian bellflower, a Canterbury bell type, grows in shade, also where it gets more sun than shade. This year we saw several handsome Serbian bellflowers at the shade garden show in Long Beach, grown in pots. The small, light blue, bell-shaped blossoms literally smothered the plants.

These are also grown as edging plants in partial shade. The spreading branches encroach into flower beds like the oxalis weed, but the bellflower is easily controlled by cutting back the spreading branches to form a mounted edging.

Tips on Gardening

GARDEN TIPS for the week . . . Deep watering is essential in August to keep lawns and shrubs happy. Hand held sprinklers are seldom held long enough to do the most good. Lawns should be checked for water penetration. Poke a stick in to a depth of several inches and see how much of it comes up dry. You might be surprised at how little moisture is getting down into the soil.

Renew overgrown and rangy privet hedges by cutting them back drastically. They won't look their best for a few weeks, but in the long run such treatment benefits them.

Set out annuals for late summer and fall bloom. Nurseries have a good supply in August.

Many indica azaleas are getting set for a fall bloom. Be sure to water them frequently and feed them this month with an acid fertilizer.

Take long stems when cutting roses to renew the bushes. Feed roses if it's been three weeks or a month since the last time.

All container-grown shrubs and trees may be set out in August. It is a good month, especially, to plant citrus.

If you need a handsome parkway covering, try Aaron's Beard (Hypericum calycinum). In summer it's a mass of bright yellow bloom.

Quick color can be found this month from the lantanas. Give them the sunniest exposure you have.

Spray It All

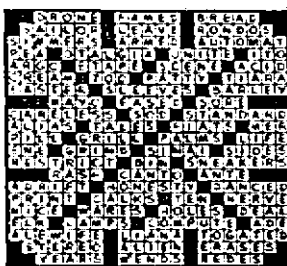

When spraying roses, it is important to soak the undersides of leaves as well as the tops.

If you spray from directly on top of a bush, the leaves act as buffers to shield pests and fungus spores on the undersides. Therefore, work the spray in from bush level and leave no part of the foliage untouched.

JACK TOWNSEND

With that in mind, restaurateur George Heinrich is in the process of enlarging his elegant Sea Winds restaurant, located on the waterfront at the foot of Magnolia and Golden Avenues. The restaurant's upper deck dining room is being remodeled to include 10 more tables placed near windows presenting scenic views of the ocean, Navy Landing, seaplanes and large and small ships. In addition, the restaurant's west entrance stairway is being enclosed in glass, carpeted and glamorized with hanging lanterns. The restaurant is open as usual while the work, due to be finished within three weeks, is going on.

Among the items on the Sea Winds' menu are such epicurean treasures as flaming rack of lamb, giant Spanish prawns which are lobster-like in size and flavor, a 14-ounce teriyaki steak with an exotic gingery sauce, plus smuggler's stew, chicken Calcutta, Port of Spain shrimp creole and several special steaks. Priced from $3.75, they are served with marinated garbanzo beans as a delicious appetizer; bowls of rich soup; big salads; baked potatoes, dark and light breads, a pot of coffee kept warm on a special table heater and colorful after-dinner mints.

Entertainment at the Sea Winds is in the capable hands of Jack Townsend, who produces a variety of unusual and pleasing musical sounds on the chamberlain and celeste additions to his Hammond organ. Versatile Jack is the central attraction in a wood-paneled cocktail lounge which is one of the most luxurious in Long Beach.

The view deck restaurant is closed Mondays, but the Sea Winds coffee shop is open every day.

Germany and Jim Garner Don't Mix

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

MUNICH (NEA) — Behind the barbed wire of a German POW camp built for a movie, "Bret Maverick" was his usual charming, larcenous self.

But away from the set, in the new Germany, things were a little different, James Garner admitted. It was "Maverick" who was being "taken."

Garner was in the uniform of the Eagle Squadron, a caged birdman, but his tricks in the POW camp were right out of the Maverick television series. A Nazi guard even laughed at his jokes while he "liberated" his wallet and ID card for a scene in "The Great Escape."

But the pride of Norman, Okla., wasn't laughing as he dug into his lunch on a day off from the set. He could hardly wait, he said, to get back to the good old U.S.A. Even Warner Bros. studio, he inferred, would look good to him. That's the studio from which he made his own great escape out of Maverick and into movies.

He drove us to the little German cafe in his new black and red upholstered Porsche. The German pronunciation of Porsche rhymes with Portia and that's how James Garner sounded.

It was "Porsche Faces Life."

He had been pushed around by German police in Schwabing, the Greenwich Village area of Munich. He was an innocent bystander to student riots over a police edict that there could be no more late hour group singing on the streets. By the time the story reached headlines, it sounded as if Garner had squared off against the whole German Republic.

He said he had tried to find a little night life in Munich but: "All of the places were so beat you had to breathe prewar air."

HE HAD BEEN quoted by a German newsman on things

JAMES GARNER

he didn't expect to see in print. He had rented a home near the Bavaria Studio while working in "The Great Escape"—"and the other morning I found $100 missing from my wallet."

Garner repeated the words,

"I'll be very happy to get back to Hollywood."

He was delighted, however, with his role in the film, the true story of a group of Allied prisoners who tunneled their way out of a World War II German POW camp under the noses of Nazi guards. It was the largest and most effective mass breakout of war prisoners in military history. The story is based on the book by Paul Brickhill, one of the prisoners, and is being directed by John Sturges as a Mirisch-Alpha Production for UA release.

GARNER PLAYS the role of Hendley, "The Scrouger." Costarring are Steve McQueen as Hilt, "The Cooler King," and England's Richard Attenborough.

The latter is the mastermind behind the "impossible" escape. Also featured, from Hollywood, are Charles Bronson and James Coburn.

SPECIAL

BEACHCOMBER BILL—A color preview of the new-to-TV Hanna-Barbara cartoons to debut next week is set for 7:30 a.m. ch. 13. Bill Biery, who with his jungle animals will host the nightly (6:30) series, presides.

THE NEWS HOUR—KABC joins the trend to full hour of news, with Baxter Ward, Jim Healy, Carl George, Peter Miller and Roy Mitchell reporting at 6 p.m., ch. 7, leading up to Ron Cochran's network roundup, now at 6:45 p.m.

LUCY-DESI HOUR—The late Ernie Kovacs and his wife Edie Adams guest on the repeat comedy hour at 9 p.m., ch. 2. Lucy enlists neighbor Kovacs into boosting Ricky's sagging show - business fortunes, going berserk as she tries to help Ernie shave.

RIDDLE OF THE LUSITANIA—John Chancellor probes a 47-year-old mystery of what caused the ship to sink in only 18 minutes (the Andrea Doria, split nearly in half, remained afloat for 12 hours) and why, if she was hit aft, did she go down by the bow? The 10 p.m. hour, ch. 4, asks also about the absence of usual evasive maneuvers.

STEVE ALLEN—KTLA gives up its 45-minute advantage over "Tonight" and moves Allen's madcap 90 minutes up to the same 11:15 p.m. starting line. Singers Barbara McNair and Bill Carey are week-long guests on the ch. 5 outing, with The Vagabonds featured tonight, plus a volleyball game.

No More Commercials for Julia

By DICK KILLNER
NEW YORK (NEA) — Ed Sullivan's loss is Chicago's gain. Or, to put it another way, Julie Meade has quit her spokeswoman job on Sullivan's show to return to the stage, and is headed for a long stay in Chicago as the star of the national company of "Mary, Mary."

"I just couldn't take it any more," says the tall, reddish-haired Miss Meade. By "it," she means delivering commercials which, she says, "don't say anything any more."

She says she was exhausted—"when you're bored, you get tired"—and decided that the time had come to cease and desist.

"SO I WENT to see Ed," she says. "He's such a clear

thinker. I laid my cards on the table. And he said that it broke his heart to lose me, but that if her were I he'd quit, too."

Although she cast aside some lucrative commercial jobs — she reportedly made $150,000 a year—Julia has no regrets. She's happily not been out of work since her big decision — except for a two-week vacation and glories in her plum role, the Barbara Bel Geddes part in the hit comedy, "Mary, Mary," which hopes to settle down in Chicago for a long run.

Miss Meade is very optimistic about her stage future, primarily because she thinks that her forte—light comedy—is understaffed at the moment.

"THERE ARE so few light commediennes around," she says. "After Barbara Bel Geddes and Nancy Olson, who is there? And they are different types from me too. I think I'll always be able to find work in that area."

She got into commercials in the first place when she found that the New York acting market was drying up as television shows moved to Hollywood. And she didn't want to move with them. Actually, she has had several chances to appear in television series, but has turned them down firmly.

"I wouldn't do a series," she says. "That's worse than doing commercials."

Perhaps you can settle a problem for me.

Every week when we watch Perry Mason, there is a running battle between my mother and dad.

Daddy says:

"His name ISN'T really Raymond Burr. He lives in Van Nuys."

Mom says:

"His name IS Raymond mond Burr and he lives in Beverly Hills."

Which is right? If both are wrong, what is the real name and in what area does he live?

I'd rather listen to the show!

Terry Vought, Lakewood
And you're going to get a chance to.

His name REALLY is Raymond William Stacy Burr, so that makes both your parents right.

He lives in Malibu when he's not sleeping over at the La Brea Studio set four-room living quarters especially set up for him. That makes both Mom and Dad wrong.

I wish you pleasant listening—to the program for a change.

In connection with the International Beauty Congress, I would like to stay this:

If the commercials referring to cigarettes were a bit more absented from the picture they would be far more enjoyable to many of us.

They've got it up front. They've got it on this end. They've got it on that end.

But, as yet, they haven't got it in the middle. How come?

Frank A. Winslow, L.B.
They ran out of tobacco.

NINA SHIPMAN plays the role of a mountain girl transplanted to the relatively progressive civilization of the Cartwrights' ranch during a "Bonanza" repeat at 9 p.m. Sunday (today), channel 4.

What happened to the Hathaways Friday at 8 p.m.?
—Mrs. M. A. Walker, Bellflower.

The series, currently being repeated by channel 7, has not been renewed for the fall. Too much monkey business and not enough viewers.

- SIGNAL 30—It's deliberately late at night (10:30 p.m., ch. 11), and you'll be warned at the beginning of the contents. Its the film which attracted a national attention when a Santa Monica traffic judge agreed to reduce fines for those who would watch it, being shown on television in an attempt to frighten viewers into driving safely over the Labor Day weekend. In court, women fainted and became ill watching a driver burn to death on sound film.

EVERYBODY LOVES a WARM BATH and a PROFESSIONAL MASSAGE

Now your whole family can enjoy
both... for only a few cents a day!

Imagine! a trained masseur at your beck and call 24 hours a day... that's what you'll have with a JACUZZI WHIRLPOOL BATH. You and your entire family can enjoy beneficial water massage in your home bathtub—every day, several times a day.

You relax in the tub of water. The Jacuzzi causes moving water filled with millions of bursting air bubbles to massage every part of your body. The agitated water whisks away sagging tiredness, nervous tension, relieves daily aches and pains.

The kids will love it, too. Like older members of the family, the youngsters will clamor for their daily whirlpool bath. There'll be no fight to get them into their tub with a Jacuzzi. For calming the children at bedtime—or anytime—use genuine whirlpool massage.

Efrem Gets Away from Them

By EFREM ZIMBALIST JR. OF "77 SUNSET STRIP"
(Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—Not too long ago a man driving on the Hollywood Freeway came face to face with reality. In truth, reality overcame him. Surrounded by speeding demons, blinded by smog and beset by troubles seemingly unbearable, he stopped his car on the nation's busiest freeway, got out and walked away.

He hasn't been seen or heard from since. I recite this pathetic tale only as an example of what can happen to people if they are pushed too far, either by circumstances or by their surroundings or by the grinding verities of life itself.

EFREM ZIMBALIST JR.

It is something that could happen to any of us, living as we do in a frantic era marked by atom bombs, frozen dinners, heated diplomacy, soft muscles and the hard sell.

And people ARE being pushed too far.

ONE HAS ONLY to read a newspaper to realize that minds are snapping like rubber bands all over the world and in every walk of life. In our own country, mental health is a national concern, the word "juvenile" is almost inevitably coupled with "delinquent," and tranquilizers are being dispensed and swallowed by the carload. People are jumping off bridges, clouting their spouses, snarling at their betters, reviling their inferiors, drinking incredibly and, in general and all too often, behaving as though life were a terrible irritant instead of a marvelous joy.

My particular solution—yes, actors are being pushed, too—is a cowardly retreat to a small farm I own in Connecticut.

I suppose not everyone can own a small farm in Connecticut, although lots of people do and certainly mine is not expensive, especially when judged by the fantastic prices of California real estate.

I THINK ONE of the conditions of a retreat such as mine—or, if you prefer, a mountain cabin, or a desert shack, or a beach shack—is that it not be located near a freeway, expressway, thoroughway or whatever the local name is for these concrete and asphalt ribbons that are opening rural America to the beer can throwers.

Thereby you are not only off the beaten path but it is unlikely that enormous subdivisions will be built around you for the benefit of commuters from some nearby city.

My farm, small as it is, has a running brook and a meadow, both of which are much better than tranquilizers when one is seeking tranquility.

TELSTAR SHOULD FIRST CARRY NEWS

NEW YORK (UPI)—News programs instead of westerns and mystery shows will be the "grist" of international television via Telstar, according to Robert W. Sarnoff, board chairman of the National Broadcasting Co.

Sarnoff said that the likely predominance of news telecasts made it essential to guard against "government tampering with free expression."

"I believe the maintenance of free expression is of transcending importance even if there were any real reason to fear that America's image abroad would be injured by our programs," the network executive declared.

Negotiate for Political Telecasts

Eight major television shows are involved in negotiations to permit paid political broadcasts this fall.

Under terms of the proposed plan, the prime-time programs would be shortened for five-minute political talks.

Shows involved include "The Red Skelton Show," "Jackie Gleason Show," "Ed Sullivan Show," "Mitch Miller Show," "Perry Como Show," "The Price Is Right," "The Lawrence Welk Show" and "Hollywood Special."

Week's Top Shows

Sunday—Samples of American humor, from the tall stories about David Crockett to such new comics as Shelley Berman, will be featured on a repeat of "Laughter, U.S.A." at 10 p.m. on channel 4. George Burns narrates for film footage and radio tapes including such personalities as Weber and Fields, Eddie Cantor, Laurel and Hardy, the Marx Brothers, Buster Keaton, Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis.

Monday—"The Riddle of the Lusitania" at 10 p.m. on channel 4 is an hour-long documentary probing what caused the reportedly torpedoed ship to sink in 18 minutes. The sinking was a rallying cry for America's entry into World War I.

Tuesday—"Talent Scouts" at 10 p.m. on channel 2 has Jim Backus hosting Robert Goulet, Harry Belafonte, Joan Fontaine, Jack E. Leonard and Allen and Rossi.

Wednesday—"Howard K. Smith" at 7:30 p.m. on channel 7 takes a look at the nation's changing landscapes and wonders "Is America Ugly?" Architects discuss what can be done to eliminate blights and keep the rest of the countryside's natural beauty from being visually polluted.

Thursday—"Signal 30" shows the driver in an automobile accident being burned to death. The 30 minute film, which airs 10:30 p.m. on channel 11, is normally shown to erring motorists who have their fines reduced by Santa Monica Judge W. Blair Gibbons for consenting to watch it. Very strong stuff, but a timely safe-driving reminder for the upcoming Labor Day weekend.

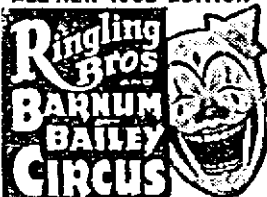

Friday—"The Problem Child" at 9:30 p.m. on channel 4 is the last of five prime-time repeats of "Special for Women." This one concerns a youngster who is a bully, has no friends his own age and associates only with younger children he can pick on.

Saturday—"A Night With Della Reese" is a 90 minute session with the popular songstress. It airs 9:30 p.m. on channel 9. Among her selections will be "The Lady Is a Tramp," "Stormy Weather" and "After You've Gone."

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

She wore yellow capris.

"I call them pants," said Mary Tyler Moore. "My husband likes me in them."

Whatever you call them—capris or pants—they have become a feminine trademark for the lovely actress.

Rare is the domestic scene on CBS' "Dirk Van Dyke Show" when Mary, in her role as housewife Laura Petrie, is not seen in capris.

Which is perfectly OK with Mary.

"I just don't believe women wear high heels and dresses in the kitchen," she said. "Pants are much more comfortable."

Mail to Mary from viewing wives back her pants stand. In general, they emphasize their joy at finally seeing a wife portrayed and attired sensibly.

★ ★ ★

SOME WOMEN, concedes Mary, make a mistake in wearing poorly fitted capris.

"Too tight," she said. "So tight that they wouldn't properly fit their 10-year-old sister."

Mary's capris—ready-made, not tailor-made—fit properly and becomingly.

"I suppose," she said, "that if a wife is the domineering type, her wearing pants would become more symbol her husband would resist."

"In my own home this is no problem."

"My husband is the boss and there's no question about it."

Her husband, Grant Tinker, has been the boss for 12 weeks, the length of time they have been married.

★ ★ ★

IN THE DOMESTIC capriciousness of "The Dick Van Dyke Show," there is some question as to who is the video boss of the household.

Some question, but not much. Usually it is wifey who knows best.

But some of last season's ending episodes and more of the upcoming season's have wifey knowing best in a more humorous fashion.

"I started out at the beginning of last season as a straight man," said Mary.

One look at her would convince even a cigar-store wooden Indian that any casting of the curvaceous Miss Moore as a straight man had overlooked a few major points.

Her "straight man" reference, however, was to lines—verbal—that she fed to her TV hubby.

"As the season progressed," she said, "the scripts were changed so that I'd have more funny lines, too."

★ ★ ★

HER ABILITY to do the "funny lines" has provided her the most satisfaction on the show. But it is the unfunny part of her domestic portrayal that has brought her the most mail, surprisingly, from teenage girls.

The girls ask her for advice on such matters as how to handle their boyfriends and how to fix their hair.

Wives who write frequently ask her for recipes.

"That's funny," said Mary. "Because if I'm not the world's worst cook, I don't know who is."

"About the only thing I can cook is a poor man's beef stroganoff—made of ham-burger."

When it comes to another field, dancing, she definitely is not the world's worst.

★ ★ ★

"I'M A PHYSICAL NUT," she said.

"I started out to be a dancer—and dancers are very active people. They lunge for a cup of coffee instead of sedately walking over to get it."

"They're liable to break out in a wild cha-cha in the midst of a political discussion, still holding up their conversational contribution."

"It's just that they—including me—have to be limber all the time."

To help keep herself limber, Mary still practices ballet.

For the practice, she makes one concession.

She doffs capris and puts on a leotard.

Come to think of it, what would he wrong with housewives wearing nice comfy leotards around the kitchen?

Especially if the wives looked like Mary Tyler Moore.

Q. I would like to find out how many times Dominquin, the great Spanish bullfighter, has been gored. Also, is he married?—Anna Banks, Toms River, N.J.
A. Dominguin, 36, has been gored 11 times, is married to the former Lucia Bose, Italian film star. They have three children, are expecting a fourth.

Q. What happens if Sophia Loren and Carlo Ponti are convicted on charges of bigamy? I understand they have been ordered to trial in Rome.—K.G., Minneapolis, Minn.

A. If convicted, the Italian actress and her husband could get up to five years in jail. They were wed by proxy in Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, in 1957, three years after Ponti obtained a Mexican divorce from his first wife, Giuliana Fiastra, a lawyer. Italian law does not provide for divorce, and Ponti's action is not recognized by the Italian courts as legal. The charge against Sophia Loren is concubinage in bigamy.

Q. How old is Irving Berlin? Has he retired? What are his hobbies? Is he worth, as I've read, $50,000,000?—Louis Flourcers, Detroit, Mich.

A. Berlin is 74. He tried to retire several years ago but discovered such hobbies as painting and fishing unsatisfactory. He turned again to music and composed a musical comedy, Mr. President, which will open on Broadway this October with an advance sale of $1,600,000. Berlin is a millionaire many times over. Best guesstimate of his fortune: $25,000,000.

Q. Can you tell me if Princess Margaret of England has had her hair bleached orange?—Doris Lleurelynn, Baltimore, Md.

A. It's been tinted orange on occasion to blend with her clothes.

Q. How old is Merle Oberon? What's happened to her? She used to be the most beautiful woman on the screen?—M. Mentone, Chula Vista, Calif.

A. Merle Oberon is 51. Now married to her third husband, Mexican industrialist Bruno Pagliai, she plans to star in a forthcoming movie, Love and Desire, with Curt Jurgens. It will be her first film in six years. She lives alternately in Mexico and Hollywood.

Q. The cigars which Winston Churchill smokes—what kind are they?—B. Kerns, Racine, Wis.

A. Havanas.

Sophia Loren

Conrad Hilton

Princess Margaret

Lance Reventlow

Q. Conrad Hilton, 74, is building hotels all over the world. Where does he get the enormous sums to finance construction?—Mark Porter, De Land, Fla.

A. Says Hilton: "I get other people to put up the money for our hotels. Then we run the hotels and pay back the money over 20 or 25 years."

Q. If a husband leaves his wife or refuses to live with her, can the courts force him to? I have reference to the well-known Chinnery case now in the British courts.—V.T., Salem, Mass.

A. Mrs. Irene Chinnery, married to Wing Commander Henry Chinnery, former equerry of Prince Philip, recently asked the divorce court to grant a decree for restitution of her conjugal rights. Such a decree was granted, and her husband was ordered to return to his wife. No court, however, can compel him to fulfill his conjugal functions.

Q. Please answer this question: The five leading colored female singers, Lena Horne, Eartha Kitt, Pearl Bailey, Shirley Bassey and Dorothy Dandridge, are all married to white husbands. How come?—G.P., Washington, D.C.

A. Their show business careers put them in contact mostly with white men.

Q. Does Arnold Palmer's wife play golf?—K.M., Fort Worth, Texas.

A. "Just enough," she says, "to make me realize that I'm not very good."

Q. Can you tell me if Bernard Baruch, 92, goes to Switzerland to be treated by Dr. Paul Niehans, the rejuvenator?—Charles Fortez, New York, N.Y.

A. He does.

Q. How much alimony is Janet Leigh receiving from Tony Curtis after 11 years of marriage?—S. Lauren, Oakland, Calif.

A. One dollar.

Q. Why can't film stars stay married? Look at Jill St. John married to millionaire Lance Reventlow. She has everything money can buy. Why does she want out?—Kathy Lemoyne, Omaha, Neb.

A. Jill wants her husband to give up car racing which is his occupation. Reventlow refuses. Says Jill: "I do not intend to finish second to any racing car." Says Lance: "She is an actress, and I am an auto racer. We have separate lives and that's that."

HOW TO SAVE YOUR LIFE ON THE... MOST DANGEROUS WEEKEND OF THE YEAR

I AM ADDRESSING this article to you, Mr. and Mrs. Motorist, in the hope that you will not be among the thousands killed or injured next weekend.

All signs point to the fact that Labor Day 1962 could be the worst holiday for traffic deaths in the history of the U.S. That's the grim assessment of our U.S. Bureau of Public Roads, which recently completed a study of accident records. Over the years, it was discovered, Labor Day weekend has been the most dangerous holiday of all.

This year's Labor Day is even more ominous because it will be the only long holiday weekend in 1962. Every other major holiday falls in mid-week. That means thousands of Americans—perhaps you too—have been waiting all summer for Labor Day to hit the highways.

As chairman of President Kennedy's new Interdepartmental Highway Safety Board, I've been directed to throw the full weight of the government's scientific and engineering resources into reducing the staggering annual totals of auto deaths.

Driver Register Started

We're working, for example, to build into the great new Interstate Highway System life-saving features that will prevent 2000 deaths in 1962 alone. And we've started a Driver Register, a permanent list of drivers whose licenses have been revoked. If a violator tries to get a license in another state, authorities can ask us for his record and act accordingly.

We're sure these new programs will help. But in the last analysis, safety is still your job. You and your fellow motorists are the only ones who can reduce the number of Americans killed and injured next weekend—now predicted at 60,000.

To help you help yourself, we have selected the following 10 watchwords for safety from the research findings of the Bureau of Public Roads. These are the most important things to do. Read them; check yourself against them. Then use them on the road this weekend.

by LUTHER H. HODGES

U.S. Secretary of Commerce

Before you start:

1. SAFETY-CHECK YOUR CAR. At the very least, make sure your tires, brakes and lights are fully serviceable. I've put safety belts in my own car, and advise everyone to do so.

2. PLAN YOUR TRIP. Get good maps and information; lay out your trip thoughtfully. Estimate realistically how far you can go each day by staying within the speed limits. Plan to drive not more than eight hours a day; if that is impossible, include plenty of rest stops.

3. SAFETY-CHECK YOURSELF. Too often drivers take better care of the car than themselves. They'll run themselves ragged trying to clear everything up at the office and at home, staying up much too late the night before leaving.

While en route:

4. STAY ALERT. Some tips: eat lightly so you don't become drowsy. Abstain completely from alcohol at least until you've stopped driving for the day. Stop periodically to stretch your legs.

5. OBEY THE SPEED LAWS. Serious accidents increase drastically at speeds above 65 mph. High speeds pay off poorly for the risk involved. On the New Jersey Turnpike, for example, you can observe the legal limit of 60 and travel its length in 118 minutes. If you gamble and go 70 the most you'll save is just 17 minutes.

6. USE JUDGMENT. The law sets limits, but within those limits you have to use common sense. On a good dry, 60-mph highway, for instance, driving at less than 40 is actually dangerous. But on a wet road at night, you should stay under the legal speed.

7. MAKE COURTESY A HABIT. Psychological studies show that accident repeaters tend to be overly aggressive. Don't work off your tension on the highway. You'd do better to tell off your boss—it could cost you your job, but not your life!

8. EXERCISE SELF-CONTROL. We all know the "big George" type of driver who weaves in and out of line, cursing everyone else on the road. Remember you're traveling for enjoyment. Relax.

9. COMMUNICATE. We must cooperate with other drivers to stay alive. Let the fellow behind know what you're going to do. Use all four kinds of signals—not just left turn or right turn, but "slow down" and "pass me." If your car breaks down, warn other drivers by tying a handkerchief on the traffic side of the car or, at night, keeping dome and tail lights on.

10. BE IMAGINATIVE. Imagine yourself in that other car in the next lane, for example. Think what you would do if you were its driver, and guide your own car accordingly. Of course, you can't anticipate everything; expect the unexpected and be ready to act promptly.

Every driver can and should add items to this list. But I guarantee that if each of us concentrates on these 10, we'll soon make a change in the present intolerable situation, where it's at least 50 per cent more dangerous to drive a car than to ride an airliner, where almost five million people are injured each year—equal to the combined population of Los Angeles and Philadelphia.

Labor Day is a time to work for safety. Let's put these 10 watchwords into practice then—and every other day too. ■

Two young Americans meet, marry and

serve mankind on a

PEACE CORPS

HONEYMOON

Sally and Bill Davis make friends with sun-helmeted school children in Thailand.

KORAT, THAILAND.

MOST YOUNG AMERICANS want to start married life with a nice family car, a full array of appliances, roomy living quarters, and a comfortable income.

Bill and Sally Davis are different. They live here in two rooms with a hot plate, boil all their drinking water, get around on bicycles, subsist on $150 a month—and love every minute of it. Their only complaint is that life isn't rough enough. "How," says Sally, "can you feel you're serving mankind when you live in a house with a shower?"

Bill and Sally, as you might have guessed, are members of that modern army of secular missionaries, the Peace Corps. They met and fell in love in its ranks and have been married just five months. Now, like three other couples and 37 single Americans here—and 3,200 more Peace Corps volunteers around the globe—they have voluntarily turned their backs on the comforts of home to help less fortunate peoples achieve a better life. And they can't think of a better beginning for a marriage than that.

"This is the life," says Sally, an athletic, 23-year-old blonde from Summit, N.J. "Doing something that really helps people, doing it with someone you love—there's nothing like that feeling." Her husband, 6-feet-1, crewcut, quiet, echoes her: "We get a feeling of accomplishment from our job here that we couldn't get in any other way."

The Peace Corps' mission in this Southeast Asian land of jungles and temples, undertaken at the request of the pro-Western Thai government, is to teach in the colleges—mainly English but also technical subjects. The project has been in operation only since January. Yet already it is rated a whopping success—so much so that the Thais have requested a second wave of volunteers, due here next month.

Here in Thailand's arid, scrubby Northeast, where Bill and Sally and four others are assigned, the Peace Corps' work is of special importance. As the nation's most depressed region, the Northeast is most susceptible to Communist penetration. Education—as symbolized by the Peace Corps—is seen as the region's great hope to bring prosperity and save democracy.

The Davises and four other volunteers are assigned to two small colleges here to aid the Thais in this struggle. Bill gives lessons in basic English at Northeastern Technical Institute. He also instructs classes in electricity and electrical wiring. His bride is an English instructor at Nakorn Rajasima Teachers College. Neither ever had taught before, but already both are favorites with their students. The reasons are: ability, personality—and the fact that everyone is charmed by the story of their romance.

The saga of Sally and Bill does read like a movie plot. A year ago Sally MacLay was fresh out of Wells College, Aurora, N.Y., looking for a job with a publishing house. Bill Davis of Ipswich, Mass., had just finished studies at Franklin Technical Institute, Philadelphia. One day Sally had a squabble with her family and on impulse went out and signed up for the Peace Corps. About the same time Bill, who had previously volunteered to go to Chile and been turned down, got a hurry-up call to come back for reconsideration.

Their paths crossed at the University of Michigan, where the Peace Corpsmen went for training. They had a few dates, nothing serious. At the end of training in December both went home on visits. Then came the flight to Thailand.

"Just by accident we happened to sit together," Sally remembers. "We didn't pick each other out or anything. It just happened that way. Well, naturally, we started to talk. And the more we talked the more we liked each other. I hadn't realized there was so much to Bill—and I guess he felt the same way."

"When night came we slept on each other's shoulders. When it was day we just stayed where we were and didn't talk to anyone else. The whole trip took three days, counting a stopover in Hong Kong, and the closer we got to Bangkok, the harder it became to think of being separated. Finally, a couple of hours before landing, Bill blurted, 'Well, why don't we get married?' When the plane landed we had our plans made."

"IT CAUSED quite a stir," Bill adds. "I was supposed to go down to Songkla, down near Malaya, and Sally was to come up here. That all had to be rearranged. There was no place for a couple at Songkla and I had to trade with another guy. We got all that squared away and I got a bad case of sunburn and was hospitalized. Finally we went out to a nai apha—he's like a justice of the peace—and got married."

The Davises were the fourteenth couple to meet and marry in the Peace Corps. The Thais were delighted when they turned up as newlyweds. Everyone fawned over them. They were put up in a lavish guest house and to their embarrassment treated like royalty. The red-carpet treatment lasted several days until space was found for them in the faculty housing.

Today life for Bill and Sally is nearer normal. During the school term, they follow a routine of about five classes a day each. They serve mainly as English conversationalists, helping the students to repeat words again and again until they get the pronunciation right. Bill also voluntarily teaches English to nurses at Nakorn Rajasima Hospital, and both give spare-time help to students trying to improve their English.

However, starting married life in a strange land has meant some tricky adjustments. For instance, there is the Thai custom of separating the sexes. Husbands and wives don't sit together at social gatherings here, nor do they touch one another in public. Volunteers are urged to abide by local custom. Hence Bill and Sally don't hold hands in public view.

OR TAKE their living quarters. Most people back home think Peace Corps volunteers all live in grass huts. The Davis home is anything but that—a two-story structure with a soaring roof line, designed in the best contemporary style by Wadanya Nathalang, the school's headmaster and a graduate of Cornell School of Architecture. The upstairs is a huge, window-walled bedroom. The first floor is a cement-floored kitchen. The Davises enjoy such luxuries as a bath and shower, a patio and a refrigerator.

For all its modernity, however, the house is without electricity half the day. The water—as in most of Southeast Asia—is unsafe to drink without boiling. Meals must be cooked on a one-burner hot plate. The area crawls with insects and the Davises dare not sleep without mosquito netting.

Also, the Thai diet leans heavily toward fiery dishes which have given both Davises digestive upsets. And the new bride can't get accustomed to shopping by the haggle system. "They see me coming," Sally says ruefully of her trips to Korat's market. "They spot my blonde hair and they say: 'Here comes the farang [foreigner] again,' and the prices all go up 100 per cent." Hence Thai friends often shop for them.

But these are mere inconveniences, Bill and Sally agree, such as you might meet in putting down roots in any new place. Offsetting them is the relationship between the volunteers and their students. The Thais yearn desperately for education, and they feel that somehow the Americans can impart it almost by magic.

Smoke "traveled" through fine tobacco tastes best. Pall Mall's famous length travels and gentles the smoke naturally... over, under, around and through the finest tobaccos money can buy. Makes it mild... but does not filter out that satisfying flavor!

The idealistic young Americans fear they never can live up to these expectations.

"They have unbelievable faith in us," Bill says. "Some students came to me and asked if I would teach a course in air-conditioning. I said, 'But I don't know anything about air-conditioning.' They were puzzled. 'Of course you do,' one said. 'You went to school in America, didn't you?'"

And since they are just 23 and right out of school themselves, the Davises can't see themselves as omniscient personages worthy of the most exalted treatment—which is the kind of status a teacher enjoys here. They can't get used to students leaping to attention when they enter a room, or greeting them with a bow and a wye—the Thai palms-together gesture of respect.

On this point, there is just beneath the surface friction between the volunteers and some Thai faculty members. These Thais resent the way the Americans engage students in informal chatter and treat them as equals. Nor do they understand why the volunteers encourage students to ask questions. In Thailand the teacher's word should not be doubted.

Some of the Thais were shocked when Bill and Sally didn't want to hire a servant. They wouldn't hear of a teacher doing her own housework. They sent a steady procession of applicants around to apply for the job. Finally Bill and Sally got the idea and hired a young girl to clean and iron—for a little over $6 a month.

THE DAVISES have made a host of friends here. "We have a great big love affair with Thailand and the people," Sally says. They find the Thais polite, shy and restrained, but full of good humor. Sometimes they're invited to Thai homes for Sunday dinner, a traditional feast served amid jokes and laughter.

Fellow faculty members are their best friends and most frequent guests. Bill and Sally have taught several to play bridge. Thai women often are disappointed in the apartment. "They've heard so much about American homes," Sally says, "and they can't understand why ours doesn't look like something out of Better Homes and Gardens."

One thing the couple expected, however, has never come to pass. Almost no one asks questions about the Cold War, about U.S. foreign policy, or about such issues as atomic testing and segregation. When U.S. troops moved into this region during the Laos crisis recently, there was much discussion of world affairs, but very little of it was anti-U.S.

"The people here are very sophisticated," Sally says. "They know the issues very well. They understand what's going on in the world." The Davises are, however, frequently bombarded with questions about colleges in the U.S. The goal of many students here is an American diploma, which they regard as a sure passport to success.

Both Bill and Sally say they are pleased with the way their Peace Corps stint is turning out—despite the ktdown of living in what they call "luxury." They're paid $75 a month each and find this more than enough for simple living, without frills. (Another $75 is banked for each at home, as a kind of mustering out pay.) The Peace Corps also provides medical care, vacation pay, counseling, and regular bulletins on what's going on back home.

The Davises think they may stay in the Peace Corps after their present two-year term ends. The Peace Corps now has projects going in 17 countries, (see box) and several sound alluring to Bill.

"At any rate, I think I'd like to stay in some kind of government service," Bill says. But neither of the Davises have really made up their minds about the future. There's too much to occupy them in the present—too much to learn about each other, too much to see in a new and wonderful country, too much pleasure to be gained by helping other members of mankind. ■

Pronouncing English, Bill Davis teaches Thai nurses.

Want to join the Peace Corps?

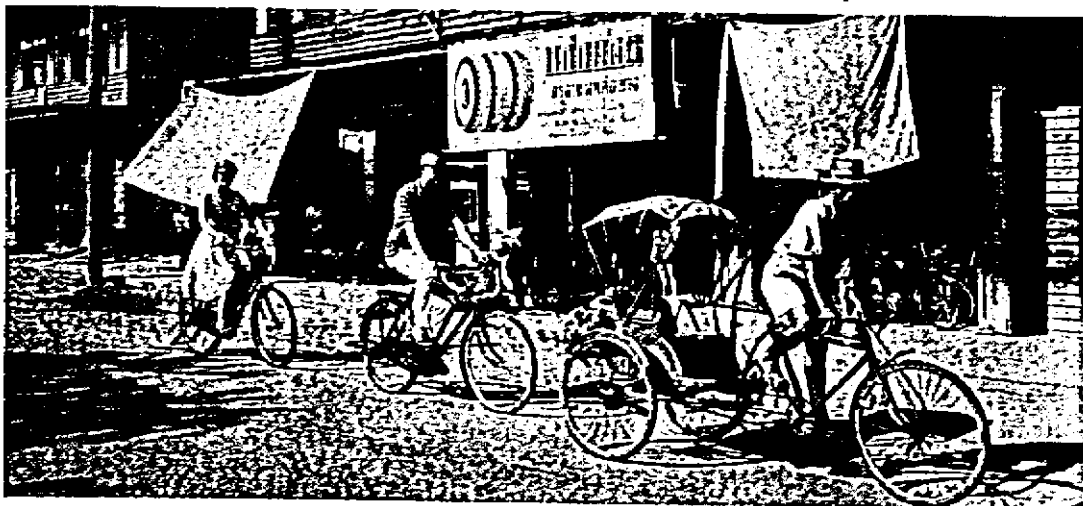

A FEW WEEKS AGO Congress approved virtually without opposition a bill increasing both the size and the budget of the U.S. Peace Corps. Among those who praised the organization in speeches before the vote were several early critics, including Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona and Rep. Howard Smith of Virginia.

Probably no organization in U.S. history has been so acclaimed—nor so captured the imagination of so many Americans—as this new and idealistic effort to aid the downtrodden of other lands.

In the Peace Corps' 16 months of existence, thousands of Americans have volunteered. But many more still are needed. In special demand are nurses, agricultural experts, mechanics, plumbers, electricians. Teachers are always needed because many Peace Corps projects are in education.

The Peace Corps operates in Ghana, Sierra Leone, Tanganyika, Nigeria, Somalia, Malaya, Thailand, the Philippines, St. Lucia, Colombia, Chile, Brazil, Venezuela, Pakistan, India, Jamaica and El Salvador. Volunteers get a monthly living allowance (from $70 to $180, according to the local economy) which covers food, housing and other essentials. A "mustering-out pay" of $75 a month is banked at home.

To volunteer, you must be at least 18 and have a high school diploma. (For some projects, however, a college degree is necessary.) Married couples are eligible if both qualify and they have no dependents under 18. And there is no maximum age limit. For details, write Peace Corps, Washington 25, D.C.

Cycling along, the Davises follow Thai-powered "pedicab" down main street of Korat, Thailand. Bicycles are furnished them by the Peace Corps. At rear are local restaurant and tire repair shop. One Korat restaurant specializes in hamburgers and sodas. Peace Corps volunteers frequently get together there for an American dinner and chat.

Playful pet, a baby gibbon from Northern Thailand, yanks at Sally Davis' blonde hair. Gibbon—named "Gib"—has run of the couple's apartment. Sally bought him for $7.50 on visit to Chiang Mai. Davises hope to have children, aren't sure how this will affect their Peace Corps status. Another American couple is attempting to adopt a Thai baby.

The bear facts

by B. SHIRVANIAN

INCREDIBLE KING. Ibn Saud, 64, king of oil-rich Saudi Arabia, claims he's the happiest man on earth. A few days ago, six of the king's 94 concubines gave birth to five boys and one girl, all on the same day. Saud already has 38 sons by his four wives and an estimated 100 offspring by his concubines. Girls are not included in this number. Saud's father, who founded the dynasty at the turn of the century, had 108 sons at the time of his death. The present monarch receives approximately $300,000,000 in oil royalties each year and treats his women lavishly, keeping them in kingly splendor in his various mansions in Riyadh, his capital city. Saud, who is 6-foot-4, calls each of his children "prince" or "princess" and is considered a truly generous man. Frequently, he gives away those of his concubines who bear him no children, hoping that they will become more fertile with another sheik. When Saud tours Europe, his retinue generally includes half a dozen of his favorite women, many of whom dress in European style, have their hair done à la Jackie Kennedy.

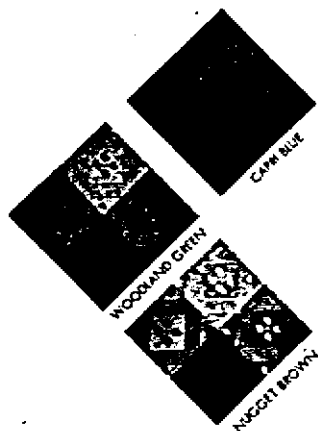

STATUS SYMBOL. Do you know what the average teenage girl today regards as her most important status symbol? A steady boyfriend. If not a "steady" then at least a sometimes boyfriend. Girls nowadays are maturing earlier than ever. According to one medical officer at a recent doctors' convention, "The general opinion is that there is more sexual experience and experiment by the adolescent than formerly. It is now clear that the incidence of venereal disease in adolescents and of pregnancy in teenagers under 16 is increasing." Parents! Take over!

CLOSING BASES. By the end of 1963, the U.S. will close out its B-47 bomber bases in Great Britain, sending 40,000 Americans home, and saving the U.S. Treasury $100,000,000. These bases are useless. Targets originally assigned the B-47 bombers are being rapidly shifted to Polaris submarines and land-based missiles. The British who griped about the "invasion by American forces" a few years ago are now griping that the departure of the GIs will "mean the loss of all that money, they spent here."

EDUCATIONAL HELP. Information on the financial help college students can obtain is now available in a new pamphlet issued by the U.S. Office of Education. Entitled "Financial Assistance for College Students: Undergraduate," it lists the number and amount of scholarships, closing dates for scholarship applications, amount of aid provided, and other pertinent matter. It sells for $1.25 a copy, can be ordered from the U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C.

by EDDIE FOY, JR.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Eddie Foy, Jr., who stars in a new TV comedy series, Fair Exchange, this fall, is a member of a show business family that dates back almost 100 years. Foy made his stage debut in 1911 at age 5 in the act billed as "Eddie Foy and the Seven Little Foyes." The act continued until 1928 when the elder Foy died. Eddie was the only one to stay in show business, appearing in many hits on Broadway and a dozen movies. A widower, Foy lives in Beverly Hills with his son, Eddie Foy III, a studio casting director. Here are some of Foy's favorite funnies:

A woman received her bill from the doctor for treating her young son for measles. She thought the bill too high and called the doctor to complain.

"You forget," the doctor reminded her, "that I paid eight visits to your house while your boy was sick."

"That's right," the mother said, "but you forget that it was he who infected the whole fourth grade!"

During World War II a massive flight of Allied bombers set out to spread tons of propaganda leaflets over Germany. All the planes but one returned to base safely. Everyone scanned the skies anxiously as the hours passed without a sign of the missing plane. Finally the plane came in for a landing two days later. The irate operations officer dashed out and demanded, "Where have you been?"

"Delivering leaflets," said the pilot.

"How long does it take to drop a few leaflets?" asked the officer.

"Drop them?" the pilot exclaimed. "We pushed them under people's doors!"

Definition of progressive jazz: Instant noise.

This is a favorite up in Minnesota among the Scandinavians. A bank president was strolling through the cashier's cage when he noticed a teller skillfully counting out thousand dollar bills.

"You look like a bright young fellow," said the banker. "Where did you get your financial training?"

"Yale," replied the teller.

"And what's your name?" asked the banker.

"Yohnson," was the reply.

Description of the oddball actors who hang around Schwab's Drugstore in Hollywood: "The Uncastables."

Did you hear about the French horn player whose toupee fell into his instrument? He spent the rest of the evening blowing his top.

Kids today have a lot more self-confidence than I did as a boy. The 5-year-old son of a friend of mine was busily drawing a picture, and his mother asked him what it was.

"I'm drawing a picture of God," the boy said.

"That's foolish," the mother replied. "No one knows what God looks like."

"They will," said the boy with conviction, "when I get through."

ANECDOTE of the WEEK

When President Kennedy recently arranged for refugees from Red China to enter the U.S., it wasn't the first time he had solved a refugee problem. Fanny Holtzman, noted U.S. lawyer, tells of another occasion.

"It was in 1939, and I was in London working to help refugees escaping from Nazi Germany," Miss Holtzman recalls. "Neither Britain nor the United States would relax their strict immigration laws to accept them."

"One day I ran into Jack—his father was then ambassador to Britain—and told him my problem. He had a few ideas, but nothing worked. Then one day Jack had an inspiration."

"Why not send them to New York as visitors to the World's Fair?" he suggested. "They can get visas for that. Then once they are there, no one will have the heart to send them back."

The scheme was tried—and it worked. Kennedy's idea thus became the formula by which thousands hounded by Hitler escaped to freedom.

CITY _____ ZONE _____ STATE _____

THIS IS THE STORY of a town and of 61 school children who saved it from disaster.

The town is Berwick, Pa., and the children are fifth- and ninth-grade pupils at two of its schools. Last fall they started something that has changed the history of their home town and provided an inspiring example for American communities everywhere.

It began last November 8, when Berwick's peace and quiet were shattered by a sudden announcement. The huge American Car and Foundry Company, the town's biggest industry, broke the news that it was going to close down its Berwick plant in late 1962.

The townsfolk were stunned. American Car and Foundry employed nearly half the city's manpower. When these men were thrown out of work, what would they do? What would happen to their wives, their children?

Strange New Words

The children themselves caught the fear in their parents' faces. They watched the adults gathering grimly to discuss the news; they overheard strange new words like "ghost town," "hard times," "depression." There was tension and gloom in many of the households of this pretty little community of 15,000.

The next morning, in two different classrooms in two schools on opposite sides of town, the children came trooping in for their lessons. The classes were Mrs. Martha Kershner's fifth grade in the 14th Street School, and Andrew Soback's ninth-grade civics class in the Orange Street School.

Mrs. Kershner recalls how upset the children were.

"They gathered in the classroom at the window facing the plant," the teacher relates. "Some of them were crying. They knew, young as they were, what the news meant."

Soback says of his students, "Some of them had already planned to go to work for ACF after they graduated. And they realized this would mean they'd lose close friends whose families moved out of town, maybe even have to give up a college education for lack of money."

President's Pen Pals

Both Mrs. Kershner's young fifth-graders and Mr. Soback's older pupils wanted to do something. But what? By a strange coincidence, a single idea occurred to both classes at the same time: Why not write a letter to President Kennedy?

It happened that letter-writing exercises were the regular lesson in Mrs. Kershner's class that morning. Each of her pupils composed a letter to the President. Then Mrs. Kershner put stamps on them and mailed them to the White House.

What did the letters say? Here's a sampling:

Wrote Paul Jaffin: "Mr. President will you please try to do something about them closing down the American Car and Foundry Co. of Berwick, Pa.? You see my father and grandfather won't have any work and then they will want to move."

Wrote Barbara Ann Dietz: "If [the plant] closes up my father will have to quit and then I won't be able to have any Christmas and we won't have any money to buy food to eat."

The kids who saved a town

Lynn Garrison: "The people of Berwick need a new place for working." Yvonne Yohery: "Would you please send another Co. to fill its place?"

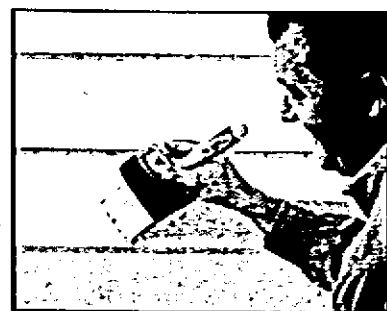

Meanwhile, across town in Mr. Soback's ninth-grade civics class, students were attacking the problem from a more adult angle. The kids decided to deal directly with the President, because, says Soback, "they felt in a democracy they had the right to go to the top. About 10 of them formed a committee to draft the letter. They did a lot of research on Berwick and its advantages and resources."

Schoolchildren who wrote President Kennedy pose with teachers near Berwick's factory.

The committee finished the draft at student Donna Hummel's house one evening. "We felt sure President Kennedy would pay attention to us," she says. "ACF had helped our country win World War II and was important enough to stay where it had been for so many years."

Another ninth grader, Mary Ann Nickle, commented: "I read in the paper a while back that one poor little boy—in New York, I think—addressed a letter to God asking for $5 to buy Christmas presents for his family. Kennedy received the letter and sent $1. I thought if he could answer something as trivial as that he was sure to answer something as big and serious as our problem."

Their letter pointed out Berwick's advantages—the town is flood-free, on a main highway with access to three airfields, enjoys a skilled-labor supply. "During the past two world wars," the letter added, "Berwick has been one of the chief suppliers of arms to our fighting forces overseas." This letter, neatly typed, also made its way to the White House.

Meanwhile, Berwick's adults were also getting busy. The mayor, businessmen and labor leaders went to ACF, did their best to persuade the company to change its mind. But ACF officials shook their heads, argued that the centers of railroad traffic growth have shifted to the South and West. As a result, there was not enough business to support a railroad equipment plant in Berwick. The company had to get out.

Enter Planners

From Harrisburg, the state capital, came planners to talk about ways of attracting new industry to Berwick. A new group—the Berwick Industrial Development Association—tried to raise some $2,500,000 to buy the ACF property, preferably with a U.S. government loan from the newly formed Area Redevelopment Administration.

But progress on all these fronts was discouragingly slow, and the local newspaper urged the town to keep its chin up.

Now the scene shifts to Washington. There the letters had come to President Kennedy's personal attention. He read them carefully, passed them on for "positive action" to William Batt Jr., Area Redvelopment Administrator. One day the phone rang in Berwick school headquarters. It was Batt. He wanted to meet the kids who had written the letters.

The result was a special assembly on December 18 in the local high school. Guests of honor were Mrs. Kershner's 29 children and Mr. Soback's group of 32. Present also were Batt and Pennsylvania's U.S. Senator Joseph Clark, who had driven up from Washington in a snowstorm. In Batt's briefcase were the original letters from the kids.

As the meeting got under way, Batt asked each letter-writer to stand up, assured them individually that no one in Berwick was going to starve. Then he said to the entire audience:

"There's a lot to be done and most of it will have to be done by you people in the community, but we will see what we can do to help. If the initiative shown by these children of yours is any guide, I'm sure you will do it."

New Business

That meeting was the turning point. Since then, Berwick has received $1,555,000 in loans from Batt's agency, plus another $350,000 from the Small Business Administration. The town will use the money to buy the ACF facilities, then attract new industries to use them. Already, the Berwick Forge and Fabricating Co. has agreed to occupy about one-sixth of the old ACF area.

Berwick isn't out of the woods yet, but there is new hope and pride among its people. A high government official summed it up in a statement to PARADE. He said:

"What has happened in Berwick is the result of many people working together—private enterprise, the community, the state, and the federal government. But the impetus for all of this activity came from the school children of Berwick. The concern they expressed for the future of their community and their families served as the spark for this joint effort. America can be proud of the children of Berwick."

"Come back in eight or 10 years," adds the mayor, Wayne Schuyler, "and you'll find a bigger and a stronger Berwick than even when ACF was at its peak. We'll have some tough times, but we'll make it. And God bless our kids—the ones who wrote the letters."

THE THREE ATTRACTIVE young women at left are the happy winners of PARADE's first annual Majorette Award—given for excellence in fashion design. The honor is shared by their school, the University of California at Los Angeles, which receives PARADE's first $1500 fashion scholarship.

All California girls, the student winners are Stephi Green, 22, Los Angeles, 1st prize; Gayle Chamberlain, 21, Lafayette, 2nd prize; and Maja Zuber, 22, Redondo Beach, 3rd prize.

PARADE's new Majorette Award has been established to encourage college students with fashion promise. Each year a $1500 grant is given to a major U.S. school of design. Students then compete for Majorette Statue awards for the best fashion designs. Eventually, every accredited school of design should receive the scholarship award, which will be used to help a design student. UCLA School of Design was selected as 1962 recipient.

OFF THE RECORD

"You are allowed two INSTANT coffee breaks a day."

PEE WEE IS AS THE HEART IN WHICH IT GROWS; IF THAT BE GENTLE, IT DROPS BALMY DEWS OF TRUE REPENTANCE. STODOLIDGE — WHO COULD BE MORE BIGHEARTED THAN PEE WEE?

BUT CHIMPS CAN REALLY WALK A WIRE! HOW EVER DID HE HAPPEN TO SLIP?

AR-R-R—ELWOOD DIDN'T SLIP! HE JUST GOT T'SHOWIN' OFF! HAD T'TURN T'SEE IF PEE WEE WAS WATCHIN' HIM! JUST WALKED OUT INTO SPACE!

HEAVENS! WHAT A TERRIBLE FALL! DIDN'T IT HURT HIM?

NOT NEAR AS MUCH AS TH' BIG KING-SIZE BRONX CHEER PEE WEE GAVE HIM! THAT REALLY SCALDED HIM!

POOR LITTLE FELLOW! NO WONDER HE'S HIDING! WONDER WHERE?

WHO CARES? I'VE HAD IT UP THERE WITH BOTH O' THOSE JEALOUS HAMS! HM-M— BUT THAT IS ODD! ELWOOD DIDN'T SHOW UP FOR BREAKFAST!

I THINK HE TOOK A POWDER! I SEEN'M HEADIN' OUT TH' RIVER ROAD, JUST AFORE SUNUP!

YEAH? WELL, WHY DIDN'TCHA—? LOOK OUT!

GANG WAY! GIVE'M ROOM!

WHAT'S GOT INTO HIM!

HE JUST FOUND OUT ELWOOD'S GONE!

ELWOOD'S GONE? WAY THEY DETEST EACH OTHER, YOU'D THINK PEE WEE'D BE HAPPY!

LET HIM GO, BOYS!

"LET HIM GO!" FIVE TONGS, AN' TH' MOOD HE'S IN? YOU SAID IT!

WHILE OUT THE DUSTY RIVER ROAD—

ONE HOUR LATER A TINY, DEJECTED, UNHAPPY, LITTLE GUY FLOODS ON—

TILL ALL AT ONCE, SILENTLY, A MONSTER LOOMS BEHIND HIM! FOR A LONG MOMENT THEY STAND TRANSFIXED— THEN—

SUDDENLY GONE ARE JEALOUSY AND ENVY! A LONELY LITTLE CHIMP WILL NO LONGER FEEL REJECTED, AND AS FOR PEE WEE—?

YUK YUK YUK!

HEY! PEE WEE'S COMIN' BACK!

HE'S BRINGING ELWOOD!

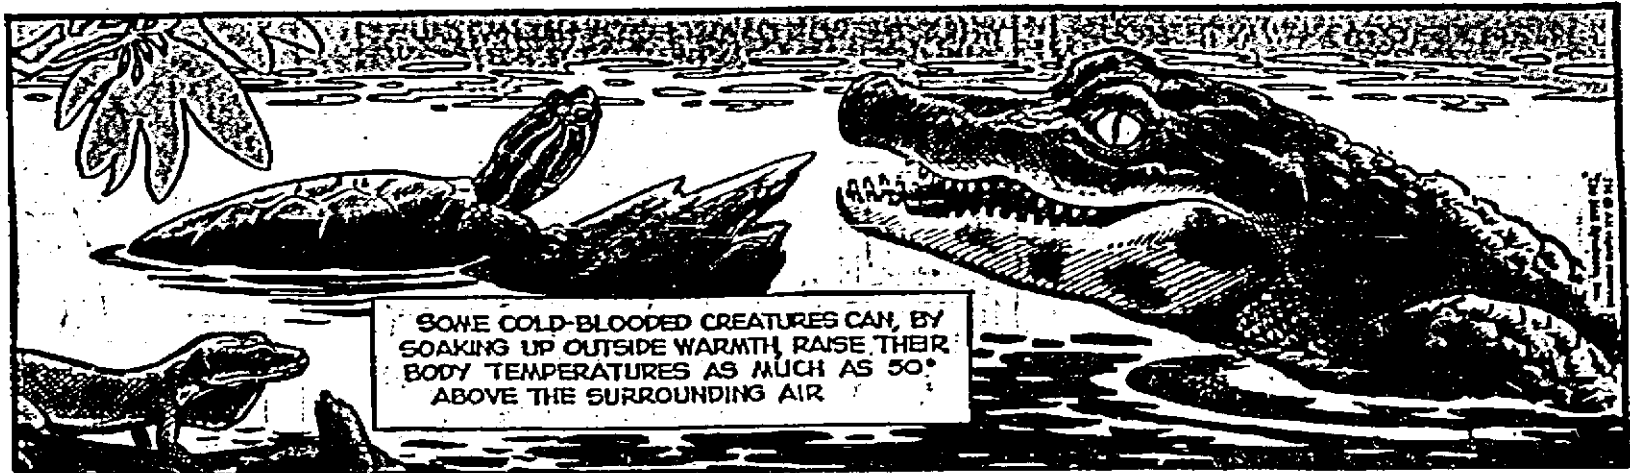

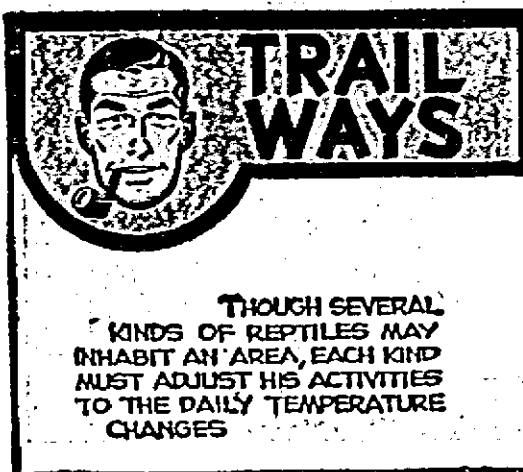

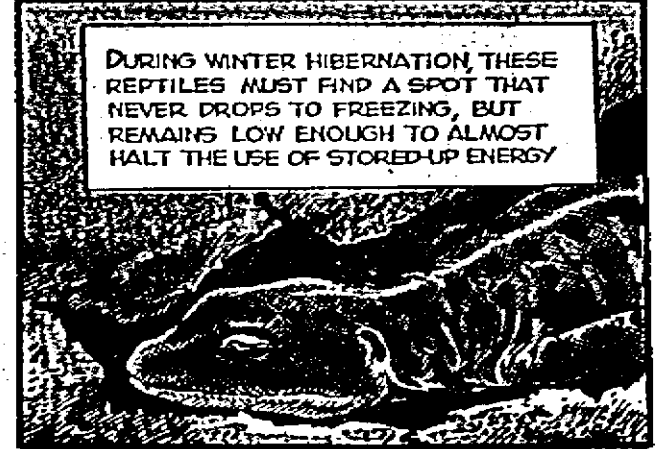

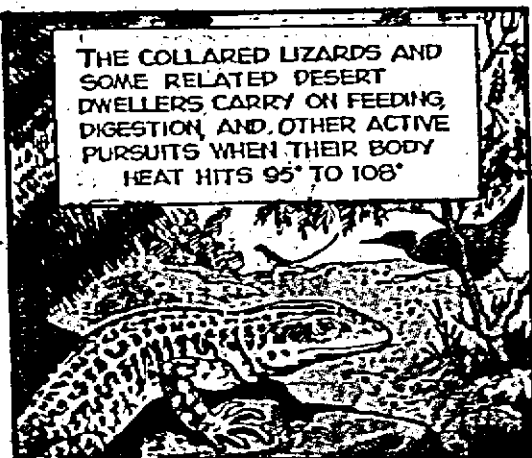

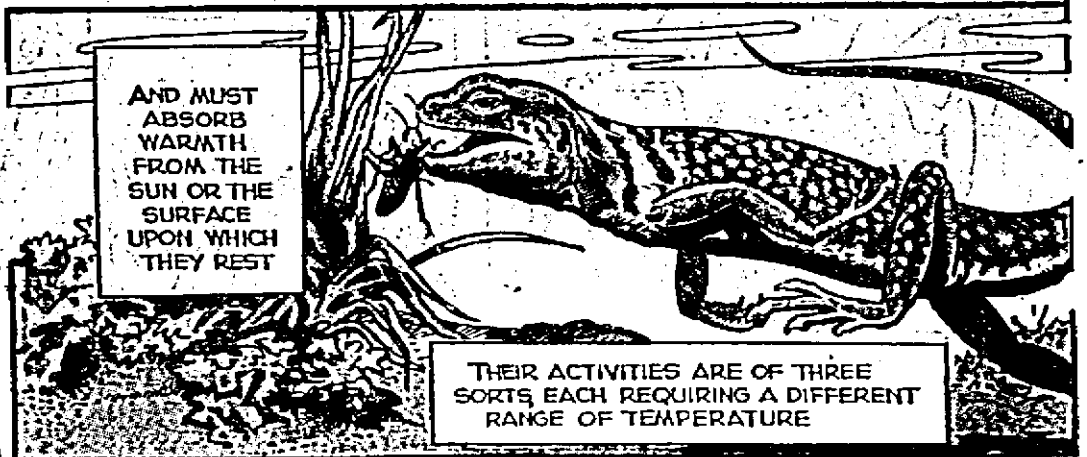

WHY DO YOU SUPPOSE PEE WEE MADE UP WITH ELWOOD?

MAYBE HE DECIDED TO THINK BIG T'MATCH HIS SIZE!

Putting toys away can be fun instead of a chore for youngsters who have this Toy Box Train as storage.

By Bill Meyerriecks

AS EVERY mother knows, the secret of enticing a child into putting his toys away mainly involves providing a place for him to store them.

We think this week's Sketchbook plan for a Toy Box Train is the ideal solution. Even the smallest toddler will feel more like helping pick-up the playroom when the summons is "Let's load the train!" instead of "Get that stuff off the floor, Buster."

Dimensions are scaled to toyland passengers. The locomotive is 34½ inches long over-all, with the storage section 16 by 17 by 14½ inches. The cattle car is 16 by 16½ by 23 inches. Freight car is 16 by 7¾ by 20 inches.

Each car is equipped with easily mounted flat plate casters to make movement easy under any kind of load. Hooks and eyes make it possible to link the whole train together.

Only substantial lumber expense is the price of one 4x8 sheet of ½ inch plywood, which yields plywood parts in all three units. The Sketchbook plan includes exact dimensions of all parts, half sized patterns on angled parts, complete assembly and painting instructions, and authentic railroad insignia.

TO OBTAIN Toy Box Train Plan S-69, send 50 cents with name and address to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif.

Home-Built Family Gym

Physical fitness is the purpose of this easily constructed home gym, demonstrated by NBC actress, Lois Lawson.

AS THE NATION takes stock of its physical fitness, today's project is appropriate—a gym device that enables the entire family to participate in a body building program right at home without costly membership dues at a gymnasium or athletic club. It's inexpensive, takes little space and has illustrated directions for more than 20 specific exercises.

Framework is of pipe and fittings cut at the plumbing shop and easy to put together with only a pipe wrench.

To build this family gym, send name and address and $1 in currency, money order or check for Pattern No. 387 to Steve Ellinson, Southland Magazine Pattern Department, Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif.

Cosmetics Go HIGH Fashion

Today It's a Change of Face

By Mary Ellis

Southland Fashion Editor

These days milady is facing the fact that her cosmetics must match her costume.

Once was when, no matter what her clothes, she wore the same old shade of powder, the same old shade of lipstick, the same old eye makeup, et cetera, et cetera, et cetera!

But not so 1962. Anyway, not if the lady is smart—from head to toe.

She knows a high fashion wardrobe demands a high fashion face!

FACING UP fashion... the new cared-for look to top elegance of couture gowns. It's American woman's newest approach to high fashion in cosmetics.

(Dress by Patricia J. Copeland Photograph courtesy of DuBarry)

THE SCIENCE of color in cosmetics has been raised to a fine art today: face powders come in nuances of shades formerly unheard of—from wispy-light champagne beige to sultry Morocco.

Pastel eye shadows in misty green, rare lilac, blue shimmer are boldly accented by jet mascara and deep brown pencil; reds of every hue from delicious apricot cremes to dramatic pink ices provide a lipstick for every costume, every occasion, every time of day or night.

NOT ONLY COLOR, but cosmetic "engineering" is important, too.

Illustrated charts for every shape of face, explaining how to flatter its specific contours, serve as "blueprints" for just-the-right lines.

It's a day when cosmetics complete the high fashion look...

AND a day when milady, with every change of costume, can have a change of face.
